Keith Eckel

PFA cites farm plan priorities

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The preparation of a new four-year federal farm program starting in 1985 is one of the key challenges facing organized agriculture this year according to Keith Eckel, president of the Pennsylvania Farmers' Association (PFA).

Eckel made the observation during a breakfast address on Thursday to over 200 Pennsylvania farmers and their congressman. PFA national legislative committees visited their congressman on Wednesday and Thursday to discuss important national farm issues.

Eckel said the new long-term farm program should be fashioned to avoid past mistakes and be flexible enough to adjust to changing situations.

Monitoring of auction ads begins

BY DICK ANGLESTEIN

HARRISBURG — Auction and public sale advertisements are now being monitored in Pennsylvania to see if auctioneers are complying with a new state law to include their names and license numbers in the ads.

The new auctioneer law went into effect on January 1 and the new advertising requirement states:

"It is unlawful for a person to advertise an auction or sale at auction without including in the advertisement or notice of sale the name and license number of the auctioneer, auction house or auction company conducting the sale."

A check of the public sale ads in Section F of this week's Lancaster Farming will show some of the ads in which auctioneers are beginning to comply with the requirement.

"We have started to monitor published ads for compliance with the name and license number requirement," explained Dawn Glowacki, administrative secretary of the State Board of Auctioneer Examiners in the Pa. Department of State.

She further explained that letters of warning are being sent to auctioneers who are not including names and license numbers in the

Lancaster Dairy Days stress Johne's

BY LAURA ENGLAND

LANCASTER — It is a disease similar to tuberculosis in man, only it affects dairy cattle.

It hits the intestinal tract and makes the absorption of nutrients difficult if not completely impossible. Infected cows begin to lose weight rapidly although their appetite and eating habits remain normal.

It is Johne's disease, and it could be affecting between five and 20 percent of the adult cows in Pennsylvania. Because it is difficult to diagnose and treatment is virtually nonexistent, Johne's disease is "a one-way street that once a cow gets sick she continues to go," said Dr. Robert Whitlock, a professor of veternarian medicine at New Bolton Center.

"It's a difficult organism to work with," Dr. Whitlock said, "and after 25 years of research we still have a relatively poor vaccine. Unfortunately, there is no effective treatment for Johne's disease."

> "It's a difficult organism to work with," Dr. Whitlock said, "and after 25 years of research we still have a relatively poor vaccine. Unfortunately, there is no effective treatment for Johnes disease."

Speaking to dairymen attending Lancaster County Dairy Days held Monday and Tuesday, Dr. Whitlock said that Johne's disease is similar to tuberculosis (TB) in man. Johne's, however, does not affect people, but it does carry similar TB traits, he said.

Cows become infected with Johne's when organisms enter the intestinal tract and invade the intestinal lining causing infection. The intestinal walls thicken and can't absorb nutrients.

Calves are generally exposed to the disease, Dr. Whitlock said, and become infected at an early age but may develop no clinical signs for two to eight years. The older the cow at time of exposure, the

Dr. Michael Radebaugh, of Parkton, Md., prepares to vaccinate a farm dog against rabies.

Outbreak of rabies continues its spread into Pa.

BY JOYCE BUPP
Staff Correspondent

YORK — An outbreak of rabies that has spread north through Virginia and Maryland over the past two years is expected to surge into Pennsylvania this year.

Since the beginning of the year, 44 rabies cases have been reported to the Bureau of Animal Industry, according to PDA veterinarian Dr. John Cable. Last year's total of 151 reported cases were about double the number from 1982.

Bulk of the rabies cases reported in Pennsylvania last year centered in Bedford, Franklin and Fulton counties. Franklin County had the highest incidence, with 43 cases, while Bedford reported 42, and Fulton tallied 41.

A large percentage of these cases was found in wild species of animals, primarily raccoons, but with fairly high numers of bats and skunks infected as well, and only an occasional domestic pet or farm animal.

> "You don't have to be bitten by a rabid animal to contract the disease," explains York Ext. Agent Tony Dobrosky.

York County agricultural extension agent Tony Dobroksy has begun alerting farmers and owners of domestic pets of the possible spread of the rabies problem into York and surrounding counties, since the outbreak is expected to continue expanding across the state.

Three cases, he hays, have already been reported this year in the Dillsburg area of northern York County.

While the county agent is not necessarily recommending that farmers vaccinate whole herds of livestock, he does suggest that they might consider the vaccine injections for extremely valuable breeding stock.

"We are really urging farmers to get their cats and dogs vaccinated against rabies," stresses Dobrosky.

"And we want to remind people that they don't have to be bitten by a rabid animal to contract the

THE OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC

MARCH 12-18, 1984

Cold nights, warm days, maple syrup's on the way.

Time to start giving house plants more water and fertilizer Full moon March 17 (Sat) Average length of days for the week, 11 hours, 53 minutes "Strip Tease" introduced in Paris, March 13, 1894 Germany seized Czechoslovakia, Mar 15, 1939 J P Morgan died March 13, 1943 Girl Scouts of America founded March 12, 1912 Insist on yourself, never imitate

Ask the Old Farmer: Evidently the original settlers of Connecticut fancied the word "bury" to tag onto the names they chose for their towns, to wit — Danbury, Waterbury, and no doubt many others My problem is what is a bury? F C, Hartford

The suffix, as it is used in town names, is merely a form of the word borough and originally meant "a fortified place"

OLD FARMER'S WEATHER FORECASTS

New England: Week starts with snowstorm, sunny and mild midweek to end of week

Greater New York-New Jersey: Snow and cold through midweek, sunny and seasonable at end of week

Middle Atlantic Coastal: Snow, rain, and cold weather through midweek, end of week brings a few showers, seasonable temperatures

Piedmont & Southeast Coastal: Full week of rain with cold temperatures at start of week, seasonable by midweek, cool at end of week

What's in a name?

BY DICK ANGLESTEIN

The Sire Summary makes fascinating reading.

But I don't study it to make decisions in a dairy breeding program as most of you do. I find the names fascinating.

Where did they come from? Under what circumstances where they picked?

For instance:

If I was naming a bull -- "Rebel or Ruffian, Dynamo or Dynamite" sound good. That gives a real macho impression. But definitely not "Gay John Juan." In fact, I wouldn't name any bull with the designation "gay," even if I am from Pennsylvania.

And "Rhetoric" gives me a false mental picture, too. Kinda reminds me of all the politics going on now -- a lot of empty promises and no real performance.

What's the fascination with the heavens in naming bulls? There seem to be more heavenly references in their names than anything else. To cite just a few, there are "Telestar, Super Star, Starmaker, Jupiter, Gemini, Astronaut" etc. Are these supposed to be space age bulls?

Do some bulls reflect owners' tastes in TV, music or reading? If so, what a variety of tastes. Farmer TV viewers must range from "Zorro to Guiding Light" and rural music-lovers from "Fabian to Mozart and Beethoven." But no Beetles. And there gotta be a Michael Jackson on the sire horizon. Be sure to mate him with a cow named Emmy. And one Shakespeare-admiring farmer named a "Hamlet." Let's hope it's not a progenical question of "To Be or Not To Be."

Some old-time football player who practiced out in the back pasture named a "Dropkick." Or, did something happen in the barn? In any event, better update him to "Soccer-Style."

I also try to visualize "Sheik and Rabbi" in adjoining pens. Why it might be the Middle East War down on the farm. Or does "Rabbi" guarantee kosher milk?

Sure, dairy breeding is big business. But aren't "Executive and Board Chairman" carrying it a bit too far.

"Lucky" turns me off as a bull name, too. Something like that shouldn't be a matter of chance.

"Sexation" has a real positive ring to it.

"Brutus or Bubba" give a good feeling, too. But not "Cedric." And definitely not "Quick Shot or Minuteman."

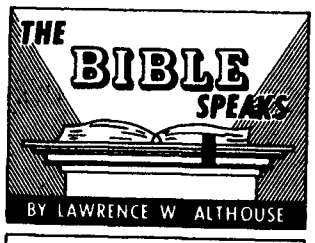
And I also like "Confidence," but not "Anticipation."

And is it good to name a sire "Bachelor?"

Is there any connection between "Shamrock and Leprechaun" or between "Midas Touch and Nugget or Klondike?"

And was "Coffee Break" born at mid-morning or afternoon?

But that's enough of this "bull" for one time. Needless to point out, I didn't have anything profound or enlightening to say this week.



THE RIGHT ENEMIES
March 11, 1984

Background Scripture:
Mark 2:1 through 3:6.

Devotional reading:
Mark 2:1-12.

So far as I know, I don't have any enemies.

I could be wrong about that and it has not always been so, but at this time in my life it seems to be true.

That doesn't mean that there are not people who don't like me or disapprove of me. Anyone who writes or preaches publicly can expect to have some detractors. But, so far as I am aware, there is no one who is working to hurt me or detract from me in any way.

THEY WATCHED HIM

Now, before you become overly impressed with the above presumed state of affairs, let me confess that I find it somewhat disquieting. Not that I would seek to have some enemies, but that without some foes, I have to wonder whether I'm doing my job. If no one opposes what I am doing in my ministry, might it be that I'm not doing anything worthwhile?

Maybe I'm all wrong about that, but when I study the ministry of Jesus, I seem led to that conclusion. Take Mark 2, for example. In this brief chapter there are recorded six incidents in the ministry of Jesus. In five of them Jesus is severely criticized by the scribes and Pharisees. As you read on into 3:1-6, there is yet another incident and another hostile confrontation. And, at the close of this last incident, it is obvious that the scribes and Pharisees have become Jesus' bitter enemy.

Now, how did Jesus earn their enemy? Did he simply reap what he had sown? Had he been intemperate in his remarks about the scribes and Pharisees? Had he attacked them in some way?

No, Jesus hadn't sought their hostility. His words and actions seem harmless enough to us, but the scribes and Pharisees found them very offensive. What did Jesus do to acquire these enemies? First he healed a paralytic and told him, "Your sins are forgiven" (2:5). Then he sat and ate with some tax collectors and sinners (2:16, 17 , which scandalized the scribes and Pharisees. Next, they became offended because he did not fast (2:18). Then, they really became hostile when they found him picking and eating grain on the sabbath (2:23-28). And finally, he healed a man's withered hand on the sabbath. In other words, he earned their hostility by doing what he considered to be his job.

HOW TO DESTORY HIM

We can understand that they disagreed with Jesus, but why did they become so hostile over this simple disagreement? Yet, isn't that still a problem with us today? Religion becomes something to get angry about and even to fight over. It divides families, friends and communities. It even sometimes leads to wars.

So you see, although none of us should ever want to have any enemies, often, if we are doing what God wants us to do, they will go along with the job.

To Plan Weed Control Program

Weeds continue to be one of the major factors in reduced crop yields. This is true in the garden as well as in the field. The battle to control weeds is not a new one; years ago cultivation was the only method of weed control. Now, herbicides are widely used for weed control. However, we still have too much crop damage from weeds. An Agronomist once said that for every pound of weeds produced, the crop yield was reduced by the same weight. Some weeds amount to several tons per acre; this means that much less of the desired crop. Follow the recommendations in the Agronomy Guide and plan for a better weed control program this year.

To Be Aware Of Rural Crime

Crime in rural areas continues to climb. Thieves are drawn to rural communities because of the attitude that crime is a city problem, so it's safe to leave your door unlocked. As long as this notion persists, rural areas will remain a thieves' paradise. You can make it less so by forcing a burglar to work harder. Install dead bolt locks on all exterior doors and windows. Keep in mind they work only if you use them.

Get to know your neighbors; they can be a great crime deterrent. Agree to watch their place while they're away and they'll gladly do the same for you. It's important to identify your property. Police won't return items unless they're positively identified. Private gas pumps and storage tanks are popular targets for thieves. Be sure to lock these up whenever you aren't around. Exterior lights around your home, garage and barn will also do a lot to ward off burglars.

To Avoid Soil Compaction

One of the real dangers of being in too big a hurry in getting on the soil in the spring with heavy equipment is that we pack this wet soil so hard that poor yields result. With modern machinery, the weight is much more than a team of horses or mules. As a result we have ground that is as hard as concrete and it never recovers. It

"120 is for the man who can make alfalfa pay."

I'm a DEKALB-PFIZER dealer and a dairyman. Economics plays a big part in my operation. That's why choosing the right alfalfa is such a big decision.

My alfalfa is DEKALB Brand 120. DEKALB-PFIZER said it was a top performer and they're right. It gives my cows a fine stemmed, leafy hay and more tons per acre.

You can count on 120 for winter hardiness—even after a season of tough weather. This seeding will last me for a few more years.

120 is topping state yield trials all across the country. With that kind of record, and my own experience, I'm proud to recommend it to my customers. Sure, I put more money into 120, but I get it back, cutting after cutting. So will you.

Who's making your alfalfa investment pay?

I am.

Private sale results in $15,000 Holstein

BY LAURA ENGLAND

LANCASTER — York County dairyman Joseph Stump usually isn't surprised when one of his registered Holstein cows sells for $2,000. But offer him $15,000 – and through a private sale, at that – and his surprise turns to immediate joy.

Stump and his wife, Glendora, owners of Stump-Acres Farm, of York R10, recently sold one of their top three-year-old cows for a "surprising" $15,000. Surprising it was, Stump said, because buyers Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Freese, of Glee Hi Holsteins in Oxford, came to Stump-Acres to look over another Holstein, but bought Stump-Acres JetStar Pace JetGo instead.

Stump, who's been farming for 35 years and selling cattle for 20, said he had not thought about selling his homebred JetGo, but "when they offered $15,000 for her, I thought, why not?"

JetGo, who classified very good at 85 points, was sired by Keystone Elevation Camaro. Stump purchased Camaro at six months of age from Don Seipt of Keystone Farm, Easton. Camaro is currently under lease at Select Sires. JetGo's dam is Stump-Acres MyJet King JetStar, who classified excellent at 90 points.

As a three-year-old, JetGo produced 30,956 pounds of milk and 1,396 pounds of fat at a 4.4 percent test. She is the ninth generation of the ADA Pontiac Countess cow family which holds a nearly perfect record of 4.0 or higher percent butterfat. The only flaw comes from the third generation dam, Countess Pontiac Lauxmont, who had two records under 4.0 percent - - 3.8 and 3.9 percent.

JetGo's granddam, Stump-Acres Jet Bright MyJet, had two tests over 5.0 percent butterfat. Another family member, Ada Regal Lucifer Myrtle, was recognized in 1962 as the first cow in York County to achieve a lactation fat record over 1,000 pounds. This she did as a four-year-old with 22,988 pounds of milk at a 4.6 percent fat test.

JetGo is just one of the 380 plus head of cattle that Stump has sold over the past five years. He first began merchandizing cattle 20 years ago with the selling of bulls for stud service. He then began selling calves, heifers and cows.

Stump-Acres now has breeding stock in 12 states, plus Puerto Rico.

Named a Master Farmer and the Outstanding Young Farmer over 30 in 1981, Stump took over the family's dairy herd when he was 16 and his father had died. The current herd totals 250 cattle, including calves, heifers, cows and bulls.

Stump-Acres JetStar Pace JetGo, pictured as a 2-year-old, recently brought $15,000 through private sale for her owners Joseph and Glendora Stump, R10 York.

is important to wait until the soil is dried out sufficiently before taking this heavy equipment over the fields. When the soil is worked too wet, it becomes hard and forms clods. This type of soil structure will not give you the best yields. Don't be in too big a hurry, slow down and let the weather catch up to you.

To Prune Fruit Trees

Whether you have a few or several hundred fruit trees, orchard pruning need not be delayed until spring. It may be started in colder weather. But it is a good practice to work on the hardiest trees first.

Early pruning can involve some problems from winter injury, but in many cases an early start will be necessary to complete pruning of large orchards before spring. By confining early work to the older, hardier trees, fruit growers can keep injury to a minimum.

Apple and pear trees are the hardiest of the fruits, with plums and sour cherries next in order. Because peach and sweet cherries are most tender, delay their pruning, particularly the younger trees, until later in March.

OR BOTH!

ASK ME TO BALANCE YOUR MILK COW RATIONS BY COMPUTER. ON YOUR FARM. IN MINUTES. FREE!

Formulating dairy rations by computer makes sense.

A properly programmed computer can make complicated calculations in a second or two. It can take into consideration nutritive values of all the things cows eat and tell you how much of each ingredient to feed to answer your cows' body maintenance and milk production needs.

But, a computer is expensive. It takes skilled, trained nutritionists to set up the program and a specialized operator to make it work.

With McNess' Maxi-Milk™ program you can use our computer . . . free. There's no waiting period.

You tell me how big your cows are, what you're feeding (or would like to feed), how much milk you expect your cows to produce.

I'll make one phone call . . . from your phone . . . and show you a better, more productive lower cost way to feed your cows!

THE FASTEST MOWER/CONDITIONERS IN THE WORLD.

When conditions get tough, the Vicon KM 241, KM 281 and KM 321 Mower/Conditioners can get your hay in the windrow at least 30% faster than any conventional system.

One reason is the unique high-speed Vicon disc-cutting system. Which won't plug. And it's so gentle on your hay crop there's virtually no leaf loss.

The Vicon eliminates the most common cutting and conditioning problems, even if it's heavy, dew-wet crop. The full-width nylon rollers provides the maximum conditioning effect on the entire crop.

Another reason is a new drive system that lets you operate non-stop. Even taking square corners with no drive line vibration or danger of failure. As a practical value to farmers, the Vicon mower/conditioners are efficient, economical and durable.

Omaha Livestock

Thursday, March 8, 1984

Fed Cattle prices on the Omaha terminal ranged up 50-1.50 for the week, due mainly to reduced salable numbers. Buyer demand proved good from day-to-day even though dressed beef prices posted no better than steady trends. Purchases of 1000-1100 lb. 'short-fed' steers provided additional support to the market. Overall finish showed some improvement with an increased number of choice kinds on sale; but mud still a big problem in the trade. Cows 1.50-3.00 higher. Bulls fully steady.

Estimated 5 day receipts 8,300; Actuals last week 9,517 and 10,564 last year. Steers comprised 41 pct of the week's receipts; heifers 40 pct; cows 10 pct; feeders 8 pct.

SLAUGHTER STEERS: At the closes, choice 2-4 1050-1300 lbs. 68.50-70.00. Mixed good and choice 2-3 1000-1150 lbs. 67.50-68.50. Few good 64.00-67.00.

SLAUGHTER HEIFERS: At the close, choice 2-4 950-1100 lbs. 66.00-67.00, part load 68.00. Mixed good and choice 2-3 900-1050 lbs. 64.50-66.00. Good 62.00-64.00.

Average of LS-214 detailed quotations for 900-1100 lb. choice steers 68.05; 1100-1300 lbs. 69.02. Average cost steers 67.98, average weight 1149 lbs.; as compared 67.03 and 1125 lbs. a week ago. Average cost heifers 65.58, average weight 1009 lbs.; as compared 64.46 and 1007 lbs. a week ago.

COWS: Breaking utility and commercial 2-3 43.50-47.50, mostly 44.00-44.50. Cutter and boning utility 1-2 43.00-47.00, high dressing to 48.75. Canner and low cutter 38.00-43.00.

BULLS: 1-2 1100-2000 lbs. 47.00-57.25.

THE INSIDE STORY.

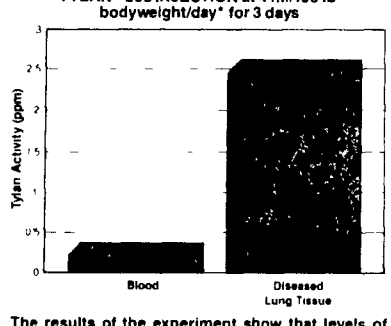
A closer look at what you should know before settling on any antibiotic.

The inside story is the information you need to better judge, choose and use injectable antibiotics for your hogs. It's a closer look at how Tylan® injection works inside livestock. And, it can show you how to get sick hogs back on their feet, back on their feed, fast.

First, consider the importance of tissue drug levels vs. blood levels. For years, antibiotics were judged according to how much of the drug remained in the blood over a specified time. Although high antibiotic levels in the blood are important, they may not be the best indicators of a drug's effectiveness. The reason is . . . most major livestock diseases are not infections of the blood. Generally, they're caused by infections of a particular organ, such as the lung. Invading disease organisms attack the tissue—the mass of cells which actually makes up the organ. To be effective, an antibiotic must quickly move to the tissue where the disease-causing infection occurs.

How does Tylan injection stack up in tissue studies? Recent research completed by Elanco scientists continues to show that Tylan injection actively moves into, through and out of the bloodstream. It quickly gets to the infection site—the lung tissue in the case of pneumonia—for fast, effective treatment.

RESULTS IN PIGS
TYLAN' 200 INJECTION at 4 ml/100 lb bodyweight/day* for 3 days



The results of the experiment show that levels of Tylan, measured in parts per million, were over five times greater in diseased lung tissue than blood levels at six hours after the last injection

*Divided into two daily injections for swine

Now, government clearances allow you to use Tylan 200 at the higher level of 4 ml/100 lb. bodyweight/day (divided into two daily injections for swine). More than ever, you can depend on Tylan injection, the Big Shot™, to hit hard against pneumonia, mycoplasmal arthritis, dysentery and erysipelas in your hogs.

For a much closer look at the inside story, take time to visit with your veterinarian or animal health supplier Or write Elanco.

Zuck family 'stars' at Cedar Crest FFA banquet

BY DICK ANGLESTEIN

LEBANON — The "stars" of the Cedar Crest FFA awards banquet Tuesday night literally were members of the Jay Norman Zuck family of R7 Lebanon.

The trio of chapter star awards went to the family, including:

Jeff Zuck, chapter president, was named Star Chapter Agribusinessman, and also captured the DeKalb Award and chapter trophy for dairy production

Younger brother, Ed, who serves as parliamentarian, captured the Star Chapter Farmer award and the chapter trophy in swine production.

And sister, Lorinda, a first-year FFA'er, rounded out the family's top awards with the honor of Star Greenhand. She was also the Lebanon County winner in creed speaking.

"This is the first time this has happened to me," explained advisor Harold Berkheiser in commenting on the family sweep.

The honoring of the three family stars was the concluding event of the awards program and banquet that was attended by some 285 members, parents and guests at the Cedar Crest Middle School Tuesday night.

Zuck family "stars" at Cedar Crest FFA banquet include, from the left, Ed, Jeff and Lorinda with their parents Jay Norman and Lorraine.

Other top winners of chapter trophies in various areas included Brenda Peiffer, corn production; Gary Krall, ag mechanics; Gale Hitz, outstanding stockman; Ann Lansberry and Brenda Miller, horse production; Lisa Houser, poultry production; and Dave Groff, beef production.

Foundation award recipients included Jeff Zuck, placement in ag production and dairy production; Dan and Dave Groff, beef production; Dave Groff, extemporaneous public speaking, Jeff Ruhl, diversified livestock; Gary Krall, ag mechanics; Ann Lansberry and Brenda Miller, horse production; Tonya Johnson, public speaking; Jenny Embich and Brian Boyer, floriculture; Lisa Houser, poultry production and ag sales and service; Ed Zuck and Gale Hitz, swine production; and Brenda Peiffer, crop production.

Members of the parliamentary procedure team were honored for their success last year in going on to regional competition.

Honored for scholarship in all subjects were Lorinda Zuck, Gary Krall, Jeff Zuck, Gale Hitz, Ed Zuck, Lindsey Nauman, Dan and Dave Groff, Darin Nissley and Charles Whary.

The chapter bestowed honorary chapter degrees on Grant Krall for use of his farm for field trips, Glenn Kaufman, vice principal; and Robert Krout, business director.

Certificates of appreciation went to Louis Juliani for cooperation in Easter flower sales, Ronald Hunsicker for citrus sale and Mrs. Paula Snyder and the Cedar Crest FBLA for their cooperation.

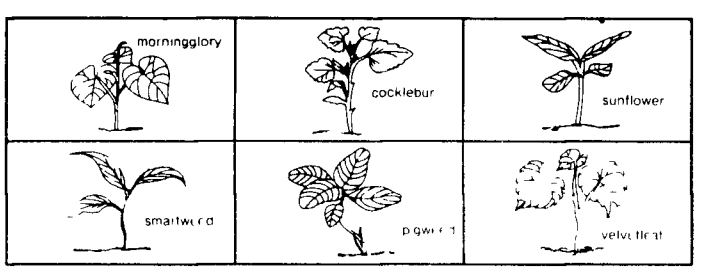
Twenty-four chapter members also received awards for their placings in county and state project book competition.

Participating in the awards program, in addition to various chapter officers and members, were Carolyn Witmer, president of the Pa. FFA Association; Harvey Smith, area vocational consultant; and Edward Phillips, school district superintendent.

Franklin Ext. committee

The Executive Committee of the Franklin County Agricultural Extension Association was elected at the recent reorganization meeting of the Association's Board of Directors. The Committee, for 1984, consists of, standing, John R. Rotz, St. Thomas, president; Elizabeth Brown, Chambersburg, secretary; seated, Linda Golden, Greencastle, director; and Fred E. Rice, Chambersburg, director. Other officers include Wilma Mickey, Chambersburg, vice-president; and Linford Pensinger, Chambersburg, treasurer.

Pick the weeds in your corn you'd like to get rid of...



Then pick Banvel herbicide... the Big Plus...to do the job.

Pre-emergence: Banvel tank-mixed with Lasso to get broadleaf weeds along with grasses ready and waiting when later weeds germinate

Early layby (in corn up to five inches high) use Banvel at a one pint rate Stop weeds before they've had a chance to develop This Banvel overlay controls cocklebur sunflower annual morningglory other troublemakers

Post-emergence (corn up to 36 inches) Banvel herbicide controls the real problems—like smartweed, velvetleaf bindweed and seedling Canada thistle

Before buying a less adaptable herbicide that may be short on performance, check out the Big Plus of Banvel from Velsicol

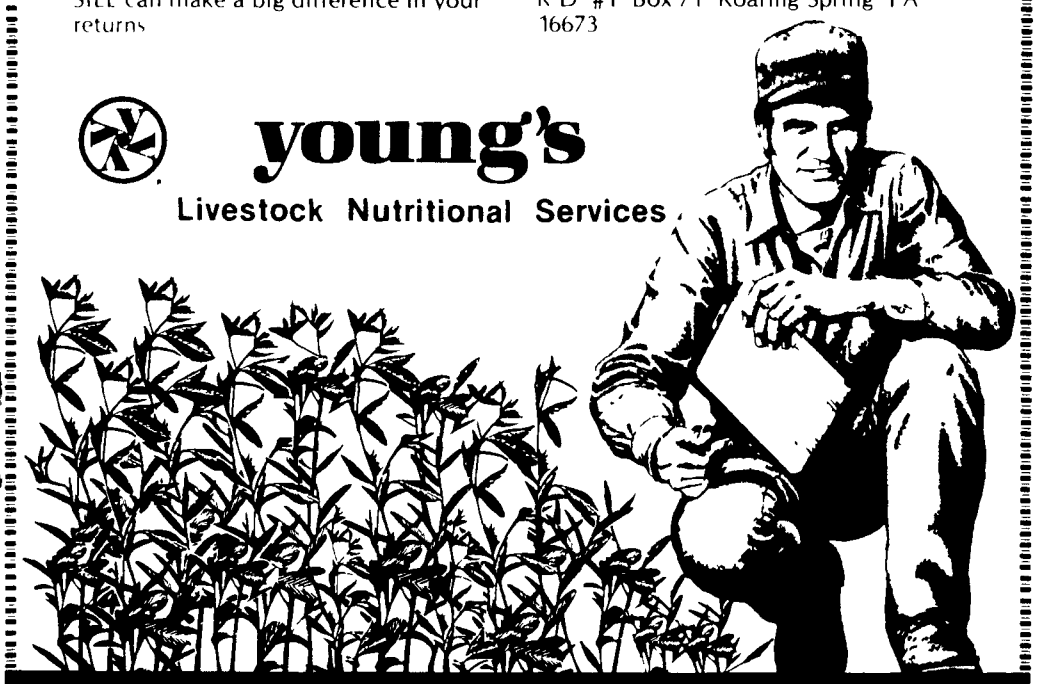
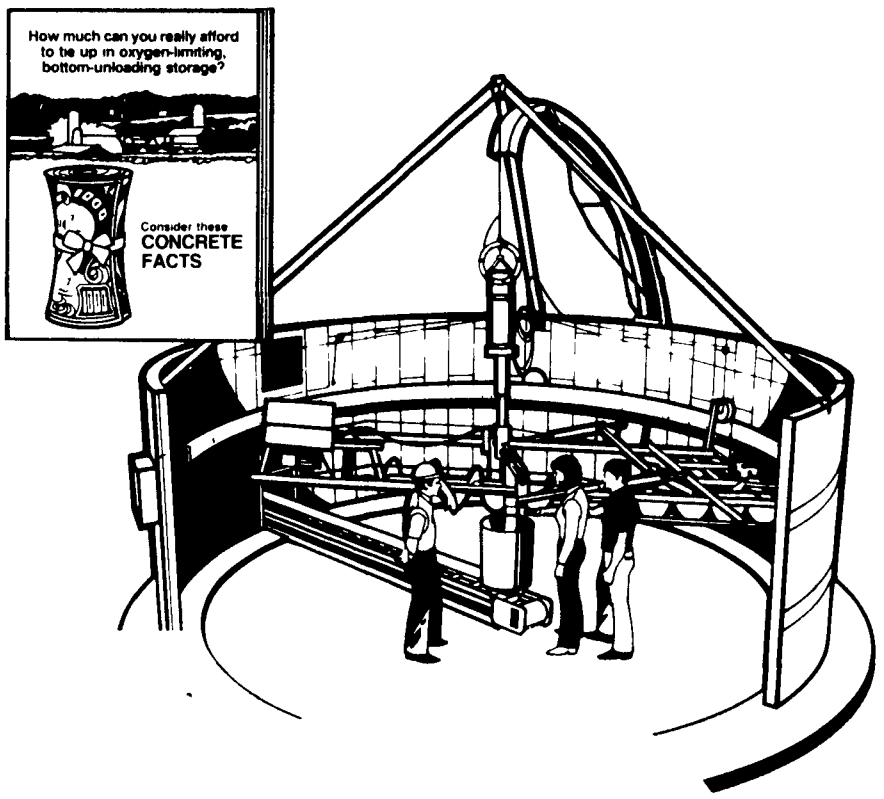
Livestock Nutritional Services

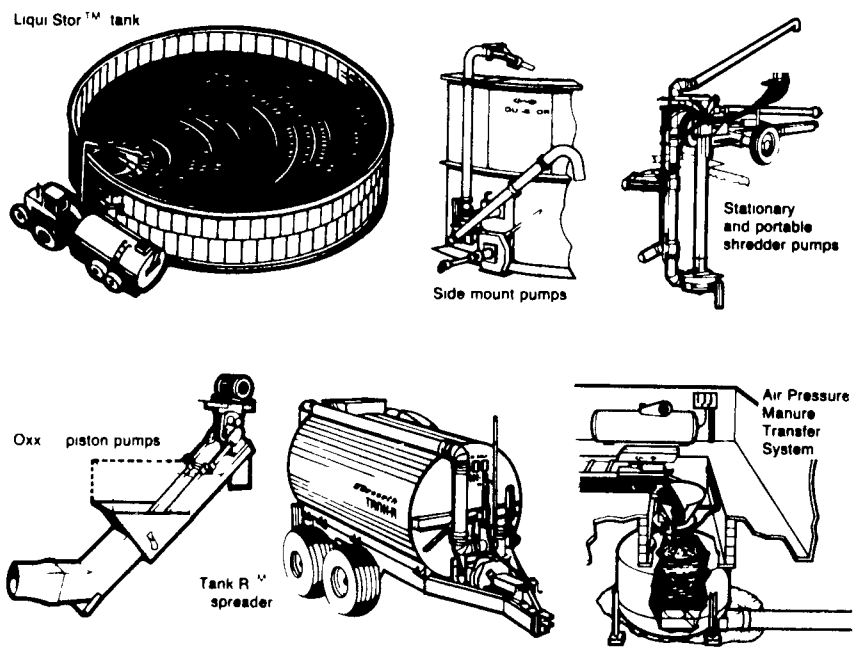


Crop-Sile keeps it there.



Because the Butler system top unloads silage, then discharges it down a big preformed hole and out the bottom, you can store high moisture silage — with more total feed value than low moisture silage — without cold weather worries. And without the big price tag of oxygen-limiting, bottom-unloading systems. Ask for FREE Concrete Facts booklet.

There's no better way than Butler...
See us for systems and service.



Now, the new Liqui-Stor™ tank completes the liquid manure management system that can help you save time, labor and nutrients when handling your valuable manure resource. Includes a variety of equipment for collecting, delivering, pumping, agitating, hauling, broadcasting and injecting. The right size and capacity for your operation. Plus features that add up to years of dependable performance.

New SWISH SATELLITE™ System Waters Chicks & Poults From Day 1

The biggest problem with founts and other supplementary waterers is manpower — the labor needed to clean and hand-fill them. Also, birds don't always get clean, cool, fresh water — which can cause health problems and poor feed conversion.

But now there's the new Swish SATELLITE system.

It attaches to any Swish floor watering system (and most other brands, too), to give you an automatic system that baby birds take to immediately.

And your birds get fresher, cleaner, cooler water that they love to drink. Which means they'll drink more of it. And that means healthier birds.

The Swish SATELLITE also cuts water waste — which means drier litter, less disease.

COW FEEDING SYSTEM

Chore-Time's Cow Feeding System is the modern answer to an old problem. The system is ideal for feeding individual cows in either a stanchion barn or a milking parlor – mechanically. Individual portion control feeders are used with a flexible auger that supplies feed to the feeders. Feeders can be placed along the auger tube where needed. This means you can design a feeding system to fit your particular needs.

MEAL-TIME™

The programmed feeding system that cuts your No. 1 production cost

Now there's a way you can boost profits 20% or more. Chore-Time's unique new MEAL-TIME Feeding System feeds your hogs "meals", improving feed conversion 5% or more. See us today and find out how you can profit from this brand new idea.

ROARING SPRING — A Southern Blair County family feels very lucky to live in an area where people are truly concerned and back up that caring attitude with hard work.

The most recent example of people helping people was following a fire which practically wiped out a family's livelihood. Ruth Hinton and her family were awakened early last Oct. 12 to find their dairy barn, formerly owned by Mrs. Hinton father, in flames.

"It was gone quickly," she reflects. "The sides were off. It had a good start. the barn was completely involved in flames."

Seventy-five firefighters from 5 fire companies worked to save the family farm. Some reports say there were $250,000 damage. Fire officials feel that faulty wiring was to blame.

The barn wasn't the only thing lost. The 3:45 a.m. blaze also claimed a bull and eight calves. They were unable to save a rake, elevator, harvester, a pair of snowmobiles, a corn crib, hay, oats, straw and a portion of the silo.

The family vividly remembers the inferno they saw from their windows in the darkness of the early morning. The barn was located behind the farmhouse and adjacent to a trailer housing Ruth's 26-year-old son, Joe Hinton and his family. When they discovered the fire on the morning of Ruth's birthday, the alarm had already been turned in and firemen were on their way.

The moment there was a let-up in the fire, firemen and the family were able to get inside and remove some things. Two caterpillar tractors with buckets removed the charred hay and timber to put out hot spots and better extinguish the fire. The debris was sifted through and then hauled away in the manure spreader.

This hasn't the first time the close-knit Hinton family had experienced difficult times. Ruth's husband, Kenneth, died six years ago. They were parents of seven children. Five were still at home on the farm when the Blair County farmer passed away.

That could have been a time to sell, but instead the Hintons decided to wait a year before making decision. During that time the farm continued to run smoothly. It is still the center of family life in 1984.

The 106 acres and 50 leased acres, are operated by Joe and his brother Jeff, 22, with the able assistance of Robbie, 16, and Ryan, 13.

"They do the work and I do the worrying," laughs Ruth. "The boys have done really well." Ruth adds that at times she feels pressured, but admits it is because she doesn't know enough about the farm.

Ruth grew up on the farm, but is the first to tell you that she was not deeply involved in farming with her husband. Instead she was busy raising their large family. She likes the farm and feels it is the ideal place to raise children.

The 52-year-old woman has mixed emotions about her sons farming however "You work so hard and make so little," she explains. Ruth says that the boys were not old enough when their father died to really know what they wanted. "They never complain," she smiles. "They enjoy the work."

Joe and Jeff both drive school bus for the Spring Cove School District, just like their father did for 18 years. Ruth works in the laundry at the Morrisons Cove Home in Martinsburg two days a week. She also handles the financial end of the farm.

With the generous help of others the Hintons are working at rebuilding their farm. Their faith in people helped them survive the fire and is stronger today.

The 42 cows they milk and 28 heifers and calves are housed at a neighbor's farm. The herd had been in the pasture at the time of the fire. Since that day they have done more than their share of moving around. For several Hinton brothers, from the left, Robbie, Jeff, Ryan and Joe, have worked together to hold the family dairy farm since their father died six years ago. Their cooperative efforts and the help of the Southern Blair County farm community have seen the family through a disastrous fire.

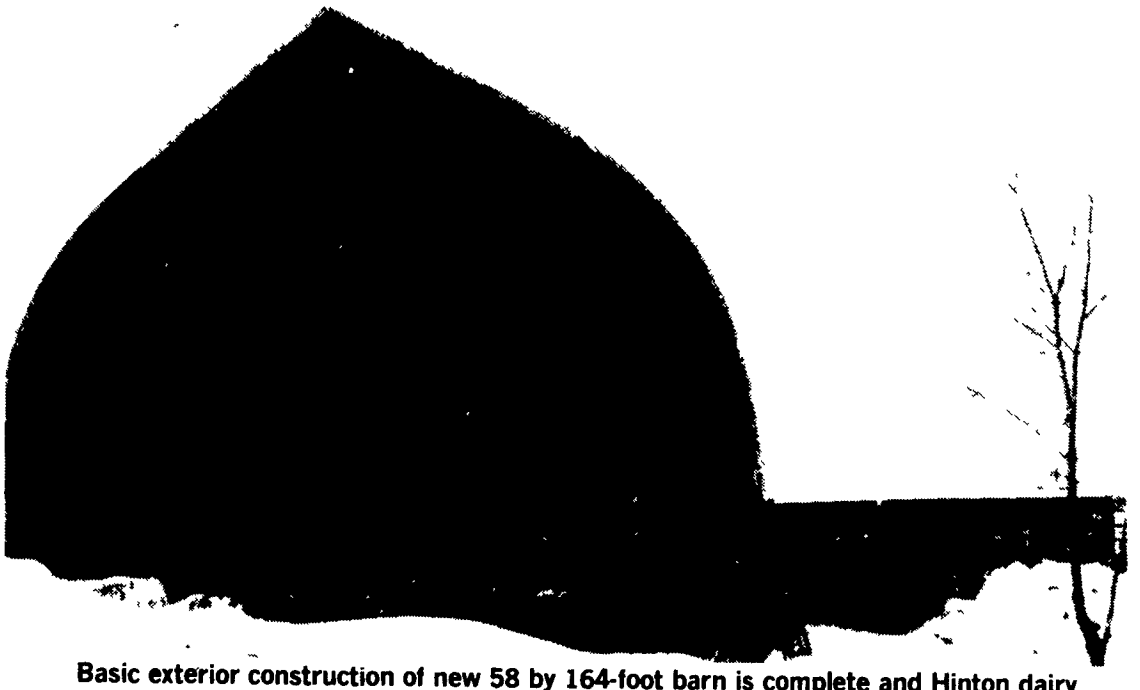
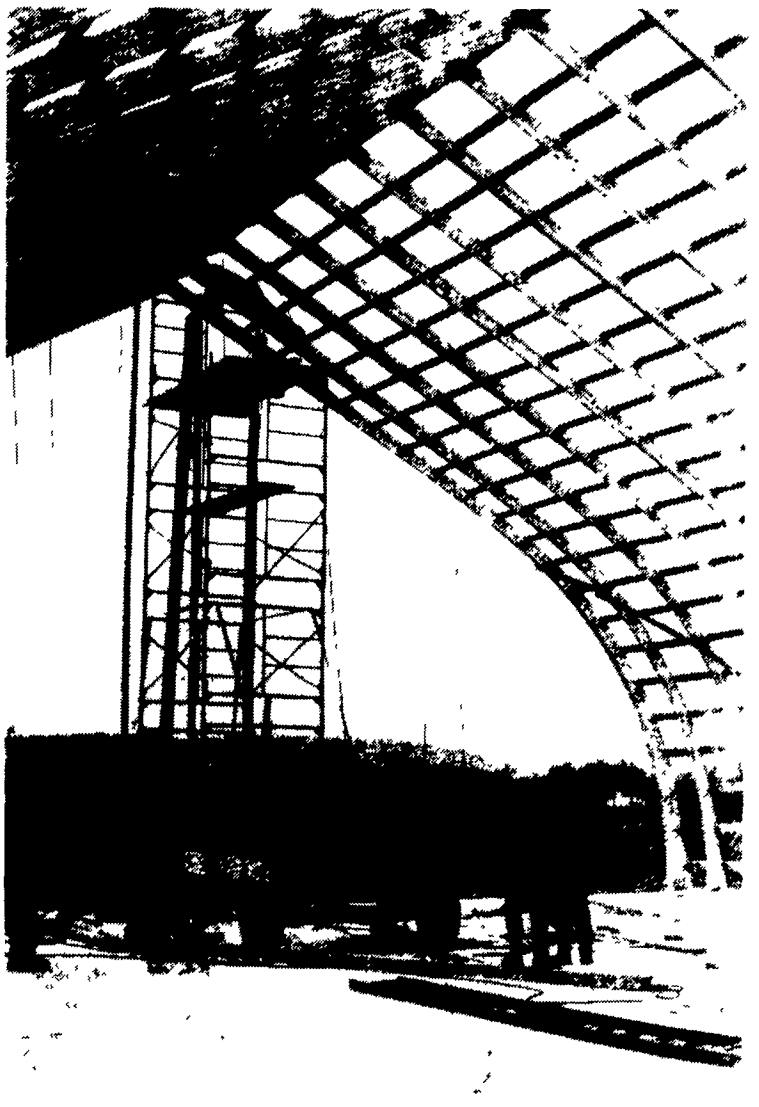
Barn raising efforts by friends and neighbors replace structure destroyed by fire on the farm of the Ruth Hinton family, Roaring Spring.



Basic exterior construction of new 58 by 164-foot barn is complete and Hinton dairy herd is expected to return to the farm this spring.



Friends and neighbors braved record cold to help with Hinton barn raising.

Magnesium variations don't affect corn yields

UNIVERSITY PARK — Farmers growing corn on high magnesium soils should apply the cheapest source of high quality lime available and not worry about the magnesium ratio of the lime.

That statement comes from the experiments at Penn State's College of Agriculture. Test sites ranged from fields low to high in soil magnesium levels with wide ranges in calcium to magnesium ratios. There were not significant differences in corn grain or silage yields among any of the treatments at any site.

Richard H. Fox, crop scientist in charge of the research, indicated maximum grain yields were obtained with magnesium saturation values as low as 1.8 percent or as high as 29 percent. When the soil magnesium content was expressed as a calcium to magnesium ratio, the range of ratios varied from 1.8 to 37.

"There is no evidence from trials in the U.S. that corn yield is depressed by high soil magnesium levels," Fox affirmed. "There is no need to add gypsum or calcitic lime to high magnesium soils in Pennsylvania to increase corn yields," he added.

At the same time, it was mentioned that some private soil test laboratories recommend that farmers apply gypsum or high calcium, calcitic lime to their soil when the soil magnesium levels are higher than specified values, or when the calcium to magnesium ratios are lower than specified values.

"It is obviously uneconomical for farmers in areas where only dolomitic lime is produced locally to import calcitic lime or apply sypsum when it does not improve yields or crop quality," Fox declared.

Maximum grain yields in the experiments ranged from 103 to 147 bushels per acre. Silage yields went from 8.0 to 10.1 tons per acre. Three experiments were carried out in 1980 at the Agronomy Research Farm of Penn State in Centre County. The testing was repeated in 1981 on one of the low magnesium sites, with no new treatments added.

Two of the test sites had low soil magnesium levels, 4.5 to 5.0 percent saturation; one was high with 20.0 percent magnesium saturation. To create a wide range of magnesium levels and calcium to magnesium rations, the soils were treated with clacitic and dolomitic lime, magnesium sulfate, and potassium chloride.

Other essential nutrients, including potassium, were either at high enough levels or were added to ensure that yields would not be affected. Assisting with the project was William P. Piekielek, senior research aide.

"We do not know how low the magnesium saturation can go before lack of magnesium begins to limit corn yields," Dr. Fox commented. "However, we suggest that the lower limit for magnesium saturation of soil should be 5 percent for corn grown for grain," he added.

On the other hand, no one knows how high the soil magnesium level can be before it damages yields, it was pointed out. Even soils limed continuously with pure dolomite should always have calcium-to-magnesium rations high enough that calcium deficiency or magnesium toxicities will not limit yields.

"This lack of yield response to wide variations in calcium-to-magnesium rations applies only to corn and probably most other agronomic crops," Fox stated.

"There are a number of horticultural crops such as apples, tomatoes, and celery where the ratio of calcium to magnesium must be kept within a narrow range to maintain optimum crop yields and quality," he added.

Similar results at the University of Wisconsin confirm Penn State findings. Wisconsin scientists observed that both corn and alfalfa can produce maximum yields over a wide range of soil calcium and magnesium levels. The Wisconsin researchers also found reports of greenhouse experiments where the soil had twice as much exchangeable magnesium as calcium. Yields were still not affected by high magnesium.

Penn State's current experiments confirm previous research showing that a magnesium saturation of 10 percent ensures that the silage will have 0.2 percent magnesium. The National Research Council recommends this level of magnesium for dairy cattle feeding. Soils maintained at this level will have adequate magnesium to prevent grass tetany.

PFA favors milk pricing change

CAMP HILL — Keith Eckel, president of the Pennsylvania Farmers' Association (PFA) said, "After examining the Sunset Review audit of the Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board we believe the report is on target in its recommendations and valid as a tool for improving the board's future role in Pennsylvania's milk industry."

The Sunset Review report was prepared by the Legislative Budget and Finance Committee.

Eckel said PFA agrees with the Sunset Review recommendations that the Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board should consider discontinuing the setting of mandatory minimum resale prices for milk.

Eckel said, "Our members adopted policy in 1982 calling for the Milk Marketing Board to eliminate control of retail sale prices. We believe retailers should have the opportunity to sell milk at prices they determine themselves. However, we also agree with the Sunset Review recommendation that milk should not be priced below the cost of production. After all, consumers can't rely on an adequate supply if dairymen and processors are forced out of business by below-cost pricing."

PFA also agrees with the Sunset Review finding that the Pa. Milk Marketing Board performs a necessary function in maintaining economic stability in the milk industry and in protecting the public's health and welfare. Eckel said, "This report reaffirms our faith in the milk board's valuable service in providing a means for the orderly marketing of Pennsylvania's milk products."

PFA also agrees with the Sunset Review finding that the Milk Producers' Security Fund is not working at the present time to protect dairymen from bankruptcies and defaults by milk dealers. PFA is currently seeking legislation to improve security fund protection.

W-L Alfalfas. The Leader in the Field.

Each W-L variety has multiple pest resistances and improved genetic qualities for consistently high yields of protein-rich, fine-stemmed, leafy alfalfa.

W-L 313 - Superior yields with high persistence. Very good resistance to Southern Anthracnose. Highly resistant to Bacterial Wilt and Fusarium Wilt. Some resistance to Phytophthora Root Rot. Use on the best alfalfa soils.

W-L 316 - Specifically bred for the Verticillium Wilt problem. Big cuttings and years of top production through its excellent Multiple Pest Resistance, excellent winter dormancy, and bred-in longevity factor.

W-L 315 - A deep green, very vigorous variety that has consistently been at the top in yield trials. Tolerance to Leaf-hopper Yellowing. Highly resistant to Bacterial Wilt, Fusarium Wilt, and Pea Aphid. Very good resistance to Southern Anthracnose, Phytophthora Root Rot and Spotted Alfalfa Aphid.

Zoning meeting on Monday

HONESDALE — Stanford M. Lembeck, Penn State Extension Service Specialist in Community Affairs, will be the speaker at an educational meeting on zoning Monday at 8 p.m. in the Knights of Columbus Hall, Rt 191, south of Honesdale.

Lembeck has been a member of the Penn State faculty since February, 1965. He assumed his present position as community housing and planning specialist in January, 1972. In that role he conducts educational workshops and assistance on planning practices for planning commissioners and local officials, and is a resource person for county Extension staff throughout Pennsylvania providing assistance and in-service education programs. He also teaches in the Graduate Regional Planning Program.

Lembeck will attempt to identify local land use issues and suggest techniques to solve these problems. In addition he will outline the provisions of a zoning ordinance. All interested persons are welcome.

Computer network need outlined at Extension banquet

HARRISBURG — The Pennsylvania Council of Cooperative Extension Associations (PCCEA) held its seventh annual Legislative Banquet at the Penn Harris Motor Inn in Camp Hill on Feb. 28. The Council sponsors the dinner to express appreciation to state legislators for their support on Pennsylvania's Cooperative Extension Service programs.

"Cooperative Extension is shifting into a new type of communication technology which consists of electronics and computers," said Samuel H. Smith, Dean of Penn State's College of Agriculture and Director of the Cooperative Extension Service.

New information systems will transform the way Extension and Penn State operate. Smith explained that technology transfer is one of the keys to greater progress for Pennsylvania agriculture and for continued success in Extension programs.

Penn State's Commonwealth appropriation request includes $2 million to establish a statewide computer network. Smith explained that this is in a category called "critical unmet needs."

This network will use microcomputers to link each of the Pennsylvania's 71 county and regional Extension offices with the main campus at University Park including all of the departments in the College of Agriculture.

"Computers are vital in supporting Extension's educational needs at the county level. This investment also will help assure the economic growth of agriculture, the state's largest industry, and the state's largest employer," Smith said.

Microcomputers in every county will provide access to computer-based information at the University Park campus for 95 percent of the state's population with just a local phone call.

The system will not only make more information available but also provide up-to-the-minute analysis possible for farmers, including such information as market and weather reports and insect and disease updates and alerts.

Microcomputers will aid accurate decision making for stuff and clientele by making it possible to access sophisticated computers at Penn State to aid decision making for home and business management like — budgeting alternatives, business expansion, and projecting farm and garden production.

"One thing that we really have going for us is the Northeast Computer Institute," said Smith. This is a five year $1.6 million Institute funded by the Kellogg Foundation and 11 Northeast land grant universities.

"Headquartered in Pennsylvania, at Penn State, the Institute is providing the expertise and the software essential to get the maximum benefits of the computer network. We are very proud that Penn State was chosen as the site for this institute," said Smith.

The dean said that the volunteer

STRAY VOLTAGE SOLUTION

The HAMMOND TINGLE VOLTAGE FILTER is a new development in the technology of stray voltage reduction.
The TINGLE VOLTAGE FILTER has recently been installed on the following dairy farms.

BEN JACKSON FARM
COLUMBIA CROSS ROADS, PA.
Before installation had 2.5 volts at peak times, this was reduced to .04 volts with installation of the Tingle Voltage Filter.

WILLIAM EICK FARM
COLUMBIA CROSS ROADS, PA.
Before installation had 3.5 volts at peak times was reduced to .14 volts with installation of the Tingle Voltage Filter.

The TINGLE VOLTAGE FILTER is safe, effective, permanent, inexpensive and are completely maintenance free.
If installed with Dairylands Stray Voltage Indicator permanently will show electrical faults before they become hazardous.

Dealers Wanted: To sell and install this fast moving, much needed product in your areas.
Qualifications: Must have complete electrical knowledge of dairy farm equipment, and electrical service entrance.

milkings following the fire the cows were next door at the farm owned by Ruth's brother, Robert Rhodes. They are now feeling at home on the farm of Harold Wareham, who quit farming several years ago. "We are very thankful that we have a place for the cows," Ruth says. Enough hay has been donated so far by other farmers to help feed the cattle.

The cows were moved on foot. Motorcyclists kept the herd together during the half mile trip. Joe and Jeff say they have tried to keep the feed and routine as consistent as possible for the animals. While production was down during all the commotion, it is now near normal.

"They picked our milk up that morning," says an amazed Ruth. The milk is shipped to Interstate and McMahon's Dairy in Altoona. The milkhouse suffered only minor damage in the fire.

This Spring everything will be moved into a new barn, on the old location and they will be back to farming at home. A couple of months after the fire friends and neighbors were busily erecting a new 58'x164' structure.

The family is looking forward to nicer weather. The concrete must be poured, along with the stanchions, as well as the milking system and wiring installed.

"We're not in a hurry downstairs because of the cold weather," comments Ruth. They considered making changes in their farming set-up, but decided to remain the same.

The farmers didn't have much time to feel sorry for themselves or wonder where to turn. While clean-up was still going on, Old Order Mennonites from the area urged the Hintons to get the blocks laid and they would handle the remainder. The foundation was put up mostly by volunteers. The Mennonites ordered all the building materials for the structure. " We didn't know where to begin," explains Ruth. Cobilt, a building supplier, also did a great job getting the ball rolling.

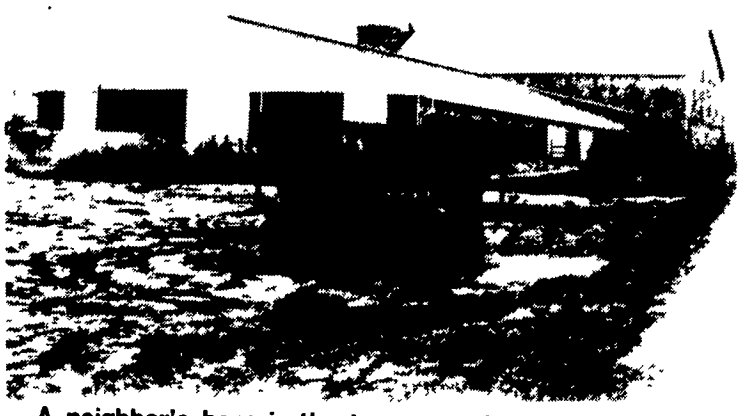
During Christmas week the word spread and the spirit of the season brought 92 volunteers for the barnraising. A slow time of year on many farms, the farmers gladly came and worked. Even record-cold temperatures failed to keep the helping hands idle.

The hungry volunteers were furnished lunch in the milkhouse. However, the second day was much colder and Ruth laughs when she remembers the 52 men crowded into her downstairs at mealtime.

Much of the food was furnished by friends and church groups, but Ruth remembers it still as a hectic time. The fire was still on her mind as the building was going on. She was also cooking, making Christmas preparations and welcoming out-of-town guests for the holidays.

The family quickly offers their appreciation for the unfailing support of the community over the past months.

Ruth sums it up by saying, "I was definitely surprised. It was like a miracle."



A neighbor's barn is the temporary home of the Hinton herd. Area farmers have also donated feed to get family through the winter.

Crop Assn. names manager

CHAMBERSBURG — Martin L. Krone, has been named Manager/Technician of the Franklin County Crop Improvement Association, according to association president, Kenneth Schoenberg.

Krone, a native of York County, received his B.S. Degree in Agronomy at Penn State in 1980. He has previously been associated with his father and brother in their dairy farming operation near Glen Rock, and has also been employed by Fertility Associates of Whiteford, Md.

In Franklin County, he will be responsible for major management decisions on more than 7,200 acres of field crops presently being grown by the 35 members of the Association.

Crop insurance outlined

HARRISBURG — Farm crops are subject to many natural risks over which producers have no control. "The drought that many farmers experienced in 1983 proved once again that no product or producer is disaster proof," says state Agriculture Secretary Penrose Hallowell.

"All Risk Crop Insurance Program has been designed to stand between crop disaster and financial disaster," Hallowell said. "It can provide the economic protection farm families need at an economic cost they can afford."

As an insurance program where the farmer participates at an annual cost, All Risk Crop Insurance gives the farmer a new and valuable management tool. With the knowledge that crop investments are protected against unavoidable losses, farmers can more safely afford to make the substantial investments it takes to produce high yields. To the extent that many farm production imputs must be bought with borrowed money, All Risk Crop Insurance provides economic security to help farmers obtain the capital they need on terms they can afford.

There have been many changes in crop insurance programs for 1984. Farmers have a greater opportunity to base yields on actual yields rather than averages. New programs for new crops are also available in some counties. Examples are: apples in Adams County; grapes in Erie; potatoes in Cambria, York and Erie; and forage in Lancaster. The regular crops of corn and wheat are the same as last year, but before farmers make a decision, Hallowell suggests, they take a look at all the programs and decide whether Crop Insurance is for them.

More information is available through local ASCS offices and the names of insurance agents that provide All Risk Crop Insurance coverage.

less the chance of develping clinical characteristics.

Infected cows show signs of weight loss although the appetite remains normal, Dr. Whitlock said, and severe diarrhea is apparent. Cows may also develop mastitis and infertility.

Determining how many cows in the herd are infected with Johne's is not easy. "If one cow has it," Dr. Whitlock said, "eight to 10 others may also be infected but not show clinical signs."

Johne's organisms are passed from one cow to the next through contaminated manure, water and feed. Those animals most susceptible are younger livestock, usually under one year of age, Dr. Whitlock said.

To prevent the spread of Johne's, Dr. Whitlock said calves should be separated from infected dams at birth. It is best to give them colostrum from an uninfected cow, he added.

Feed and water should be separated, and Dr. Whitlock cautioned that replacement heifers not be mixed with the adult herd until after one year of age. Also, separate unthrifty cows from the herd: "she's shedding millions of organisms," he said.

Currently, a cooperative research project has been coordinated by Penn State University, the University of Pennsylvania, the state Department of Agriculture and the National Animal and Disease Lab in Ames, Iowa. Through the project, the institutions hope to develop faster and more accurate tests and determine how prevelant the disease is in Pennsylvania.

The Johne's presentation by Dr. Whitlock was one of several topics concerning dairy cattle feeding programs and herd management practices discussed during the two-day event. Each day's program was highlighted by a producer panel.

Under the category of cattle feeds, Penn State Extension agronomist Elwood Hatley provided information on double cropping and alternative crops for a dry year. "The big thing about these is to make your decisions based on your own individual situation and current crop system," he said.

Hatley suggested the use of winter grains such as barley, winter wheat and rye by themselves or in combinations to serve as silage and grain feeds. "With all of these," he said, "you're looking at sources you have and how you can use them."

Silage alternatives include soybeans, sorghum or soybean-sorghum mixtures. Brassica crops serve the same purpose. These are not the only crops which can be used, Hatley said, but they are alternatives.

Darwin Braund, director of dairy and livestock research and development with Agway Inc., spoke on using alternative feeds and additives effectively and getting a better return on the feed dollar.

According to Braund, several by-product feeds are on the market today but they should be evaluated before used on the farm. Common by-products include brewer's grain, distiller's grains and liquid whey. Questioning whether by-product feeds are economical, what the nutrient and dry matter content is, and will the cow eat the feed are important steps before buying.

With the passing of the milk diversion program, Braund told the dairymen that "you better go home to see if you can profitably produce milk at $2 lower than you are now." Dairymen need to plan a feeding strategy and see if they are getting the best return for their feed dollars, he said.

Braund also provided tips on managing cows in hot weather, while Dr. Terry Blanchard, assistant professor of large animal reproduction at New Bolton Center, spoke on summer sterility problems and Stephen Spencer, Penn State Extension dairy specialist reviewed summer mastitis problems. Robert Eberhart, Penn State professor of veterinary science, explained the nature and causes of high somatic cell counts.

Two producer panels were held during Lancaster Dairy Days, one each on Monday and Tuesday. Participating in Monday's panel, "How I Feed Cows for Profit," were Joe Garber, Willow Street, James Hershey, Elizabethtown, Robert Kauffman, Peach Bottom, and Keith Zurin, Mount Joy.

Tuesday's panel members were Gary Akers, Quarryville, Donald Trimble, Peach Bottom, and D. Lamar Witmer, Manheim. These dairymen, who all received somatic cell counts of 100,000 or less, shared their managment practices on keeping cell counts down.

In addition to the speakers, commercial exhibitors were on hand to share the lattest in dairy farm feed, equipment and housing.

Answering questions on feeding programs for the dairy herd are, from left, Lancaster County dairymen Robert Kauffman, Keith Zurin, James Hershey, Joe Garber and Glenn Shirk, moderator.

York Holstein breeders hear dry cow tips

BY JOYCE BUPP

Staff Correspondent

YORK — The last thing any dry cow needs is a soggy wet, bacteria-laden pen somewhere out behind the dairy barn, with a steady diet of weed-stem hay and several scoops daily of fattening concentrates.

To further "mess up" a dry cow, try drying up her production by tapering off, or milking out every few days, and then finally turn her out without bothering to give any type of dry treatment.

Those are surefire methods of almost guaranteeing a steady flow of problem fresheners and meat-auction cows, according to a dry cow management presentation heard Tuesday by York Holstein breeders.

In the setting of a brand new dry cow and maternity facility on the Smyser family farm, East Berlin Road, Penn State dairy specialist Dick Adams gave a thorough rundown on the do's and don'ts of caring for the dairy cow in her "rest" period.

"Periodic milking out of the udder while drying off a cow only prolongs the agony," admonishes Adams, who advocates picking a day to stop milking the cow and then not milking her again. He stressed, however, that extreme care must be taken in watching the udder for "blowouts" or inflammation flare-ups, then treating immediately and thoroughly if necessary.

Cows in their dry period need adequate levels of both protein and calcium, without overfeeding either nutrient. Too little of either will result in the cow's drawing the needed nutrient from her own body supplies, eventually weakening her system which should be gearing up for the calving and production stresses ahead. A three to five pound grain feeding per day will help maintain proper acidic levels in the rumen to utilize the minerals in forages and sustain healthy levels of digestive microflora.

Selenium and Vitamin E are important trace elements since deficiencies of these can leave the animal susceptible to infections, and unable to produce protective antibiodies.

In fact, Adams says the dry cow requires two to three times the normal selenium levels necessary in the system of a milking animal, and can become selenium deficient in as brief a period as three weeks if the needed level is not maintained in her body.

Two other vital elements are salt and Vitamin A. Salt needs can be met with about 1.5 pounds per hundred weight of feed Up to 30,000 units of supplemental Vitamin A, or one million units injectable, may be needed in the cow's system over the duration of the dry period.

Neither salt nor minerals should

Lancaster soil fertility meeting on Wednesday

TERRE HILL — The Eastern Lancaster County Adult Farmer Program is sponsoring a Soil Fertility Meeting on Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. at the Union Grove School. Speaker for the meeting will be Dale Baker, agonomist and soil scientist from Penn State.

Baker will discuss the results of research from over 20 Eastern Lancaster County farms where soil nitrogen levels were studied. This research is providing valuable information for the Chesapeake Bay Study which is looking into nitrate and phosphate pollution from agricultural and other sources.

The key to the research is a new laboratory test that enables soil scientists to measure soil nitrogen levels. This test is still in the experimental stages but will be a valuable tool for scientists and farmers when perfected. The soil nitrogen test, taken before planting and after harvest, used in connection with crop tissue analysis, yield data, and U.S. Geologic Survey ground and surface water analysis data, can provide real answers to how much nitrate pollution agriculture is really causing.

The test has real management advantages for farmers since they will be able to more accurately calculate the nitrogen level of their fields after they have applied manure. Thus, they can avoid surplus applications if no additional nitrogen is needed and can still apply more nitrogen as a side-dressing if more is needed. The addition can be done at a time when the crop can make more efficient use of a smaller amount of nitrogen, reducing excessive applications that could enter ground and surface water and be a source of pollution.

All interested person are invited to attend. Farmers needing Pesticide Applicators License Re-Certification can receive training credit at this meeting. The Union Grove School is located near Terre Hill on route 625, 2 miles north of Rt. 23. For additional information contact the Adult Farmer office at (215) 445-5041.

Check Your Fruits and Vegetables

MEDIA — One of the points of laboring so hard in your garden all summer is to savor the flavor in the icy days of winter. But if you haven't been careful about storage temperatures you may be in for an unpleasant surprise says C.R. Bryan, Jr., Delaware County Extension agent.

About this time of year some of your bounty may have begun to spoil and ruin the rest. Improper storage temperature and humidity are the greatest causes for storage failure. Most root crops should be kept as near 32° F as possible, without freezing, and under rather high humidity.

Potatoes can be kept at slightly higher temperatures and moderate humidity. Winter squash will keep well in temperatures of about 55° F in a moderately dry area. Dried seeds, light beans, peas, and onions should be stored in a cool and dry location. Apples are probably the easiest fruit to store and will keep well if kept as near 32° F as possible in an area with moderate humidity.

ads. The auctioneers are then given four weeks to comply prior to the initiation of possible action against them.

Continued non-compliance can result in a formal hearing before the Board that could lead to revocation of a license and-or a $50.00 fine.

The new law also requires the licensing of auction houses and companies for the first time in Pennsylvania.

If an auction house or company is owned by a licensed auctioneer, it only need be properly registered with the board. But if either an auction house or company is owned by other than a licensed auctioneer, it must secure a license from the board.

"We're receiving applications for licenses from auction houses we had never even heard of before," said Glowacki.

The law defines an auction house as:

"An established place of business, including but not limited to an auction barn, a sale barn and a sale pavilion, where two or more auctions are held within any 12-month period and where representations are regularly made that property is sold at auction. The term does not include premises where isolated sales are conducted by an auctioneer or auctioneer apprentice and which are used primarily for purposes other than auctions or sales at auction."

In another change, an applicant for an apprentice auctioneer license no longer need take a law exam to get the license.

Qualifications for an auctioneer license state:

"To qualify for an auctioneer license, a person must have passed the prescribed examination after having:

"Served an apprenticeship as a licensed apprentice auctioneer for a period of not less than two years in the employ of a qualified auctioneer and participated for compensation in no less than 30 auctions; or

"Successfuly completed a prescribed course of study in auctioneering of at least 20 credit hours at a school approved by the Board."

There are approximately 1,800 active auctioneers licensed in the state.

WHAT IS "BY-PASS PROTEIN"?

By-Pass Protein is protein from ingredients which contain high levels of protein which will pass thru the rumen without being broken down to reach the lower digestive track for more efficient digestion and assimilation.

BY-PASS BLEND 500 With MG-K Is A Product From CARNATION RESEARCH

FEATURES:

1. Balance of protein from three sources of by-pass protein plus the soybean meal when added to make concentrate.
2. Protein from ingredients that have a high % of by-pass properties.
3. Provides the dairyman with a fortified product with by-pass properties and vitamin, mineral fortification in one package.
4. Safety and convenience in remixing.
5. Proven research of Carnation nutrition.
6. Fortified with the chelated minerals, potassium and magnesium.

BENEFITS:

1. Provides a better blend of amino acids than a single source of protein will provide.
2. Protein passes thru rumen without being destroyed thereby moves to abomasum for more efficient digestion and assimilation.
3. One protein product provides the by-pass proteins and the vitamin/mineral fortification thus reducing inventory dollars and space.
4. Very simple to remix with 1500# soybean meal. Limits possibility of errors and provides a protein supplement balanced in amino acids and vitamin/mineral content.
5. Carnation has saved the customer an expensive trial and error period with this product thru research.
6. Potassium is the most abundant mineral in milk. Chelated minerals are much like by-pass proteins in that they also resist destruction in the ruminant and pass on to the small intestine where more efficient assimilation occurs.

ALL CARNATION DAIRY FEEDS CONTAIN HIGH LEVELS OF BY-PASS PROTEIN

Carnation By-Pass Blend-500 (fortified with MG-K) is a special formula of these protein sources that have high % of "By Pass" Protein properties blended with vitamins and minerals so that when mixed with standard sources of Protein (such as soybean meal) will provide a protein supplement completely fortified with vitamins and minerals. The MG-K (magnesium-potassium) which have been chelated to an amonio acid (chemically bonded compound). Chelation to amino acids insures that the total magnesium and potassium will be absorbed in the lower intestine and not destroyed in other digestive processes.

When By-Pass Blend-500 is blended with 48 or 44 soybean meal you get a protein supplement 41% or 38% in both cases containing 25000 units of Vitamin A, 8325 units Vitamin D3 and 25 units of Vitamin E per pound.

Avian flu update given at Lancaster Poultry Day

BY LAURA ENGLAND

LANCASTER — The Lancaster County Poultry Progress Days held Thursday at the Farm and Home Center didn't have the kind of turnout extension agent Jay Irwin expected, but this, he said, reflects on the avian flu situation which has plagued the county since October.

In his update, Irwin said that the state's avian flu outbreak is now the worst ever to hit the United States in the number of birds killed. As of Tuesday, 11.9 million birds had been depopulated. This includes birds in New Jersey, Maryland and Virginia which have been linked to the Pennsylvania outbreak.

The state record surpasses that set by the California Newcastle outbreak 10 years ago. During this epidemic, 11.8 million birds were killed.

On a more positive note, Irwin said the New Jersey quarantine had been lifted and "that is a great recovery." Last week, the Franklin County quarantine was lifted, and it is likely that Adams County will be the next to follow, Irwin said.

"I look at this as positive word that less flocks are going down," he said.

To date, 47 premises have been repopulated. Despite two cases in which replacement flocks became infected - one the result of a computer error - Irwin said the repopulation effort is going well. Some poultrymen, he said, have commented that they have never had healthier flocks.

This stems from poultrymen taking greater efforts to keep their premises clean. "We're seeing cleaner premises than ever before," Irwin said, "and this is a benefit if there is a benefit to this situation."

Irwin also said the Pa. Poultry Federation is continuing its efforts to obtain additional indemnity funds to cover fair market value. He commended the association for its support of and work with area poultry farmers.

State Police Trooper Romaine Edwards explains how farmers can protect themselves from increasing rural crimes.

Another problem facing poultry farmers and all farmers, in general, is rural crime. The number of rural crimes is increasing although the overall crime rate is decreasing, according to State Police Trooper Romaine Edwards.

One of five guest speakers, Trooper Edwards said "it's getting really tough for criminals in the city, so they are moving to the country."

"They find it's a real haven out there," she said. "They can get what they want in the country as well in the city."

Part of the problem, Edwards said, is that farmers don't expect crime and don't take precautions against theft Be prepared, she stressed, and keep control over one particular factor - opportunity

In a slide show presented by Trooper Edwards, farmers were shown ways to make their farms less susceptible to crime. Prevention is the key, the film stressed, and farmers should consider locking doors, using night lighting, securing windows and marking property with an identification number.

The latter, called "Operation Identification," helps prevent crime, aids in prosecution of criminals and is the best identification method to recover stolen property, the film said. The method involves engraving the driver's license number or a number provided by the state on all property.

To do this, an electric engraver can be borrowed, free of charge, from the state police. Crime watch stickers are distributed when a person brings in a couple of items he or she has marked These stickers, Edwards said, are to be placed on doors and windows. They warn the thief that the house is under operation identification and deter the would-be crime, she said.

Property crime, which is the most prevelant, can be prevented, Edwards said, if farmers take the necessary precautions. She urged those interested in farm crime prevention to contact the state or local police for additional information and ideas.

Also on the day's program were computer specialist and former Lebanon County Extension agent Newton Bair, Penn State professor of agriculture engineering Robert Graves, Lancaster County Extension agent Arnold Lueck and Penn State Extension family specialist James VanHorn.

Bair addressed the topic of on-farm computers and said they are tools that farmers can make use of to be better managers. "A computer can't make a good manager out of a poor one," he said, "but if you're already a good one, they can help ease the management of the operation."

Energy conservation in the poultry house was the topic of Grave's presentation. By outlining the energy needs of a poultry operation, Graves said more can be done to minimize costs and maximize receipts versus saving energy. He presented information on the latest in poultry house equipment such as fans, lighting, insulation and ventilation.

Update information on poultry pest control was given by Arnold Lueck. He suggested the use of integrated pest management, looking at the overall situation before deciding on a solution. The information qualified those with pest application licenses to renew their licenses.

Stress, which has become a greater problem in the farm community, was outlined by VanHorn. Stating that "not one person could say he does not have stress," VanHorn said stress on the farm can appear as friend or foe. His talk will be appear in next week's Family Living section.

Del. names dept. heads

NEWARK, DEL. — The University of Delaware College of Agricultural Sciences has announced the appointment of two new department chairs, effective Feb. 1. Gerald L. Cole has been appointed head of the Department of Agricultural and Food Economics, replacing Raymond C. Smith. Paul P. Burbutis heads the Department of Entomology and Applied Ecology, replacing Dewey M. Caron.

Gerald Cole

Burbutis is an economic entomologist with special interest in biological control of insects. He came to the department in 1958 and had devoted considerable time to studying the biology and control of crop pests-particularly the European corn borer. In recent years he has focused his control studies on parasites of the European corn borer, wheat stem saw fly, Japanese beetle, and gypsy moth. He teaches economic entomology, biologic control of insects, and systematics of immature insects.

Cole, a specialist in economic development, joined the college in 1963. He teaches basic agricultural economics, agricultural policy, and agricultural and economic development. Most of his research has been in the area of resource economics, including land use and the economic impact of tourism in rural areas. He was on sabbatical leave with the U.S. Forest Service from Aug. 1, 1983 through Jan. 31, 1984. Currently he is working on a regional agricultural experiment station research project involving rural land use and taxation.

Paul Burbutis

Smith will teach, serve as experiment station statistician, and carry on his existing experiment station research. Caron also will continue to teach, and carry out research and extension programs.

support is a unique aspect of Extension. It is the volunteers who sit on County Executive Boards that are the real strength of Extension's volunteer support.

"The numbers tell a great deal," he said. In 1983, more than 20,000 Pennsylvania volunteers conducted 50,000 meetings. Three-quarters of a million people attended these meetings.

This is in addition to the meetings conducted by Pennsylvania Extension staff that were attended by almost 1.4 million people.

Chester Heim, Deputy Secretary, Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, representing Governor Thornburgh and Penrose Hallowell, Pennsylvania Secretary of Agriculture welcomed the legislators. He presented a letter from Governor Thornburgh to PCCEA president Mary Grim. The letter said that Pennsylvania agriculture is growing and the Extension service is a critical element to the continued success of Pennsylvania agriculture.

Mrs. Grim reminded the legislators that the delegates were volunteers. Despite the adverse weather conditions, a record number of 200 delegates and 105 state senators and representatives attended the banquet.

The legislators and delegates saw a five-minute film featuring Carlton Groff, a Lancaster County farmer. Groff explained how Extension has helped his farm business. He relies heavily on Penn State publications and Extension specialists to make agricultural and business decisions.

Betsy Ogborn, 4-H public speaking contest winner from Somerset County, spoke on how Extension has helped her. She said that through 4-H she has had the opportunity to meet many people, travel and make friends all over the country, and broaden her understanding of the world.

Lancaster County Extension Director, Jay W. Irvin, explained how Extension reacts in an emergency, such as the avian influenza epidemic.

Extension honors Wargo

Rep. Joseph Wargo, of Olyphant, was honored in Harrisburg by the Lackawanna County Cooperative Extension Association with a certificate of recognition on the occasion of his retirement for his support of Extension.

PFA legislative visit

that two-thirds of agriculture does not receive direct support from the government," Eckel said, "Livestock and poultry sectors, a wide range of fruits, vegetables, specialty crops — they're all subject to risk without direct government support."

In addition, he noted, "Agriculture and farm life have changed drastically in the last few decades and will continue to change. That's another aspect that should be part of our consideration in the development of a new farm program law."

Basic questions concerning the government's role in supporting agriculture, such as how much support is desirable and at what cost, must also be answered in deciding new farm programs, Eckel told the gathering. The farm program's effect on foreign trade should be considered too, said Eckel.

Turning to other issues concerning agriculture, Eckel said PFA members believe the federal deficit is too big and the deficit proposed in the 1985 federal budget is inexcusable.

"Let's freeze expenditures until we get a fix in place to cut runaway government spending," Eckel said, "The fix I'm talking about does not come from the hypodermic needle in the form of new taxes. It comes from careful consideration of cutting unnecessary fat from the federal budget."

One scheduled tax increase which affects farmers is the July 1 hike in the heavy truck use tax mandated in the Surface Transportation Act of 1982. Eckel said PFA is pressing for an exemption for farmer-owned and farmer-used trucks which are not for hire and used mostly for local hauling.

Water has become an issue in Washington this year, Eckel noted. Amendments are being proposed for the Clean Water Act and the Safe Drinking Water Act.

Under the Clean Water Act, Eckel said, "Funds should be provided for demonstration projects to educate farmers about the adverse effects of agricultural runoff into our streams." In enactment of Clean Water Act amendments, Eckel said, "We are also asking for a reasonable approach to policing the quality of drinking water for both human and animal consumption, but also recognizing traditional water rights."

For the upcoming election year, Eckel said, PFA is encouraging its members to take an active role in every level of the political system. He announced that PFA's 54 county farmers' associations would be conducting a precinct-by-precinct voter registration campaign to enroll at least 6,000 new voters.

"We plan to be involved in the legislative process from selecting candidates to promoting our members' ideas with the elective governing bodies," Eckel said, "We want our voices heard and our wishes known to the leaders of this big and wonderful country."

NEDCO increases dues

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — The Northeast Dairy Cooperative Federation (NEDCO) delegate body has approved increases in both membership dues and member equity.

The delegates, representing NEDCO's 3,300 cooperative members, has approved the co-op's first dues increase since the early 1970's and voted to review its dues position every two years. NEDCO dues had been 10 cents per hundredweight and were hiked by 5 cents per hundredweight.

President Edward McNamara explained that the increase was necessary to build operating revenues which had fallen behind because of the government's failure to increase the make allowance on milk going into manufacturing.

If the "make allowance" (what the plant is allowed for manufacturing) doesn't move up along with manufacturing costs, you soon reach a deficit position in your operations, he said. He added that the make allowance has been frozen at $1.22 per hundredweight since 1979 while costs of manufacturing powder and butter have risen a minimum of 5 percent per year.

This has caused hundreds of thousands of dollars in plant losses over the 4-year span, said McNamara.

The delegates also voted to raise equity participation of 20 cents per hundredweight until a level of 40 cents is reached on an average year's milk production, payable at 5 cents per hundredweight. This level will be reviewed annually.

Pa. to exhibit at international food show

HARRISBURG — State Agriculture Secretary Penrose Hallowell, just returned from an export trade mission to the Middle East, is now setting Pennsylvania sights on a four-day international trade show here at home.

The United States International Food Show (USIFS), April 15-18 in New York city, should attract 600 exhibitors and about 15,000 trade visitors from around the world. Hallowell, president of the Eastern United States Agricultural and Food Export Council (EUSAFEC) which sponsors the show, says it represents an excellent opportunity for Pennsylvania firms to grow with the marketplace.

"My experiences in the Middle East last month made it clear that new doors are opening for sales of Pennsylvania products in international markets," he said. "But it was also obvious that we must be active, imaginative and tough to survive and expand our food exports."

"The Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture has contracted for a large, well-placed pavilion at the USIFS, and a number of state firms have taken advantage of the space that is available. To date, the department and 15 other Pennsylvania firms and organizations have agreed to offer a wide array of state food products," Hallowell said.

Among the Pennsylvania exhibitors at the show are: Colonial Beef Company; E.B. Evans Corporation; Empire Kosher Poultry, Inc.; Ina Clark, Inc.; Penn Best (PFA); Reist Seed Company; Charles G. Summers, Jr./Hanover Brands, Inc.; Supergreen, Inc.; Universal Trading Company; Winmix, Inc.; E.W. Knauss & Son, Inc.; Simon Candy Company; S & Honey Company; Pennsylvania Dutch Birch Beer; and Penn Dutch Cookie Company. Hallowell said a limited amount of space is still available for potential exhibitors.

"International conditions have caused the value of U.S. agriculture and food exports to decline in recent years, but opportunities remain," Hallowell said. "Our farmers and food industries must work hard to promote sales abroad as part of the normal marketing channel and to expand food product exports. Shows like the USIFS with huge numbers of interested buyers in one place, give potential exporters a chance to make thousands of contacts, develop trade leads, and hopefully, to land orders for future sales, all at a minimum cost to the exhibitor," he said.

Hallowell noted that buyer attendance at this second USIFS should be boosted by the success of the 1982 show and by the work of the USDA's Foreign Agricultural Service and The Andry Montgomery Group which have publicized the show around the world. "Many buyers schedule at least one trip to the U.S. each year, with New York a major stop," he said. "Knowledge that USISF will be held in April, has enabled buyers to plan accordingly.

More information on exhibiting at the USIFS and rates is available by contacting Gretchen Anderson Vreeland in the Department's Bureau of Agricultural Development at 717-783-8460.

Md. Crop Assn. planning headquarters

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — After nearby 80 years of existence, the Maryland Crop Improvement Association is negotiating for its first permanent headquarters building and warehouse. And it hopes, by the end of the year, to hire its first paid secretary-treasurer on a part-time basis.

These ambitions were highlights of the president's report during the association's 77th annual meeting last week in the Tidewater Inn at Easton.

The report was made by outgoing president, Edwin J. Hevner of Seaford, Del. Hevner is assistant manager of the Delmarva area seed and farm supply warehouse at Seaford for Southern States Cooperative, Inc.

If present plans materialize, Hevner said, the new Maryland Crop Improvement Association headquarters building and warehouse will be located at the Wye Research and Education Center near Queenstown, on Maryland's Eastern Shore. The center is operated by the University of Maryland's Agricultural Experiment Station, headquartered in College Park.

Since its founding in 1906, the crop association has had close ties with the University of Maryland. Its official purposes and aims include cooperation with the university's College of Agriculture, Agricultural Experiment Station and Cooperative Extension Service — particularly with its agronomy and horticulture departments — in improving Maryland crops.

The association also cooperates with the state Department of Agriculture and its seed certification program.

At last week's annual meeting, the MCIA presented a $2,000 check to two agronomy research workers from the University of Maryland at College Park. The money is to be divided equally between research work on soybean and small grains. Similar checks have been presented at each of the last four or five annual meetings of the association.

Dale A. Morris of North Laurel (Howard county) received the MCIA service award for 1983. Morris is a seed certification specialist for the Maryland state Department of Agriculture, headquartered at Annapolis.

During its business session, the association elected three new directors for three-year terms. They are: Gene W. Mullinix of Lisbon (Howard county); Robert T. Jarboe of Leonardtown (St. Marys county) and Donald D. Littleton of Mardela Springs (Wicomico county).

At a meeting afterward, the board of directors elected two Talbot county residents as new officers. They are Robert E. Shaw, president, and Charles Lyons, Jr., vice-president, both of Easton. B. Frank Adkins of Hebron (Wicomico county) was re-elected secretary-treasurer.

The new MCIA president is vice-president and sales manager for Jaspers, Inc., a home garden and farm supply company located in Easton.

Honors announced at Butler Holstein banquet

BY BARBARA RADER
Staff Correspondent

PROSPECT — Butler County Holstein Club recently held their annual buffet-style banquet at Garden Gate Restaurant, Prospect. Howard Halstead, president, conducted the afternoon business meeting, highlighting the youth achievements. Each Butler County 4-H member "delighted" the audience by reporting on their past years project work.

Jean Kummer, 13-year old daughter of Lee and the Rev. Rosalynn Kummer, Evans City, was cited the Butler County Holstein Girl. A junior Holstein member for five years, she has raised four registered Holsteins on the Lehearth family farm. A five-year member of the county dairy club she was selected the 1983 Outstanding Junior Member. Active in the club's activities she's also quite familiar with the show ring.

Five junior holstein members were recognized for their milk/fat records. Diane Hogg, Slippery Rock, had the top two-year-old fat record of 663 with "Altwi Optimist Happy Nicole" and the three-year-old top milk record of 21,178 with "Altwi Star Happy Stacey." "Nicole" produced 16,966 lbs. of milk with "Stacey" making 665 of butterfat, both in 305 days.

"Neely-Farms Topper Cotton", owned by Harold Rader Jr., Connoquenessing, took the two-year-old milk record with 17,435 in 305 days. Taking second in the fat of 572. Gary Wible, Butler, received the top three-year-old fat record of 722 with "Wible Farm Petty Abbey." She was second in milk production with 20,768.

Lona Rader, Connoquenessing, took both honors of milk/fat in the four-year-old competition with "Rader Bootmaker Lucille". Her completed record was 19,979 of milk and 677 butterfat in 305 days.

"Renault Joy Exceprion Jackie", owner Jackie Reno, Valencia, was the top five-year-old winner. In 292 days, she produced 15,669 of milk and 601 of butterfat, receiving both milk/fat honors.

Wendell Smith, Butler, was honored by Doug Hershey, of the Penna. Holstein staff, receiving the 1983 membership service award in the state for retaining sixteen new members.

Two directors were elected to each serve three year terms. Bradley Cooper, Slippery Rock and Wendell Smith, retained the position.

Directors appointed the following as officers and committee chairman: President, George Dean, Chicora; Vice President, Norman Graham, Connoquenessing; Secretary/Treasurer, John Bahme, Zelienople; Youth Director, Graham; Show Chairman, David Leslie, Connoquenessing; Sales Representative, Ken Scheidemantle, Harmony; Sale of Stars Chairman, Leroy Hogg, Slippery Rock; and State Representative is Lee Kummer, Evans City.

County Agent, Robert Rugaber announced the Twilight meeting set for Aug. 1 at Ro-Haven Farm, George and Peggy Dean, Chicora. Dairy tour on April 3 to Washington County is in progress.

Lee Kummer, state representative, gave few remarks on state association and concerning the new milk promotion program with the local McDonald franchise chains.

Doug Hershey presenting "membership service award" to Wendell Smith.

Jean Kummer being congratulated by Howard Halstead, club president.

disease, just come in contact with the saliva," he adds.

A bill introduced in the House late last Fall by Franklin County legislator Rep. Terry Punt would make rabies vaccinations mandatory for dog licensing, with a $500 fine levied against owners of unlicensed canines.

That bill, says Rep. Punt, came into being after discussion with individuals, animal-related groups and farmers who expressed concern over the high rate of rabies infections last year in Franklin County and surrounding areas.

House Bill 1700 as introduced would establish county clinics where pet owners could bring their pets for at-cost vaccinations, assist in the cost of injections for individuals deemed at high risk to rabies in their profession, and set up statewide programs for handling rabies reports and confirmation informatin.

Amendments and rewrites are anticipated as the bill moves through channels, Rep. Punt notes, including one that could give the Secretary of Health the option to concentrate resources on target areas where rabies problems arise.

Hearings on H.B. 1700 are scheduled for March 28 and 29.

A few isolated cases of rabies were confirmed last year in the state in large farm animals.

In one case, according to BAI's Dr. Cable, a racoon walked into a milking parlor and bit a dairy cow on the leg. In another instance, a raccoon bit two cows as they entered a barn.

"Rabies causes a lot of fear and apprehension because people just don't know much about the disease," he says. "The virus is passed in the saliva of an infected animal and can enter the body through a break in the skin, or at the eyes."

Symptoms of rabies do not necessarily follow that classic idea of an animal foaming at the mouth. Instead, infected animals may appear very dull, or may show extremely abnormal behaviour, such as a nocturnal type wantering near buildings in mid-day.

Dr. Cable cites instances of wild animals reported to be coming within the range of dogs or entering doghouses or other outbuildings from which they normally shy away.

With the approach of warmer weather, health officials fear escalating rabies reports, as cattle and horses are pastured, pets roam more widely, and the human populace takes to the outdoors.

They caution, repeatedly, against panic, and suggest that vaccinating domestic pets is one of the best preventive measures against rabies that can be taken.

According to the state vet, rabies is a seven-to-ten year cyclic disease, jumping periodically from species to species. He recounts a massive outbreak in Pennsylvania during the 1940's with about a thousand reported cases of rabies infections in dogs. Following a vigorous vaccination campaign, the epidemic subsided.

During the 1950's another rabies problem centered on the Commonwealth's fox population.

In the 1970's, areas of the South began reporting rabid racoons, the beginning of the epidemic now posing a threat to Pennsylvania, after moving north about one hundred miles yearly.

Rabies outbreaks in Virginia reached a peak in 1982, when 745 cases were reported. Last year, Virginia's cases total 564.

In neighboring Maryland, the 152 cases in 1982 mushroomed to 717 cases during 1983, with signs this year pointing to a dropping rate of reports.

Joan Lewis, a spokesman for the Maryland Department of Health and Mental Hygiene, explains that the state's rabies policy focuses primarily on prevention and education.

Maryland state law requires that all dogs receive rabies vaccinations, and numerous local jurisidictions require similar protection for cats. A public education drive on rabies awareness includes materials put into school to help children understand why wild animals must not be handled.

Anytime a rabies case is suspected, the head of the suspect animal must be sent to a state or state-approved laboratory for testing.

While testing on suspect cases in Maryland does continue, Lewis emphasizes that it is not being done unnecessarily. Only suspicious animals that have had human contact are tested, not every animal picked up from along the roadside.

York agent Dobrosky echoes that Maryland policy, noting that the state labs would be overwhelmed with testing every dead animal found along the road. Only animals under suspect should be reported and tested.

Only a few farm animal rabies cases were found during Maryland's epidemic peak period, most of them cows that had been bitten by raccoons.

A new vaccine for rabies protection in large animals was just recently approved for use in the U.S. by the Food and Drug Administration. Distributed by the Pittman-Moore drug firm at Washington Crossing, N.J., the vaccine is produced at the Merieux Laboratory in Georgia, a division of the Merieux Institute in Lyon, France.

Used for many years in Europe, the rabies vaccine was initially approved for use on cats and dogs about a year ago, but just recently won USDA's approval for vaccinating horses, cattle and sheep.

While local vets have seen a marked increase in requests for vaccinations on cats and dogs, large animal vaccinations have been minimal.

Livestock owners are urged to seek professional help immediately if they have reason to suspect a rabies problem with an animal acting unduly aggressive, or markedly different from its usual behavior, and to inform their attending veterinarian of any rabies suspicions.

Extreme care is also recommended in disposing of any suspect dead animals, since rabies virus is so readily transmissible through open wounds to the skin.

For their own protection, some local veterinarians and clinic staffers have undergone the new human rabies protection vaccine program, which consists of three injections given at two-week intervals. Since a vial of that vaccine is adequate to treat eight persons at one time, and must be used immediately, some vets have joined forces with others in setting up programs for protecting themselves and their employees.

New protection and treatment drugs are less expensive and considerably less painful than medications available in the past.

NIR to be displayed

This infrared scanner and computer will be displayed for the first time March 22 and 23 during the National Alfalfa Hay Quality Testing Workshop at the O'Hare/Kennedy Holiday Inn, Chicago. The scanner and computer determine in a few minutes the feeding quality of forage or grain. The workshop will seek adoption of national standards for testing alfalfa hay, using this equipment developed at Penn State in a process known as Near Infrared Reflectance. Penn State technician Mahlon E. Fetzger enters a pulverized alfalfa sample into the infrared scanner.

Tobacco fee hiked

WASHINGTON, D.C. — As a condition for price support on 1984-crop cigar-binder types 51 (broadleaf) and 52 (Havana seed) tobaccos grown in Connecticut and Massachusetts, producers must agree to contribute 10 cents per pound to a no-net-cost account on all sales of these tobaccos, a U.S. Department of Agriculture official said today.

The 10-cents-per-pound contributions ensure the tobacco price support program is operated at no net cost to taxpayers as required by the No Net Cost Tobacco Program Act of 1982, according to Everett Rank, administrator of USDA's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

The 3 cents per pound contributed last year by producers of Connecticut Valley types 51 and 52 tobaccos was not enough to cover expected losses from disposition of the 1982 and 1983 crops, because of the large quantity of tobacco placed under Commodity Credit Corporation loan in 1983, Rank said.

Also, Rank said, for types 51 and 52 tobacco placed under CCC price support loan in 1984, an additional 10 cents per pound will be deducted by the Conn-Mass Tobacco Cooperative, Incorporated, in Holyoke, Mass., to cover the cooperative's overhead costs.

Dry cow tips

be overfed, cautions the dairy specialist, since that can result in udder edema problems. Individuals prone to edema, or udder swelling may be helped by administering diuretics or fluid reduction medications. Some types of diuretics, however will reduce the cow's appetite.

Fresh cows should always be checked for mastitis infections, says, Penn State dairy specialist Dick Adams, who demonstrates use of the California Mastitis Test sample paddle in udder infection control at York County barn meeting.

Adams recommends maintaining the dry cow feed ration right up to freshening, when grain can be upped to one percent of body weight, then gradually increased as the cow will take it.

Dry matter needs for the first two weeks of freshening are critical and should be fed at the level of about 2.2 percent of body weight. Overfeeding of grains or concentrates lessens the cow's appetite for forages and cuts her intake of necessary dry matter.

While dry cows should not have a steady diet of hay nearly void of nutrient value, it is just as unwise, says Adams, to feed top grade alfalfa hay. Best quality alfalfa hay can be too rich in nutrients, and can lead to problems with displaced abomasums, or twisted stomachs, following calving.

Dairymen should avoid using the same box stall areas for calving and for dry cow care. An estimated 80 percent of all mastitis cases can be traced back to the dry period, and under the stress of calving, a cow's reproductive and mammary systems can readily pick up bacteria from dry cows housed previously in the same area.

As calving is imminent. Adams urges dairymen to wash and disinfect the freshening cow's hindquarters, as one simple precaution against bacteria entering the reproductive tract or unnecessarily contaminating the newborn. Udder and teats should receive the same sanitation procedures.

"Colostrum isn't important if the calf gets dirt and manure in the first mouthful," warns the dairy specialist.

Following calving, he further recommends that the cow be offered a drink of warm water, to aid in maintaining the circulatory system performance and help prevent the cow going into shock. Even in warm weather, this simple procedure can help lessen calving stress. A blanket placed over the freshened cow can also help warm and stabilize her body systems, and thus reduce problems brought on by calving stress.

3 indicted in bogus farm loans

PHILADELPHIA — Eugene D. Richard, former vice president and head of the Agri-Loan Department at American Bank, Reading, and two others were indicted by a Federal Grand Jury in Philadelphia on Wednesday in an alleged fraudulent farm loan scheme that totals some $16.9 million.

The indictment cited some 186 fraudulent agri-business loans that were made between November, 1978 and February, 1983.

Also named by the Grand Jury in the alleged fraudulent loan conspiracy were Essie Schlamb, of New Tripoli, a former hay dealer; and Earl R. Waltemeyer, Collegeville, formerly of Walebe Farms, Inc.

According to the indictment, more than $3.5 million in loans went to Mrs. Schlamb and more than $5.4 million to Waltemeyer. The remaining money was cited as including fraudulent loans made to keep the two farming operations in business or to meet payments on earlier loans to Schlamb and Waltemeyer that were both legitimate and bogus.

Charges in the indictment include conspiracy, mis-application of bank funds and making false entries in bank records.

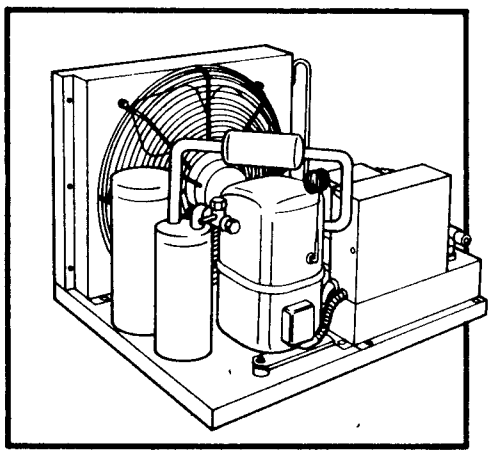
WATCH FOR "SPECIAL" UPCOMING ANNOUNCEMENT!

A hot and cold idea from Surge that can cut your milk room energy costs.

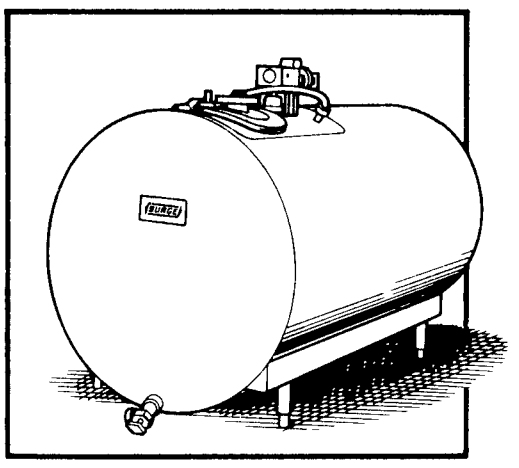
The new Surge W/A Condenser uses an exclusive combination of water and air cooling to save energy without wasting valuable hot water.



The Hot Idea.

A milk cooling system generates a lot of heat. This is a usable form of energy. Unfortunately, most air-cooled condensers waste it.

The Cold Idea.



Cold well water is much better than air for cooling a condenser. However, water cooled condensers often waste valuable hot water.

Water and air can reduce the cost of cooling your milk by as much as 20%. And the free hot water produced can cut your water heating bill by up to 80%. When you have enough hot water, air cooling takes over so you won't waste any.

Only Surge offers you this efficient, no waste condenser.

The ARC® (Automatic Response Cooling) Tank saves you even more energy by activating your compressor only when you need it. ARC saves you as much as 20% in cooling costs over earlier models. Available in 500 to 3,000 gal. sizes.

We can make your cows worth more.

Dollhouses No Longer Belong Only to Little Girls

By PATTY GROSS MOCK
Staff Correspondent

HOLLIDAYSBURG — Dollhouse collectors are coming out of the woodwork. A new shop in Blair County is attracting the growing number of people interested in the world of miniatures.

Ray Cochran, Duncansville, and Bill Burns, Wehnwood, opened the Holiday Dollhouse Works last October. Bill had been constructing dollhouses in his basement for several years, when he decided he had to get his business (including the dust), out of the house.

The small two room workshop at 415 N. Juniata St. in Hollidaysburg was the ideal place for Bill and his friend Ray to expand their interest in dollhouses. The partners take pride in designing miniature furniture for every room in the house.

"People prefer to buy our furniture," Ray emphasizes.

Most of the furniture is made from bass wood and stained with walnut, maple or oak. Some of the furniture is unfinished for those who wish to paint it. They also offer kits of plastic furniture.

Movable parts are very common on the furniture handcrafted by the co-owners. The rolltop desk actually opens, a cradle rocks and so does the rocking chair. Drawers in dressers, chests, dry sinks, and cupboards open. The dining tables expand and colorfully bound books line the shelves of the bookcases. There is a great demand for refrigerators, stoves, the canopy beds and the baby grand piano.

Remarkable care is taken when furnishing the dream home. It is possible that more attention is offered to the small, elaborate doll houses, than to the large livable homes in which people live.

"Many people furnish one room at a time," explains Ray. Piece by piece is put into the house as it's afforded. He admits that the accessories are not cheap. He tells the story of seeing one client's dollhouse which is elegantly decorated with $1,700 worth of furniture.

A Centre County collector draws pictures of her own furniture which she then mails to the custom builders. They duplicate her furniture in a mini-style. The artists are proud of their craft, displaying it for all to see.

Over and over again the craftsmen emphasize their willingness to cooperate. "We try to do anything that people want done, if it's possible," says Ray. "As long as we have time we'll do it." They even put pieces back together. Whether the dollhouse or furniture is damaged by the client, little hands, or chewed on by a cat (that has happened), Ray and Bill can make it right.

You would think working with such tiny objects would try your patience. They refute that by saying the work relaxes them. It's a hobby that the retired men have turned to for enjoyment and relaxation.

"There's no pressure. Bill and I didn't retire to have pressure," laughs Ray. "When this becomes a job that's when I get out of it."

They prefer to keep busy and as Ray confides, it keeps them out of their wives' hair.

Ray joined his friend in the "small business" when Bill opened the works last fall. But he says he has been around building for many years. Ray retired from selling insurance and an insurance claim's department after 32 years on the job. A retired railroad engineer, Bill has started to sell model railroads in the shop.

The place is not only a construction business, but probably most importantly a hangout for good friends. They have people making regular visits just to talk or take in a game of pinochle in the workshop. Depending on how many orders they have to fill, the men feel comfortable doing as much talking as working.

The pair have a few dollhouses ready to sell, but the majority of the time they will take orders before manufacturing the products. They get many architectural design ideas from area neighborhoods, magazines or advertisements. If they see a house they like, they make it. A specialty which is gaining in popularity is the special orders for scaled-down models of customer's homes. A picture is either supplied to the shop or they travel to the home to take their own picture and collect information. The miniature houses can be made two story with dormer windows, bilevel, ranch or whatever style a client occupies.

Every piece of the house is individually cut. The siding is cut piece by piece and painted. The doors and windows actually open and close and display glass. Cathedral ceilings are not uncommon in the houses. The parquet floors in each room sparkle and shine. Bill and Ray have a large selection of small print wallpaper to brighten each room. They cover the walls before the house in built, unless the client prefers to do it at home. Some have been known to bring in scraps of material from the construction of their original house to have a perfect replica.

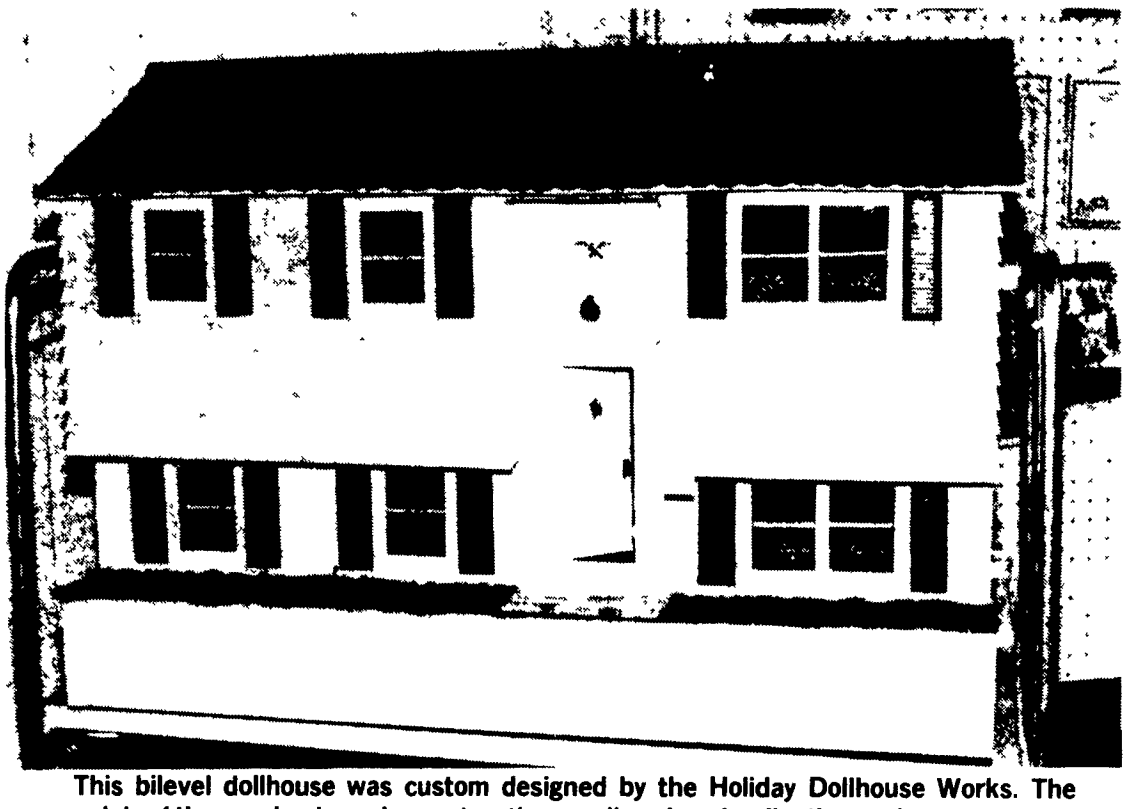
"You can have anything for a dollhouse that you have in your own home," admits Ray. They carry all the accessories to furnish a house. You can decorate with paintings, lamps, giftwrapped packages, dishes, vacuum cleaners and more.

Holiday Dollhouse Works sells kits, custom built homes or they will make you a kit to your specifications to put together at home. The houses vary in the way they are designed and constructed. Many of them have eight or nine rooms. Prices vary as much as the homes contrast. The kits are $20 and the custom built dollhouses start at $150. Some of the more expensive models are wired to accomodate the ceiling lights and the outlets in each room.

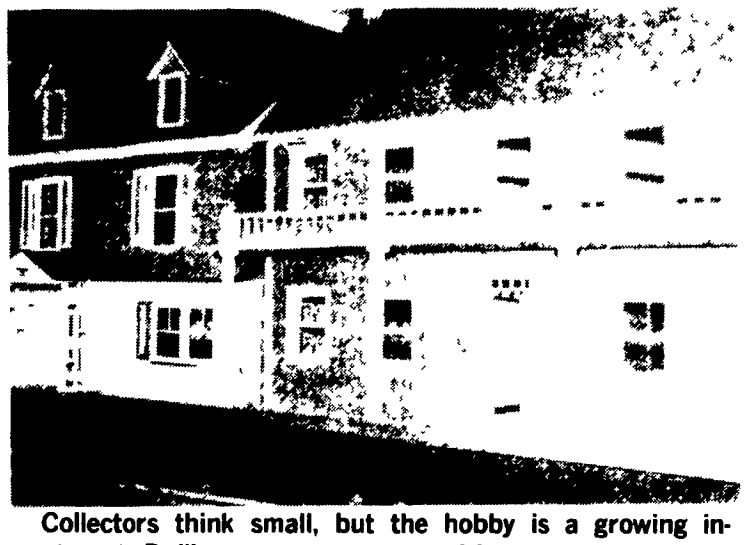
They have been told by out-of-towners that a house could be purchased at the Hollidaysburg shop and sold elsewhere for double the money. The prices do seem to be readily accepted by customers from across the country. Most recently a house was shipped to Boston. It was topped with real asphalt shingles, mahogany floors and electricity.

Dollhouses are no longer the toys of little girls. Adults are purchasing dollhouses for themselves

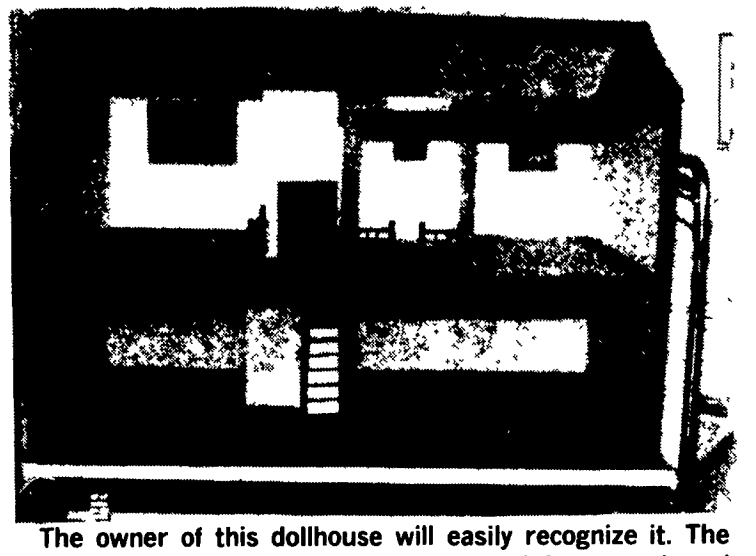
(Turn to Page B4)



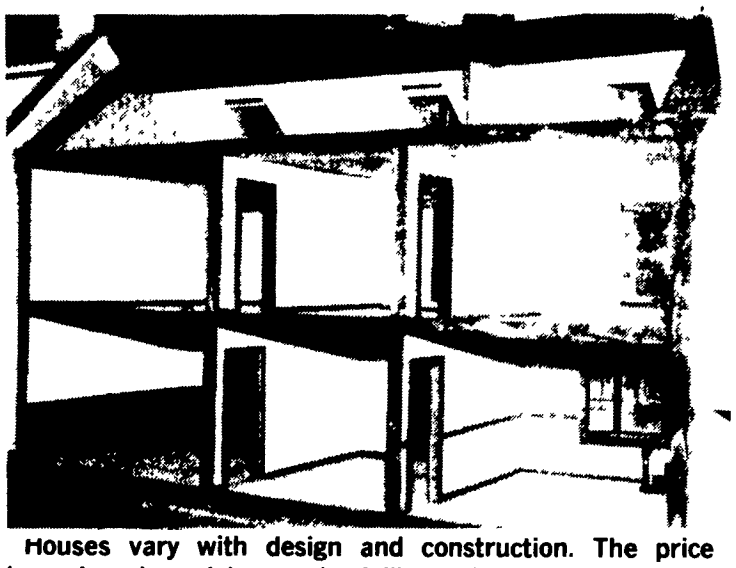
This bilevel dollhouse was custom designed by the Holiday Dollhouse Works. The specialy of the new business is constructing small copies of a client's own home.



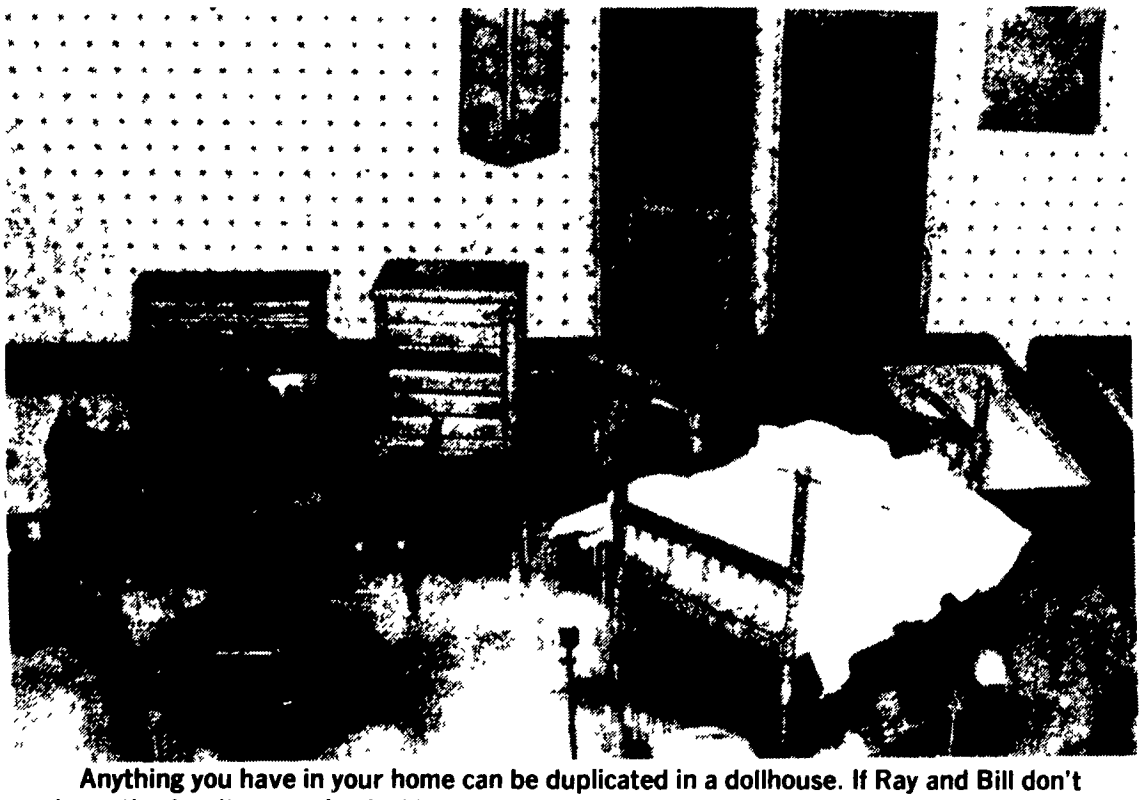
Collectors think small, but the hobby is a growing investment. Dollhouses are now owned by as many adults as children. This one shows how elaborate the houses can be.



The owner of this dollhouse will easily recognize it. The house, including the wallpaper, is a scaled-down version of the customer's home.



Houses vary with design and construction. The price depends on how elaborate the dollhouse is.



Anything you have in your home can be duplicated in a dollhouse. If Ray and Bill don't have the furniture you're looking for, they can make it. The co-owners of the Holiday Dollhouse Works say people prefer to buy their handcrafted wood furniture.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

On Wednesday morning our luxury liner the "Sun Princess" docked at Fort-de-France, the principal trading and shipping center of Martinique. It is a small island about 50 miles by 20 miles and was probably discovered by Columbus in 1493.

After an early breakfast, I took a six hour tour of the small island. A geologist from Oklahoma shared the seat on the bus as we traveled through fishing villages. The fist nets were hung out to dry and the small boats were brightly colored so that a helicopter could spot them in case they were lost at sea. Many homes were made of stucco and had only openings for windows — no glass but sometimes slats. The school children all wore uniforms the same as they did on Barbados. We saw a few Jersey cows on the hilly pastures.

We stopped in St. Pierre for picture taking and were told that in 1902 the Mt. Pelee volcano erupted and killed 29,000 people in three minutes. One man, who was being held in a prison pit, escaped and as he was a curiosity he died a millionaire many years later.

One oddity was a lily tree whose small branches were used to make fences. Due to the climate, these slender limbs took root and grew. We saw fields and more fields of bananas with each bunch covered with a thin, blue plastic bag in preparation for shipping. The workers here are paid eight dollars per day plus a bowl of food. Our bus also stopped at a pineapple field. This plant takes six months to bear while a banana tree takes nine months and then is cut down.

We were served lunch at a lovely old plantation. It included a fish paste on a large sea shell, rice, chicken, wine and a flaming dessert of baked plantain. On our way back to the ship we saw breadfruit trees, grapefruit and lime trees and papayas growing on the trunks of trees.

We enjoyed a late afternoon tea, then an Italian meal and ended the evening by watching an audience participation program.

Dollhouses

and also their children. College students have spent hours arranging the furniture in the small rooms during shows on campuses. A bigger percentage of the clients are adults rather than children. Ray tells of people in their 60s and 70s buying and furnishing dollhouses. Also houses that have been around for years are being redecorated. They recently gave a 35-year-old dollhouse a face lift because the owner wanted it "jazzed-up."

The businessmen don't feel that it is unusual for them as men to have an interest in the dollhouses, and explain that their wives are not involved very much. The handcrafted homes are the fragile and treasured investment of both men and women. The shop sees just as many men as women visiting the establishment. "An awful lot of men come in with their wives and are just as interested," smiles Ray.

Every project is as individual as the client. "We try to do it the way people want it done. We don't try to pressure people. If it doesn't turn out we'll knock it apart and do it again," Ray says.

The partners work on several dollhouses at a time, but don't get much ahead of the demand. It takes around two weeks to actually get a dollhouse completed. That allows for the drying time. They work with all types of wood and don't find it difficult constructing the miniatures. Everything is scaled an inch to the foot. The carpenters admit that the work is not difficult, adding that proper tools are the secret to success.

Bill is a member of the Central Pennsylvania Miniature Club. The co-owners can be found at many shows getting to know others with the same hobby.

Expansion isn't in the picture. They just hope to work at keeping the inventory up. When business slows they attempt to fill orders for their own families. Bill is currently carefully constructing a dollhouse for one of his six children, five of whom are girls. Ray has twins, a son and daughter, and expects to build one for his daughter.

They may be thinking small when it comes to houses and furniture, but they have big hearts for their work and clients.

"We're not into this for a profit," adds Ray matter-of-factly. "If we break even we're tickled. So far we've made expenses." Adding everything up it's possible that sometimes they may make 50 cents an hour.

The Holiday Dollhouse Works is very proud of their craft and while working for simple enjoyment are fulfilling the dreams of children and adults. It is a chance to never grow old as you recapture your childhood.

Rabbit and Cavy Workshop

NEWARK, Del. — 4-H and Agway are co-sponsoring a workshop on "Rabbit and Cavy Nutrition and Management." The workshop is open to anyone involved in or interested in raising rabbits and guinea pigs. The workshop presenter is Dr. Merle Stillions, director of the Agway Research Center for Animal Nutrition.

The workshop will be held on Wednesday, March 14 at 7:30 p.m. at the Pencader Grange, on Route 896, on the south side of the intersection with Route 40.

In addition to the workshop, there will be door prizes, free feed samples and the opportunity to have questions on small animal nutrition and management answered. The workshop is free, but call Agway at 738-6563 to register.

Try These Baking Tips

LANCASTER — Tender tea breads, moist and chewy cookies and high, handsome cakes — this is the stuff dessert dreams are made of. And here are tips to make those dreams come true:

Plan ahead. Before starting, read the recipe thoroughly and make sure you have all ingredients and equipment needed. Do any advance preparation required. Remember, baking in many ways is a science, and the best results come from following a recipe carefully.

Use shiny metal pans, or those with a non-stick finish. If you use glass baking equipment, lower the oven temperature by 25 degrees.

Use the right shortening for the job. Cake batter made with butter is hard to blend and the cake comes out heavier and flatter than one made from shortening. An economical new shortening choice is Butter Flavor Crisco, which makes chewy cookies and lighter, higher, finer-textured cakes — with a delightful plus: a rich buttery taste without sodium or cholesterol. This new shortening is ready to use from the pantry shelf, and can be substituted in any recipe listing butter, margarine or shortening as an ingredient.

Don't overcrowd the oven. If you are baking three cake layers, arrange them so no pan is directly over another. Also, don't use a cookie sheet that is too large for the oven. Allow two inches on all sides to permit heat circulation.

Often, baked foods must cool a bit before being removed from pans. Don't be impatient — follow directions so the food leaves the pan easily without sticking.

Put these tips to work on your next baking project — you'll be pleased with the results!

Retirement Planning Workship Scheduled

NEWARK, Del. — Whether you are male or female, married or single, you should be saving now for a steady flow of income through your retirement years. Social Security or a pension will not be enough, says University of Delaware Extension Home Economist Debbie Amsden.

To find out how to create a retirement income while saving on present income taxes, plan to attend the Extension service's workshop on financial planning for retirement, Tuesday, March 20, at 7:30 p.m. It will be held at the Sheraton Inn on Route 13 in Dover. The speaker will be Dr. Pat Tengel, University of Maryland extension financial specialist.

The meeting is free of charge, but preregistration is requested. Contact the county extension office in Newark (451-2506), Dover (736-1448), or Georgetown (856-5250).

Chicken: An International Favorite

In looking through Lancaster Farming's recipe file, it became obvious that the chicken, that small, modest little bird, is an international favorite for cooks.

There are recipes for Chinese chicken dishes, Italian chicken dishes, Hungarian chicken dishes, and of course, many, many American favorites.

This week, why not try one of the recipes that families have been enjoying in other parts of the world?

Also, I received a request to publish the address to which recipes can be sent. Mail all recipes to Home on the Range, Lancaster Farming Newspaper, Box 366, Lititz, Pa. 17543.

DELUXE CHICKEN SUPPER

3 strips bacon
3/4 cup chopped onion
1/2 cup chopped celery
1/4 cup chopped green pepper
1 (4 oz.) can sliced mushrooms, drained
1 (10 1/2 oz.) can cream of chicken soup
1 cup dairy sour cream
3 cups cubed, cooked chicken
1/4 teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
1/8 teaspoon pepper
2 cups biscuit mix
2 eggs, slightly beaten
1/2 cup milk
1 tablespoon chopped pimentos
1 cup shredded cheddar cheese

Fry bacon, remove, and saute onion, celery, green pepper and mushrooms in bacon drippings until tender. Combine soup and sour cream in a bowl. Add chicken, salt, Worcestershire sauce, pepper, 1 tablespoon milk, bacon and sauteed vegetables; mix well. Turn into greased two-quart casserole. Combine biscuit mix, eggs, 1/2 cup milk, pimentos and cheese; mix until just blended Drop by spoonfuls on top of chicken mixture. Bake at 350 degrees for 45 minutes or until biscuits are golden brown.

CHICKEN AND RICE

8 chicken breasts (or thighs and legs)
1 stick margarine
1 can cream of chicken soup
1 can cream of mushroom soup
1 can cream of celery soup
1 cup water
1 1/4 cup raw rice

Melt margarine in 9 X 13 cake pan. Combine soups and water. Spread over bottom of pan containing margarine. Pour half of soup mixture over rice and mix well. Place chicken pieces over rice. Pour remaining soup over chicken. Bake uncovered in 275 degree oven for three hours.

HUNGARIAN BAKED CHICKEN AND CABBAGE

1 2 1/2 to 3 pound broiler-fryer chicken, cut up
3 tabelspoons butter, melted
salt and pepper
1 small head cabbage, cut in 1/2-inch slices
1/2 cup sliced onions
2 apples, cut in 1/2-inch slices
1 tablespoon grated lemon peel
2 teaspoons caraway seed
1 teaspoon sugar
2 cups shredded Swiss cheese
1/4 cup sliced almonds
paprika

Preheat oven to 400 degrees. Brush chicken with butter; sprinkle with salt and pepper. Place chicken in 13 X 9-inch baking pan. Bake 45 to 55 minutes, or until chicken is tender. Meanwhile, place cabbage, onions and apples in 13 x 9-inch baking dish. Sprinkle with combined lemon peel, caraway seed and sugar. Cover. Bake at 400 degrees. Place baked chicken on cabbage mixture; add pan drippings from chicken. Sprinkle remaining cheese, almonds and paprika over chicken. Bake until cheese begins to melt. Garnish with chopped parsley, if desired. Salt and pepper to taste.

POLLO ALLA CACCIATORA

1 broiler-fryer chicken, cut in parts
1 teaspoon salt, divided
1/2 teaspoon pepper, divided
1/2 cup flour
5 tablespoons olive oil
2 onions, sliced
1 large green pepper, cut in strips
1 clove garlic, minced
2 cups fresh mushrooms, sliced
2 cups Italian tomatoes, peeled, crushed
1 teaspoon fresh basil, chopped
1 bay leaf
1/2 cup dry white whine

On the chicken, sprinkle 1/2 teaspoon of the salt and 1/4 teaspoon of the pepper. Place flour in shallow dish and add chicken, one piece at a time, dredging to coat. In large frypan, place olive oil and heat to medium high temperature. Add chicken and cook, turning, about 10 minutes or until brown on all sides. Remove chicken to warm platter. To oil in frypan, add onion, green pepper and garlic; saute over medium heat about five minutes. Add mushrooms and cook, stirring, about three minutes. Add crushed tomatoes, remaining salt and pepper, basil and bay leaf. Simmer, uncovered, on low temperature for five minutes. Return chicken to pan, spooning sauce and vegetables over all. Cover and cook on low for 30 minutes. Add wine, cover and cook 15 minutes more. Serve over vermicelli, cooked according to package directions.

This Chicken-Cabbage Bake recipe combines protein-packed chicken with vitamin-rich vegetables for a completely nutritious meal. Check the recipe in this section.

LOW-CAL CHICKEN CASSEROLE

1 broiler-fryer chicken
2 cups water
1 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons chicken broth, reserved
1 cup cooked zucchini
1 small onion, thinly sliced
1/4 teaspoon tarragon
1/4 teaspoon dill weed
1 cup cottage cheese
1 tablespoon fresh lemon juice
2 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese
1/2 teaspoon paprika

In large saucepan, place chicken. Add water, salt and pepper and place over medium heat. Cover and cook about 45 minutes or until fork can be inserted in chicken with ease. Remove chicken from pan and cool; reserve broth. Separate meat from bones; discard bones and skin. Cut chicken into bite-size pieces and place in medium bowl; add the two tablespoons reserved chicken broth and stir to mix. In large shallow baking dish, place chicken; top with zucchini, then onion. Sprinkle with tarragon and dill weed. In small bowl, mix together cottage cheese and lemon juice; spread over chicken and vegetables; sprinkle with Parmesan cheese and paprika. Place in 350-degree oven and bake about 40 minutes.

CHILI CHICKEN CASSEROLE

1 broiler-fryer chicken, cut in parts
1 can (16 ounces) tomatoes
1 can (8 ounces) tomato sauce
1 tablespoon vinegar
2 teaspoons chili powder
1 1/2 teaspoon salt, divided
1 clove garlic, minced
1 can (15 ounces) New Orleans style red kidney beans, undrained
1 small onion, sliced
1 green pepper, diced

In 3-quart mixing bowl, place chicken and sprinkle with 1/2 teaspoon salt. In another bowl, mix together tomatoes, tomato sauce, vinegar, chili powder, one teaspoon salt and minced garlic; slowly stir in kidney beans, onions and green pepper. Pour mixture over chicken; cover and marinate overnight in refrigerator. When ready to cook, place chicken, skin side up, in single layer in large shallow baking pan and bake, uncovered in 350 degrees oven for about an hour or until fork can be inserted in chicken with ease. Serve on rice or noodles.

Featured Recipe

This week's featured recipe comes from Barbara Emery. Barbara has recently launched a new career in color analysis, wardrobe coordination, natural make-up and visual poise. She spends a great deal of time helping women feel good about themselves, but she also has a family to cook for. This, according to Barbara is a family favorite. Read about Barbara on Page B.

Bran Muffins

4 cups Kelloggs All-Bran cereal
2 cups Nabisco 100% Bran
2 cups boiling water
1 quart buttermilk
1 cup butter of oleo
4 eggs
1 teaspoon salt
5 cups flour
5 teaspoon baking soda
3 cups sugar

Pour water over cereal. Add milk and set aside. Cream butter and sugar. Beat egg in one at a time and add to cooled cereal mix. Sift flour, soda and salt Stir into mixture to dampen. Spoon mixture into muffin tins and bake at 375 degrees for 15 to 20 minutes. According to Barbara, if you want to save some of the batter to make later, just put in covered container and refrigerate.

Brown Swiss canton IV to meet

and being dewormed at the same time

With Agway Baymix, wormtime isn't downtime

There's no question that deworming is one of the keys to efficient milk production. Tests prove that deworming can improve efficiency up to 5%* through more profitable production, better feed usage, and faster calf development.

The question is, how to deworm your herd quickly and effectively without withholding milk. And the answer is Agway Baymix Crumbles.

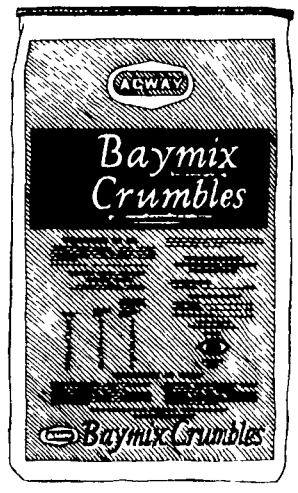
Deworm the whole herd

With most wormers, you have to withold milk if you administer the wormer to lactating cows. And if you use the wormer only on dry or fresh cows you run the almost certain risk of reinfection from unwormed herdmates. But with Agway Baymix Crumbles you can safely deworm all your cows at once without withholding milk. That means no downtime, and reduced risk of reinfection.

Easy and economical

But perhaps the biggest benefit of Baymix is the convenience. You simply topdress the cow's daily ration with one ounce per hundred pounds of bodyweight for six days. Palatability is excellent, and there are no stressful boluses or drenches to administer.

Ask your Agway Store, Representative or Salesperson for more information on Agway Baymix Crumbles, the simple, effective way to deworm your whole herd, and boost milk production.



*Based on university test trial results of 769 lbs. extra milk production over 15,342 lb lactation

COCHRANVILLE AGWAY

FARM ENTERPRISE SERVICE AGWAY®

. ANSWER - Millie Sechrist, Fawn Grove, recently requested a cream of broccoli-cheese soup recipe. Here is a recipe sent in by Mrs. Claude Levengood, Douglassville. Thanks!

Cream of Broccoli-Cheese Soup

2½ cups milk
Aproximately 1 cup shredded medium sharp cheese
6 tablespoons flour
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce (optional)
1 large bunch fresh broccoli
1 cup chopped onion
½ cup chopped celery
2 cups water
¾ pounds fresh mushrooms (optional)
6 slices bacon, fried crisp and crumbled
4 tablespoons butter or margarine

Fry bacon, reserve fat; set aside. In large frying pan, saute onions in bacon fat until tender. Add two cups water and bring to a boil. Add celery, broccoli and mushrooms. Reduce heat and simmer for 20 minutes. Meanwhile, in separate large pot, melt butter; add flour and mix well. Slowly add milk and Worcestershire sauce and bring slowly to a boil, stirring constantly. When milk is boiling, quickly remove from heat and mix in shredded cheese. Stir until cheese is melted. Add simmered vegetables and stir well. Top with croutons and crumbled bacon.

ANSWER - In response to Mrs. Earl McCaleb's request for wet black walnut syrup for ice cream, Mrs. Levengood recommended adding chopped walnuts to maple syrup and making it to your desired consistency.

ANSWER - We received two recipes for asparagus as requested by Donna Lencoski. Thanks go to Eva Southard, Glen Rock, for the first entry, and to A. Martin, Fleetwood, for the second.

Scalloped Asparagus Casserole

1½ pounds asparagus
6 tablespoons butter
6 tablespoons flour
½ teaspoon pepper
2 cups milk
¾ cup diced sharp or Velveeta cheese
2 tablespoons chopped onions
5 hard boiled eggs
½ cup buttered bread crumbs

Cook asparagus until tender, drain. Melt butter, stir in flour and seasonings, add milk gradually, and cook over low heat. Add ½ of the cheese and stir until smooth. Combine sauce, asparagus and sliced eggs. Top with crumbs and remaining cheese. Bake in 350-degree oven for 30 minutes. Potato chips can also be used for topping.

Baked Asparagus

15 to 20 tips of fresh asparagus
4 tablespoons butter
4 tablespoons flour
2 cups buttered bread crumbs
5 hard cooked eggs
1½ cup rich milk
1 teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon pepper

Brown the bread crumbs in two tablespoons butter. Place half of the crumbs in the bottom of a baking dish. Add cooked asparagus and chopped eggs in alternate layers. Add seasoning then cover with remainder of crumbs. Make a white sauce of two tablespoons of butter, flour and milk. Pour sauce over contents of the casserole and bake at 350 degrees for 45 minutes.

ANSWER - A. Martin also sent in a recipe for hominy cakes, as requested by Louise Sines, Oakland, Md.

Hominy Cakes

2 cups cooked hominy
2 eggs
1 cup flour
2 cups milk
¾ teaspoon salt

Cook hominy in salt water until soft. Drain. Add beaten eggs, flour, salt and milk. Drop batter from a spoon onto a hot griddle. Fry until brown on both sides. Serve as griddle cakes. Makes about 12 to 15 cakes.

Chicken

1/4 cup sherry
3/4 cup soy sauce
1/4 cup water
1/k4 cup chopped green onion, white and green parts included
3 cloves garlic, minced
1 tablespoon sugar
1 teaspoon minced ginger

In Dutch oven, place oil and heat to high temperature. Add chicken and cook, turning, about 10 minutes, or until brown on all sides. Pour sherry over chicken. In medium bowl, mix together soy sauce, water, onion, garlic, sugar and ginger; pour mixture over chicken. Cover and simmer 25 minutes. Turn chicken and simmer about 10 minutes longer or until leg moves freely when lifted or twisted. Serve whole, sliced or chopped, with juices.

Airville 4-H Club

The Airville Community 4-H Club held its monthly meeting recently at the Lower Chanceford School. Committee reports were given and the semi-annual paper drive was discussed. Ann Hutschenreuter gave a report on rabies and Mrs. Hedrick gave a report on the 4-H auction.

The meeting was adjourned to the program which was talents and hobbies. Every member told a little about their hobby, and those who didn't take part had to participate in a skit. The next meeting will be March 20. Anyone interested in joining (8 - 19 Years old), contact Bess Hutschenreuter at 862-3365 or Kathy King at 862-3607.

Central 4-H Dairy Club

The Central 4-H Dairy Club met recently at Bair Station and saw slides, presented by Shannon Newman, on the Hoards Dairyman contest.

The next meeting will be at Jane Thompson's home on March 12. The program, "The Utter is a Factory," will be presented by Dr. Kunselman.

Celebrate St. Patty's Day

LITITZ — Complete with shamrocks, tiny elves and pots of gold at the end of the rainbow, next Saturday is St. Patrick's Day and what better time is there to serve your family some homemade dishes that come straight from Ireland?

Put a little luck of the Irish in your family's dinner next Saturday with these recipes.

IRISH SODA BREAD

4 cups sifted enriched flour
1/4 cup granulated sugar
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon baking powder
1/4 cup butter or margarine
2 cups seedless raisins
1 1/3 cups buttermilk
1 egg
1 teaspoon baking soda

Mix and sift flour, sugar, salt and baking powder. Cut in butter or margarine with a pastry blender or two knives until it resembles coarse corn meal. Stir in raisins. Combine buttermilk, egg and baking soda. Stir buttermilk mixture into flour mixture until just moistened. Bake in greased one-quart pudding pan or casserole in 375-degree oven for 45 to 50 minutes or until golden brown.

IRISH POTATO PUFF

1/4 cup butter or margarine
1 cup breadcrumbs
1 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon grated lemon rind
1 teaspoon lemon juice
3 egg yolks
1 cup milk
3 egg whites, beaten stiff
3 cups mashed potatoes
1/4 cup grated cheese

Combine butter and crumbs M until well blended. Press on bottom and sides of round baking dish. Combine salt, lemon rind, lemon juice and egg yolks. Blend well and stir in milk. Fold in egg whites and gently fold mixture into mashed potatoes. Fill baking dish and stir in half of grated cheese. Sprinkle remaining cheese on top. Bake in 350-degree oven for 1/2 hour or until firm and delicate brown on top.

IRISH STEW

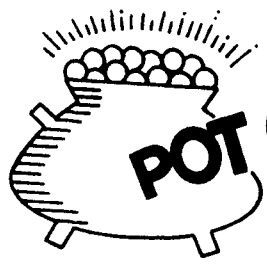
2 pounds lamb or mutton
about 4 cups boiling water
3 medium-sized carrots, cut into 1/2-inch slices
1/2 cup diced raw turnip
1 medium-sized onion, sliced
3 tablespoon chopped parsley
2 teaspoons salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1 bay leaf

Select meat from shank, neck, shoulder, breast or flank. Cut into two-inch pieces. Place in kettle and cover with water. Cover and simmer for two hours. Add vegetables and seasonings and cook about 1/2 hour longer. Thicken liquid with two tablespoons flour mixed smooth with 1/4 cup cold water.

IRISH SCONES

3 cups sifted enriched flour
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cream of tartar
1 teaspoon baking powder
about 1 cup buttermilk

Mix and sift together dry ingredients. Make a hollow in the center and add enough buttermilk to make a soft dough. Turn onto a floured board and knead quickly and lightly until the dough is free from cracks. Roll out the required thickness and cut in scones. Place on greased and floured baking sheet and bake in 400-degree oven until thoroughly baked, about 15 minutes for medium sized scones.



4-H Swine Club

The York County 4-H Swine Club met at the 4-H Center March 1 and selected judges for their two round-ups.

It was decided to cancel the first round-up at Sechrist Sales and hold a combined round-up with the 4-H Lamb Club in September at Thomasville Livestock, making August the Swine Club's first round-up.

The speaker for the meeting was Joan Lamberson, York County Extension home economist, who spoke on how to cook pork.

Try Some Low Sugar 4-H Snacks

Everyone knows that kids love to snack between meals, but many of the snacks you choose are high in sugar and bad for the teeth. Making sure you choose the right kind of snacks may be difficult.

But 4-H has come up with some low sugar, high nutrient snacks that you can make for yourself without having to use any dangerous equipment. The next time you are looking for a snack after school or while watching TV in the evening, try one of these treats from the 4-H food and nutrition programs.

— A NEST OF GOLD. For this snack you will need two cups of finely grated carrots, one-fourth cup of raisins plumped in lemon juice, one tablespoon lemon juice, one-fourth cup of salad dressing or mayonnaise, three or four grapes, berries, peanuts or cottage cheese and four crisp lettuce leaves.

Combine raisins and lemon juice in a small dish. Wash, scrub and carefully grate carrots. Combine carrots, raisins and dressing in a bowl and chill. Place one-half cup of the carrot mixture on a crisp lettuce leaf on plate. Shape the carrots into little nests. Wash grapes or berries, shell peanuts or shape cottage cheese with a small spoon. Put "eggs" into the nests. Serve with crackers and a drink.

— STRAWBERRY FLOAT. To make this snack, you'll need one-third cup of strawberries, fresh or frozen, one tablespoon sugar, one and one-third cups of milk and two scoops of ice cream.

Place strawberries into a mixing bowl and mash. Add sugar and stir until dissolved. Put mixture into jar. Add milk and close the lid tightly. Shake until foamy. Pour half of the mixture into each glass. Top with a scoop of ice cream.

A Banana float is just as good. Use a small banana.

— BUGS ON A LOG. You'll need three stalks of celery, one grated carrot, two tablespoons of peanut butter, one tablespoon of nonfat dry milk and 24 raisins.

Wash the celery and cut into three inch sections. Scrub and grate the carrot. Mix the peanut butter, dry milk and carrot in a small bowl. Use a knife to stuff celery with mixture. Place two raisins on top. Serve with glass of milk.

— SUPER APPLE SANDWICH. This snack can be prepared with one apple, sliced and cored, one tablespoon of nonfat dry milk and two tablespoons of peanut butter.

Wash the apple. Mix dry milk and peanut butter in a small bowl. Slice the apple into four sections. Remove the core. Spread mixture over one slice and top with another. Makes two sandwiches. Serve with a glass of milk.

All of these snacks are nutritious as well as being low in sugar.

Lucky 4-H

Tammy Dudeck joined the Lucky 4-H Club at their February meeting held recently at the Extension Center. Members learned about candy making during the meeting. They plan to participate in the County Presentation Contest and 4-H Day at the Mall. Sewing projects will be worked on at their next meeting.

Find the Green Words

Answer on Page B13

Guess what, Kids? Next Saturday is St. Patrick's Day and in honor of that this week's word search puzzle is loaded with words that name green things. Some of them are vegetables you eat, some are things that animals eat and one is a special symbol of St. Patty's Day.

The words go across and up and down. Some are printed diagonally and some are even printed backwards. See if you can find these nine words: shamrocks, leaves, lettuce, grass, spinach, beans, clover, asparagus, peas.

State Beef Cook-Off Announced

HARRISBURG — If you have a beef dish that you crave, now is the time to enter it in the Pennsylvania Beef Cook-Off. You could compete for $300 in prize money and go on to compete for $10,000 in national prize money.

Ten finalists will be selected to compete in the Pennsylvania Beef Cook-Off, June 11 at Trinity High School, Shiremanstown. Prizes are: $125 first prize; $75 second prize, and $50 each for the third and fourth prize. Additionally, the first-place winner will represent Pennsylvania at the National Beef Cook-Off, September 9-11, in Albuquerque, New Mexico. Prizes at the national level are: first place, $5,000; second place, $2,500; third place, $1,000; and five honorable mentions, $300 each.

All recipes must contain a minimum of one pound of beef and not more than five, and each serving must contain at least three ounces of cooked beef. Cooking time cannot exceed four hours. The recipe must be specific, with no use of brand names, and must state the number of servings and approximate preparation time. All entries become the property of the Pennsylvania Beef Council.

Contestants must be 18 years or older, with non-professional food status. Any person who has owned one or more head of beef or dairy cattle (or who lives in a household where any person has owned cattle) in the 12 months preceding October 1, 1984, is ineligible. CowBelles or employees of state beef councils or the National Livestock and Meat Board are also ineligible.

Recipes will be judged according to taste, ease of preparation, practicality, originality and appearance.

To receive Cook-Off rules, send a stamped, self addressed envelope to Mrs. Mary E. Wilson, 862 Webster Drive, State College, PA 16801. The recipes considered can use only chuck, round, tump, fresh brisket, plate, shank or ground beef. Beef can be the only meat used in the recipe.

DEADLINE FOR ENTRY IS APRIL 1, 1984.

The Cook-Off is sponsored by the Pennsylvania Beef Council, Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, Pennsylvania Cattlemen's Association and Moyer Packing Company of Souderton. The National Beef Cook-Off is sponsored by the American National CowBelles in cooperation with the Beef Industry Council of the Meat Board.

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

Each year, I find greater difficulty in generating excitement over the routine involved in the day-to-day responsibility of housekeeping.

I mean, how mentally challenged can you feel over dirty socks and jeans strewn across the bathroom floor or find exhilaration behind the controls of a vacuum cleaner? Still, someone has to do it — and in spite of all the hoopla about women's lib, the greatest majority of that work is still being done by women.

So, does it come as a surprise, then, that both full-time and part-time, urban and rural homemakers, are turning to thrill-seeking in their housewifery careers?

I'm talking "couponing" here. You know, couponing. Clipping all those little cents-off slips of paper for the weekly game you play at the supermarket.

This game has become a national pasttime, right up there with baseball and watching television. Equipment to play is cheap. If you doubt that, compare the price of a catchers' mitt to the cost of sharp scissors.

Playing grounds for this sport are abundant, warm, fairly accessible and have no membership dues. And since the game is played by individuals, each participant can depart the starting line at his own schedule and pace.

Players range from the die-hard professionals, shopping with a thousand neatly clipped slips filed in a hundred labeled compartments in a shoebox, to those of us more amateurish contestants juggling their playing cards from old envelopes with slapped-on divider tags.

While it's every man for himself in the coupon game, the God-given bonus of a kid who adores clipping coupons from old magazines and newspapers will definitely add to your potential high score at the goal line.

There is one method of term play I've discovered, an underground fellowship of other players who will share their wealth of unused coupons. The shared goal of saving money can result in some very deep mutual friendships.

Couponers share a silent kinship along the playing aisles, our eyes meeting with a sense of conspiracy against the economy, patiently waiting while those of the sisterhood and an occasional man or two(plot their strategy against the shelves.

Non-couponers are obvious by their accusing stares at you as you hold up a line of 10 other shoppers hurrying for the exits. We tolerate their impatience knowingly, remembering how we, too, felt before we grew addicted to this redeeming pasttime.

Minor snags in the game include a mandatory rule (or so it seems) that all expiration dates be printed in letters the size of ant tracks. A second hangup is that when you do finally locate the date, in the pain of eyestrain, it expired yesterday.

A perfect score in couponing, naturally, is to leave the store with several bags of groceries obtained totally free, after all coupons, doubled coupons and instant-redeem coupons are whizzed through the computerized checkout system.

While there are professionals who do attain that level of achievement occasionally, most of us are simply happy to knock 10 or 15 bucks from the bottom line.

One of the utlimate thrills of couponing is finding a doubled-50-center that expires the day you're shopping on a desparately-needed item that was just marked down to a dollar as a weekly special.

Bingo. The grin that crosses the face of a couponer so blessed is reminiscent of a gambler whose slot machine has just piled his lap full of silver dollars.

The only real loser in his exercise is the weary and beleagured checkout clerk who must tally the hand while explaining to some irate shopper why a certain coupon is unredeemable.

Hats off to all retailers who aid and a bet us coupon fanatics. I have but one suggestion.

How about a slow-moving-vehicle lane along supermarket thoroughfares?

Join a Lancaster 4-H Dairy Club

LANCASTER — Young people between the ages of 8 and 18 who are interested in dairy calves and cows and who would like to meet other young people are invited to attend the next meeting of any of the 4-H dairy clubs listed below.

The Lancaster County Ayrshire, Brown Swiss, Jersey 4-H Dairy Club will hold its next meeting 7:30 p.m. on Monday, March 12 at the Lancaster Farm and Home Center.

The Lancaster County 4-H Guernsey Club meets at 7:30 p.m. on Tuesday, March 13 at the home of Ken Garber. Their farm is located south of Willow Street. Take 222 S. To Eshleman Mill Road. Turn left on Eshleman Mill Road and travel approximately one mile. Farm on right.

These two breed clubs meet monthly, as does the Lancaster Co. 4-H Holstein Club, and their meeting places are scattered throughout the county.

The Kids and Kows Klub, an all-breeds club, meets in the southern part of the county.

To be a member of a dairy club, the young people are required to own a dairy calf. To be eligible for showing, the calf needs to be registered and the member must have made application to have the calf transferred to their name by May 1, 1984. Older heifers and cows must have been transferred by January 1, 1984.

The 4-H Club program is an informal educational program for youth. It is conducted by the Cooperative Extension Service with the help of local volunteer leaders. For more information, contact the Penn State Extension Service Office at the Farm and Home Center in Lancaster. Telephone number is 394-6851.

Four Paws to Freedom

Kathy Waite and Gail Phillips were guest speakers at the most recent meeting of the Four Paws to Freedom 4-H Club. Members were congratulated on the puppies they raised which were recently placed in homes.

Melinda Bihon's dog, Jet, has been placed with a blind master in Tennessee. A dog raised by Laura Pauze now lives in Pennsylvania. Fargo, a German Shepherd raised by Sally Hahn, is in a home in Texas. The Schwab family took care of Maggie, who now lives in Arizona. Finally, Jeff Mottley's dog, Luke, resides in North Carolina. One of the members' puppies, Greg Forte's, is now at the Seeing Eye Center in training.

Anyone interested in raising a Seeing Eye Puppy is welcome to attend club meetings. They are held the 1st and 3rd Wednesday of each month at the Fairmount Community House at 7:00 p.m.

Color Your Way to the Best You Can Be

BY KIMBERLY HERR

LANCASTER — She wears a lavender suit, with a plum turtleneck. Her shoes are a soft, soft lavender. The chain around her neck features lavender beads and pearls.

Her outfit is well put together and the color flatters her natural skin tone.

Her name is Barbara Emery. She is the wife of C. Donald Emery and the mother of four children. She is a former public school teacher, who retired to care for her husband and four young children.

And then her youngest child "got off her lap," as she explained, and she went seeking a new interest.

So, at the age of 40, she went to modeling school.

"I don't mind saying I was the oldest, shortest and heaviest one in my class," Barbara laughed.

But, she did well. She was invited to come back to take the advanced class at John Robert Powers Modeling School in Philadelphia. She graduated and was awarded the "Miss Congeniality" title.

At the modeling school, Barbara learned this phrase: "There is no such thing as an unattractive woman . . . only the woman who does not know how to make the most of herself."

And you might say that Barbara has taken that phrase and turned it into the theme for the programs and classes she offers on color analysis, fashion and design, skin care, natural-looking make up, visual poise and wardrobe coordination.

Barbara's interest in color began when she worked with an interior designer who soon began a career in fashion design. Barbara apprenticed with her for almost four years.

"I am very much into color and understanding it," Barbara explained.

"I guess it is the teacher in me," Barbara chuckled, "but I want to teach people about color. I want to make people aware that they have already been influenced by color."

This influence can be seen in many areas. For example, according to Barbara, low-calorie sweeteners are in a pink pack to make them seem even sweeter, fabric softeners are pastel to make them even softer, bottle bleaches for even whiter whites are packed in pure white plastic.

"We learn to expect that an aerosol can in a green can will freshen the air better then one in a black can. And did you know that you are less apt to buy furniture polish in a purple can than in a brown one that suggests the richness of wood?" Barbara added.

Another expample is the Estee Lauder line of perfume and cosmetics.

According to Barbara, studies have proven that blue is the favorite color of many women over the age of 40, and Estee Lauder products, as many know, come packaged in blue.

"It (knowledge of color) is practical," Barbara said. "It is not vanity."

The subconscious messages women receive from the colors on packages can also be received from colors they and others wear.

Barbara gave this example. If you are feeling good on a certain day, you slept well, the weather is nice and you are looking forward to the day's activities, you are likely to wear something in a color that you especially like, a color that flatters you.

If, on the other hand, you do not feel well, it is raining or you are dreading the activities you have planned for the day, you may reach for an outfit that you do not especially like, one that does not really flatter you.

"Most people gravitate toward their best color," Barbara explained.

And there are colors that flatter certain skin tones better than others, according to Barabara.

She explained that there are two skin types, one calls for cool colors and one that warrants warm tones.

The cool skin tones are broken down into winter and summer groups, while the warm tones are made up of autumn and spring divisions.

"We have adopted the names winter, summer, spring and autumn because colors naturally fall into these groupings," Barbara said. "Your season is determined by your skin, your eyes and your hair.

"All skin has a blue undertone with a purple base, or it has a yellow undertone with a green base. What we are trying to create with the proper use of the color palette is a harmony between skin, eyes, hair and clothing."

People with skin that calls for cool colors look good in colors with a blue, grey or rose undertone. Those with warm skin tones look good in colors with a yellow, orange or gold base.

Pat Herr, the model used during Barbara's explanation of her color analysis, was a winter person. Her skin tone, combined with black hair and dark eyes, caused her to look her best in vibrant colors, such as red, hot pink or true blues. She also looked good in icy tones, such as whites or greys.

Colors such as gold, rust, yellow beige, yellow green or brown gave Pat a more washed out look.

Barbara explained that the winter colors often denote the "Christmas colors." People who fall under the summer category, like Barbara, look most attractive in soft blues, navy, lavender, rose brown, taupes, rose pinks or winter white. These colors, according to Barbara, denote the haziness of summer.

Those people who fall under the autumn group look best in dark brown, camel, beige, orange, teal blues, moss greens or tomato red. These colors illustrate the colors of harvest season.

The spring people look their best in camel, golden brown, peach pink, corals, soft blues, golden yellows or light, clear navy. And, of course, these colors correspond with those seen in the spring.

Before judging to what group a person belongs, Barbara stressed that it is important to see them wearing the drapes of material that she has in a wide variety of colors. According to Barbara, a person in any one of the four Barbara Emery explains to Pat Herr what colors of lipstick she should wear. Barbara did a color analysis on Pat to determine what colors she looks best in.

Barbara Emery, of Lancaster County, is the instructor for her "Looking Terrific at Every Age" classes. Barbara advises coordinating your wardrobe in colors that look best on you. Here, she shows how accessories in the same color scheme can be combined to mix and match different outfits.

Barbara tries different colors on Pat Herr to see whether she belongs in the summer, winter, fall or spring color category. Pat's skin tone, combined with her black hair and dark eyes, made her look her best in colors from the winter group.

Barbara's carefully planned wardrobe began with this plum colored jacket. She has added to it a variety of clothing and accessory items that can be mixed and matched to form numerous outfits. This, according to Barbara, is a practical way to shop, as you save money when you do not purchase items that you have absolutely nothing to wear with and consequently, need to buy another item that goes with the first one purchased.

Color Your Way

seasons has at least 100 colors that they will look their best in.

Barbara is trained to recognize what colors look best on women, but she understands that some women still prefer a color that may not be in the shade she should wear.

"I don't deal in right or wrong, but in better and best," Barbara said. "If you have that sweater on and feel really good in it, it can't be the wrong color. The color drapes should guide, but not overpower you."

Barbara, who lives at 1062 Huffman Place, believes that once you find the colors that are best for you, the next step is to create a coordinated wardrobe, not only because it will add to your appearance, but it also saves money.

For example, Barabara has a small book which is filled with pieces of material in the colors that she looks best in. When she shops, she takes the book with her and only buys clothes that match other clothes already in her closet. By doing this, according to Barbara, you eliminate the urge to buy something that you have nothing else to wear with.

"It is practical, not vanity," Barbara emphasized.

"If you look put together instead of thrown together, that gives you the confidence to go in the direction that you want to go," Barbara said, explaining how colors and wardrobes can help to influence a person's life.

And while she was talking about confidence and presenting a confident image, Barbara mentioned the way she was taught to walk during her modeling training.

"Don't walk like a question mark," she urged. "Walk like an exclamation mark. Walk like you are going somewhere, not like you just came back."

Stretch from the waist up, Barbara suggested, and keep your toes pointed straight ahead.

Barbara has shared her advice with many Farm Women Societies and with participants in various Extension Service events. She also gives a "Looking Terrific at Every Age" course, which is a 10-hour course focusing on color analysis, fashion and design, make up and skin care, visual poise and wardrobe tips.

But after retiring from one successful career and raising her children, why does Barbara want to take on all this new responsibility?

"I know how I felt at 40," Barbara laughed. "We (women) give so much to others that we don't give to ourselves. Women are fantastic givers and they find it hard to give to themselves."

Barbara explained that women take cooking classes to make better meals for their family, they take sewing classes or craft classes to make things for their family or house, but they are hesitant to do anything that is strictly for themselves.

Barbara's class is something a woman can do for herself.

Wiles Crowned 1984 Maryland Grange Princess

WALKERSVILLE, Md. — Carrie Jean Wiles of Walkersville will be representing Maryland State Grange during the coming year as State Grange Princess. Ms. Wiles year as Princess will be highlighted when she represents Maryland State Grange in National competition in Maine next November at the National Grange Session.

Ms. Wiles is the 18-year-old daughter of Mr. & Mrs. Maurice Wiles and is a teachers aide in the Vocational Agricultural Department at Walkersville High School.

A 1984 graduate of Walkersville High School, Ms. Wiles was a charter member of Glade Valley Jr. Grange #36. She joined the Glade Valley Subordinate Grange at the age of fourteen. She currently holds the office of Flora and is co-youth chairman. She serves on the Community Service, Community Show and Deaf Activities committees.

Ms. Wiles has served in the Pomona and State Youth Officer Corps in 1982 and 1983. Ms. Wiles is currently a member of the Frederick Co. Pomona youth team and the Sate Grange Youth Team.

In July 1983, Ms. Wiles attended the Northeast Grange Conference in New Hampshire as a National Youth Representative Award Winner. Only one other Marylander has been a National winner in the women's division of this prestigious contest, which is based on leadership, service, and recognition.

A highlight of Ms. Wiles Grange activities include her GISYE (Grange Inter-State Youth Exchange). In 1982 Ms. Wiles joined the Clement Bost family in Mooresville, North Carolina and became a "sister" to their daughter, Crystal. After three weeks in North Carolina, Carrie and Crystal came to Maryland and stayed on the Wiles Dairy farm for three weeks.

Ms. Wiles has attended National Grange sessions in Atlantic City, New Jersey; Lancaster, Pa.; and Providence, Rhode Island.

Ms. Wiles has been active in the Granges Deaf Activities projects and in 1982 was a regional first place winner in the song-signing contest.

Ms. Wiles is Past Master of Glade Valley Junior Grange and Past Maryland State Junior Grange Princess. She is currently co-Junior Grange leader of Glade Valley Jr. Grange #36.

Ms. Wiles is a life member of the Frederick County Farm Museum and serves on the Frederick Co. Farm Safety Committee. She is Secretary of the Glade Valley Community Show and a member of the Walkersville United Methodist Church. While in school she was an honor roll student and Secretary of the Walkersville FFA Chapter.

Ms. Wiles is the granddaughter of Mr. & Mrs. David Secor of Cascade and Mr. & Mrs. G. Arthur Wiles of New Windsor.

Carrie Jean Wiles, Walkerville, was recently crowned the 1984 Maryland State Grange Princess.

Ladies Have You Heard?

By Doris Thomas

Lancaster Extension Home Economist

LOOKING AHEAD: THE CONSUMER OF THE '90s

Two astute food marketers have gazed into their crystal balls to profile the consumer of the '90s. What did they see?

— The fastest growing population segment will consist of 25 to 44 year olds.

— The average household will spend about 24 percent of an average yearly income of $35,000 or more on food.

Electronics will continue to grow in importance. More consumers will do their shopping at home. Less cash will change hands at the supermarket as the use of electronic banking increases.

— Consumers will be more knowledgeable thus more selective in their food choices.

— Price alone will not be enough to sell a consumer on a particular product. Appearance, quality and preparation time will be equally important.

— A growing group of male shoppers will be interested in more simplified meals in order to make both food shopping and food preparation quicker and easier.

— The demand for ethnic foods will continue to grow, accompanied by a demand for greater variety and higher quality.

— Four out of five working women will spend less time grocery shopping while demanding more convenience food products.

What type of consumer do you think you will be in the 1990's?

THE IMPORTANCE OF CONVENIENCE

The '80s cook is preparing meals ahead. Leisure time on weekends is utilized, and soups, stews, casseroles and chili are prepared in large quantities, divided into meal-size portions and frozen. Quickly thawed in the microwave oven, these home-prepared foods greatly simplify meal preparation on weekdays when time is scarce.

Stir-frying has grown by leaps and bounds, moving away from traditional Oriental fare. Consumers have discovered that the technique of cooking thinly sliced vegetables, poultry, meat and seafood over high heat can be adapted to the flavors and textures of other cuisines - or used to create all-American suppers from the cupboard and freezer.

Another trend is "double batching." With double batching, enough of one meal component is prepared to serve later as part of a second meal. Braising eight pork chops instead of four requires no extra effort. But, four cooked pork chops on-hand in the refrigerator can trim 45 minutes or more from the preparation of another meal. The extra chops can be cut into strips and stir-fried with vegetables; layered with cooked rice, prepared pizza sauce and mozzarella cheese and baked; heated in barbecue sauce and served on buns; or added to soup.

LENTILS A SUBSTITUTE FOR MEAT DURING LENT

If you're looking for a nutritious substitute for meat during Lent, try lentils. Combined with a grain, they are a good source of protein for anyone who is not eating meat.

Proteins are made up of amino acids. There are 21 amino acids, but eight of them are essential, meaning our bodies cannot manufacture them from other sources.

Meats have all of the essential amino acids. Other foods, such as cereals, breads, beans, peas and lentils, are incomplete proteins since they only have some of the essential amino acids.

But, these foods can be put together like a jigsaw puzzle to give you all the amino acids you need to make a complete protein. These foods, when put together, are called complementary proteins.

Lentils and rice or whole wheat make a delicious complementary protein that can be substituted for meat if you're looking for something different to eat during Lent.

For something unusual, try a spaghetti sauce made from lentils and served over whole wheat spaghetti.

To make the sauce, you'll need one cup of chopped onion, two cloves of minced garlic, two tablespoons of olive oil, one cup of dried lentils rinsed and picked over, two cups of water or vegetable broth, six ounces of tomato paste, four ounces of mushrooms drained, one-half teaspoon oregano, and one-fourth teaspoon each of basil and cayennne and salt to taste.

In a saucepan, saute onion and garlic on oil until tender. Stir in lentils and water; bring to boil. Reduce heat, cover and cook 30 minutes or until lentils are tender. Stir in tomato paste, mushrooms, oregano, basil, cayenne and salt. Simmer 10 minutes. Makes 3½ cups.

"Agriculture not only gives riches to a nation, but the only riches she can call her own." — Johnson

Indeed, farming can be a richly rewarding profession. But it can also be a very risky one. For the farmer is subject not only to the changes in the marketplace, but to those of nature as well.

We at Bank of Lancaster County salute all of you who have made farming your chosen field.

We know that from time to time you may need help in keeping your operation operating. At such times, you need a banker who understands farming from the ground up. That banker is Bob Badger, head of our Agricultural Loan Division. For years now, Bob has been helping area farmers "grow" with loans for machinery, livestock, construction, mortgages and other operating expenses. Visit Bob at our Strasburg office, or give him a call and he'll visit you.

Re-Entering the Workforce Can be a Job in Itself

BY SALLY BAIR
Staff Correspondent

LEBANON — "Looking for a job may be the hardest job you ever had." This somewhat startling information set the tone for a four-hour seminar intended to help homemakers who are considering re-entering the workforce. Seventy women attended the program sponsored by the Lebanon County Cooperative Extension Service, the Mental Health Association, and Mental Health/Mental Retardation in cooperation with Potential Re-entry Opportunities in Business and Education (PROBE).

The homemakers represented a wide range of ages, interests and backgrounds, but staff members from PROBE offered advice that was pertinent to anyone considering looking for a job, either volunteer or paid.

Dorothy Hershey, project associate for PROBE, pointed out that no matter what the reason for re-entering the work force, women face the same fears. They wonder what kind of work they can do, they frequently don't know what they want to do, and they don't know what's available.

Dorothy made it clear that the advice she was giving was not intended just for women who want or need paying jobs. She said, "We refer to any kind of work and that does not mean it needs to be tied to a paycheck. All work is important."

To assess their abilities and to know which job may be right for them, Dorothy told the women their first step should be an "inward search," beginning with reaching an understanding as to what your motivation is for working.

"Motivation will affect the way you look for work and also the ultimate success in getting a job and keeping one," she said.

She acknowledged that if money is the over-riding factor in searching for a job, a woman may not have as much time to search for the perfect job.

And despite what people may believe, it is money that is the primary reason most women seek work, Dorothy noted.

Learning your strengths is the next part of the inward search. Dorothy said that many women are stymied by this one, and added, "If you don't know your strenghts, ask someone else what they are."

Interests should also be considered, another area which is often difficult for women to express. Often a woman's interests are linked directly to the family's interests. Dorothy said jokingly, "I don't know a single woman who actually likes to go tent camping."

She advised, "Think about the things you enjoy doing, and accomplishments that make you feel good. What would you do if you had time."

Often, she said volunteer work may provide a clue to your interests.

Another important consideration is skills. Dorothy said this often strikes terror in women when it is mentioned, but she assured those women present that everyone has a skill.

Linda Crosson, counselor for PROBE, told the women to employ a little creative thinking when listing skills to find definite skills which may not come readily to mind. She urged them to list physical skills, mental skills, creative skills, leadership skills and helping skills. Analyzing past experience can help in making the skills list.

Understanding your needs is another important part of the inward search. Temperament and personality traits should be considered, and will help you avoid finding the wrong job.

Needs include the understanding of family responsibilities.

"If you have young children, you need to make child care arrangements long before getting a job," Dorothy told the group.

She said making those arrangements will also help you know what financial obligations you'll have to help decide if the job is worthwhile.

"If you get a job outside home, your life will change. Your daily life patterns change." Dorothy noted. This change in lifestyle must be considered as part of the inward search.

A positive attitude is one of the primary requirements throughout the job search, and the advice the women provided here will boost a woman even if she doesn't want to change her job. Linda pointed out, "How we perceive ourselves and our skills will be what we communicate to others. Since we often identify ourselves by the roles assigned to us by others (wives, mothers, daughters, volunteers) we often lose sight of being a person in our own right.

"You must be able to say good things about yourself in a positive way. If we feel good about ourselves we feel we can ask for respect."

She urged the women to be assertive, but since that often carries a negative connotation, she provided this definition: "Assertion is self-expression through which one stands up for one's basic rights without violating the basic rights of others." Linda adds, "You can't be aggressive, assertive or passive."

An important step in finding the right job is an "outward search." which includes visiting the library, calling the chamber of commerce, reading want ads and calling local job service offices. Linda cautioned, "Seventy-five percent of job openings are never listed in the newspaper."

Practical guidelines were offered on preparing resumes. Linda said a chronological resume may work to the disadvantage of a woman who has been out of the job market for several years. There is also a functional resume which emphasizes work related skills, or a combination of the two. When writing it, Linda said, "Highlight what you do for what you want. The written word gets you the opportunity of getting there in person."

The personal interview is very important, and Linda advised doing homework about the company and also be prepared by thinking the kinds of questions you could be asked and being prepared to handle them.

Both women advised carrying a positive attitude throughout the search, and Linda concluded, "You are marketing yourself. You are a product you are selling."

PROBE is operated with a grant from the Pennsylvania Department of Education, with The Pennsylvania State University providing matching funds with office space and facilities. PROBE is headquartered at the Middletown campus of Penn State, and concentrates in a four-county area in central Pennsylvania. Their services are available free of charge for those considering a re-entry into the workplace.

Dorothy Hershey, left, and Linda Crosson, discuss their experience with Potential Re-entry Opportunities in Business and Education (PROBE) and offer specific advice garnered in the organization's six year history.

Dorothy talks with Cindy Smith of Adams County about the work that PROBE does and the service it offers.

Linda Crosson discusses a specific problem with one of the seventy homemakers who attended the seminar last week.

Mueller Dairy Farm Equipment!

Look beyond the obvious for the real measure of value in Dairy Farm Equipment:... Performance! That's why more dairymen specify Mueller equipment than any other brand! Experienced milk producers depend on Mueller's unequaled reliability, 100 percent stainless steel construction, clean functional lines and electronic refrigeration and cleaning controls.

And, as their dairy operations grow and larger capacity equipment is needed, they appreciate the higher allowance paid for Mueller trade-ins.

The value of Mueller equipment is unmatched performance combined with energy conservation and trouble-free operation. Mueller is positioned at the leading edge of Dairy Farm Equipment technology. Its reliability assured by a distributor team of factory-trained technicians to install your equipment; and, if needed, on 24-hour call to safeguard the goodness of your milk.

In the long run, total owning and operating costs of Mueller Dairy Farm Equipment are often substantially less than "bargain brand" dairy farm equipment!

Start Vegetables From Seed

NEWARK, Del. — If your green thumb is getting itchy, you can start your garden vegetables now. Start germinating them indoors, that is, for transplanting to the garden in April or May.

Some plants take longer to develop than others, and some can be moved outdoors before the rest, says University of Delaware Extension Horticulture Specialist Dr. Charles Dunham. The first seeds to germinate are the ones that are most frost-tolerant, since they can go into the ground first. These include onions, which take eight to 10 weeks of indoor growing before they can be set out, plus broccoli, Brussels sprouts, cabbage, and cauliflower, all of which require five to seven weeks of indoor growing time. All of these frost-tolerant plants can be set out in early April, so count back your indoor growing time from April 1.

Lettuce, too, takes five to seven weeks of indoor growth, but since it is slightly less frost-tolerant than the first set of plants, don't try to set it out until mid-April. All of these early season crops made a good transition from the seed bed to the outdoor garden.

Peppers are trickier to grow, but if you'd like to try, give them six to eight weeks of indoor growing time before their early May transplanting date.

Watermelons, muskmelons, and cucumbers can't stand to have their roots disturbed, so if you want to start them indoors for transplanting, use containers. The earliest outdoor planting date for watermelon is the beginning of May. Allow four to six weeks of indoor growing time for regular watermelon, six to eight weeks for seedless.

The outdoor planting date for muskmelons and cucumbers is mid-May. These seeds need three to four weeks of indoor growth.

Eggplants require a longer growing period. Allow six to eight weeks of indoor growth, and aim for a mid-May transplanting date.

The most popular garden vegetable, the tomato, adjusts well to transplanting. Allow four to seven weeks of indoor growth, and aim for getting them into the garden in mid-May.

Should you start your tomato seeds in late March, or wait until the middle of April? That depends on how good your indoor growing facilities are, Dunham says. Start your seedlings early if you can provide a good growth environment. But if your growing environment is not particularly good, and your plants tend to turn out spindly, wait awhile before germinating your seeds so the plants can do most of their growing outdoors. If a cold frame is available, it makes it possible to move the seedlings outdoors several weeks ahead of the time they can be planted out in the open.

To improve your seedlings' chances, give them a good growing medium and all the warmth, light, and water they need. The growing medium must be sterile, and therefore free of disease organisms that could be harmful to the seedlings. Garden soil does not work well unless it is sterilized and mixed with sand and peat moss. Here is a formula for making your own seed starting medium:

4 quarts No. 2 size Vermiculite
4 quarts shredded peat moss
1/4 cup limestone, preferably dolomitic lime
2 tablespoons 5-10-5 fertilizer
2 teaspoons baking powder

Mix all ingredients well. Mixture can then be stored in a plastic bag and used as needed.

Peat-lite mixes can be bought ready-made at many garden stores, Dunham says.

Seeds do not need light to germinate, but they do need warmth. Start your seeds in the warmest spot available, such as the top of the refrigerator. Water well and cover with glass or plastic until germinated so they won't dry out.

As soon as the seeds sprout, light becomes crucial. Move plants to a sunny window or set your seedlings under a fluorescent fixture, placing the plant tops within six inches of the light. Use either one warm white and one cool white tube, two cool white tubes, or any of the commercial growing lights. Keep the lights on 16-18 hours per day. Plants must be acclimated carefully to natural light before being set outdoors.

By giving your seedlings a good start in a suitable environment, they should be sturdy enough to set out as soon as the outdoor planting date arrives.

Read on for information about seedling blight.

Young seedlings started indoors or in a cold frame are very susceptible to a disease called damping-off, or seedling blight.

Damping-off is caused by fungi that attack the seed or newly emerged seedling, explains University of Delaware Extension Agricultural Agent Derby Walker. Affected plants appear to be broken off at or near the soil line. Plants most frequently affected are peppers, tomatoes, cabbages, impatiens and coleus.

For best control, use cultural practices that inhibit the disease-causing fungi, Walker says. Disinfect pots and tools by washing and then soaking in a household bleach solution (one part bleach to nine parts water) for 30 minutes. Then rinse thoroughly to prevent corrosion.

Pots and tools can also be washed thoroughly and soaked in hot water (160 degrees F) for 30 minutes.

Use commercial planting media, which is free of disease organisms. Or, if you prefer a homemade mix that contains garden soil, be sure to sterilize it before use.

To sterilize soil in your oven, spread it evenly in a glass or metal baking dish so the depth does not exceed four inches. Cover tightly with aluminum foil. Insert a meat or candy thermometer through the foil into the middle of the soil. Set the oven to 180-200 degrees F, and heat for 30 minutes after the soil temperature reaches 180 degrees F, as registered on the thermometer. (Note that the aroma of baking soil is not as pleasant as that of a pie or cake.) When the soil cools, it can be added to the other ingredients of the planting mix.

In addition to these sanitary measures, Walker says it is important to grow seedlings under conditions that discourage damping-off. Don't sow seed too thickly or too deep. Some types of seed can be sown directly on the soil surface and covered lightly with sphagnum moss.

Finally, don't over-water or over-fertilize, since these practices encourage disease organisms.

4-H Horse Club

Officers for the Saddle Up 4-H Club were elected. The new officers are: President, Tracy Sargent; Vice President, Kelly Boyle; Recording Secretary, Nicole DeChellis; Corresponding Secretary, Kathy Pellizzari; and Reporter, Alissa Pellizzari. The club will participate in 4-H Day at the Mall and the Window Display Contest. Slides were shown on Horse Safety. Members will work on a 4-H Day at the Mall Display during their March 20 meeting in Whitehouse Station.

Frame someone special in plastic canvas

"Plasticpoint," as you'd guess from the name, is similar to needlepoint, but worked on plastic canvas.

Unlike needlepoint, plasticpoint holds its shape, needs no backing, stitches up quickly and lends to a tremendous variety of projects.

The frame is available as a kit containing 10-mesh plastic canvas, yarns, embroidery thread, lace, ribbon, needle, cardboard backing and instructions. Finished frame measures 9 by 10½ inches with an oval opening for a 5-by-7-inch photo. Colors are cream with blue trim.

To order kit D-2519, send $13 plus $2 postage and handling to Ellen Appel Crafts, your newspaper's name, Box 1144, Laguna Beach, CA 92652. (California residents, please add 6½ percent sales tax.) To learn more about plastic-point, just read on.

Plasticpoint is a far easier craft than needlepoint. Because the canvas is stiff, there's no need for a hoop to keep the work taut or stitches even.

Plasticpoint is also far more versatile than other needlecrafts. While needlepoint canvases nearly always turn into pillows and wall hangings, you can create jewel boxes, key chains, Christmas ornaments, light switches, mobiles and many other accessories from plasticpoint.

You can either buy pre-cut plastic canvas or cut your own canvas to the size and shape desired. Today, most art, crart and needlework shops stock all the supplies you need for the craft.

Directions for basic plasticpoint stitches follow. Look in next week's column for stitching quilt patterns on plastic canvas.

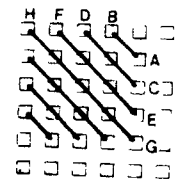
MATERIALS: Plasticpoint kit; or plastic canvas, yarns, tapestry needle, scissors, design chart or graph paper and pencil.

DIRECTIONS: 1. If you don't have a design chart, draw a design on graph paper. 2. Following your chart, work background in the continental stitch. 3. Work in designs according to chart or as desired. 4. Cut away excess canvas. 5. Overcast edges. 6. Decorate with french knots, ribbons or lace. 7. Finish as frame, box, Christmas ornament, key chain or other project.

FLORAL DESIGNS: 1. Stitch a cluster of continental stitches in any floral color. 2. Work stems in straight stitches. 3. Stitch leaves with lazy daisy stitches.

CONTINENTAL STITCH: 1. Begin at upper right-hand corner. 2. Work stitches from right to left according to illustration (a). 3. Turn canvas upside down to stitch the next row, again from right to left.

LAZY DAISY: 1. Bring needle up through mesh. 2. Form loop of yarn and bring needle back through same hole in mesh. 3. Take stitch over end of loop (b).



Penns Valley 4-H Beef Club

The Penns Valley 4-H Beef Club, from Center County, met for the first time on February 26 at the Penns Valley Area High School.

The Beef Club had election of officers for this year they are: President-Kevin Long, Vice-president-Michele Hosterman, Secretary-Vicki Guisewite, Treasurer-Mark Hosterman, News Reporter-Howard Dashem, Historian-Kim Guisewite, Social Chairman-Brian Long and Terry Myers.

The Penns Valley Beef Club leaders, Barb and Don Hosterman, remind the 4-Her's of some of the by-laws of the Beef Club. 1. They attend half of the 4-H meetings held this year in order to show their animal or animals at Grange Fair. 2. Also to have had their animal or animals by Jan. 1, 1984, and 3. That their animal or animals will be ear tagged before March 15, 1984.

Each one of the beef club members gave a report on their animal or animals and told how they were doing so far.

The 4-H Beef Club members then received their project book or books for 1984.

The next monthly meeting will be March 25 at the Penns Valley Area High School at 1:30 p.m.

COME TO A LIVESTOCK HEALTH AND NITRATE WATER MEETING

by a specialist from Indiana

MONDAY, MARCH 19, 1984 at 7:30 p.m.

at Leola Family Restaurant, 4 miles east of Lancaster on Rt. 23 (north side). Tell friends and neighbors who have livestock health and water problems.

Our N.E.M.A. Vitamin C (by National Environmental Marketing Associates, Inc.) fresh in water is just what your livestock and poultry needs for health because Vit. C oxidizes in feed (loses value). We have excellent testimonies on livestock and poultry, ¼ lb. more broilers, laying flocks resistent to flu, etc. People respond to Vit. C. Why shouldn't livestock?

Our N.E.M.A. Vit. C has a double purpose. In addition to supplying the much needed and lacking nutrition (Vit. C) it also takes the nitrate out of water. What a discovery! Come to the meeting and hear the specialist, and bring your nitrate questions.

BETTER CROPS

A higher and pure power (the Creator) helps our customers get larger and more nutritious crops than their neighbors at less cost by nitrogen fixation out of the air, and earthworm castings (almost unbelievable amount). And their holes bored in the soil and subsoil hold moisture like a sponge from the spring rains unto the summer drought. It makes sense and dollars. Our customers prove that natural fertilizer is superior to man's modern methods. Two had 27% protein haylage, two had 22% to 23% protein hay, a 40 lb. watermelon, 9.9 lb. cantaloupe, they grow good, healthy cantaloupes by the acre without chemical sprays. And they don't pollute their fellow men's water. Are you a Bible believer or not. They report their livestock are so healthy and take less feed per pound of meat. Not needing to spray their hay helps animal health too, as well as your bank account. You don't need a computer — your 6 yr. old boy can tell which pays best. Literature on all products gladly sent. Ask for pictures of crops raised in the 1983 drought.

NATURAL MASTITIS TREATMENTS — Resistance through missing elements. Excellent proof. Many repeat orders. 200 tables, 18.95. For stubbor cases add $29.95 or $13.95 all three work together. Many written testimonials, quantity discounts.

Hot new livestock health product. Demand will automatically get big. Distributorships available to sell to dealers. Be first in your area.

Consider Capons

HONESDALE — Many Wayne County 4-H members enjoy raising capons as their 4-H project. They learn how to properly feed, manage and keep records plus learn how to properly dress and package capons for exhibit and market.

The Wayne County Extension Office is currently accepting orders for day-old cockerel chicks to be used as 4-H capon projects. The final day to order chicks for this 4-H project is April 2, 1984.

The 4-H project is open to all young people in Wayne County with an interest in poultry and a member of a 4-H community or 4-H agricultural club. The 4-H'er must have been at least eight years old by January 1, 1984 and not have passed their 19th birthday as of the same date.

The Wayne County 4-H Capon Program will start in mid-June when the 4-H'ers receive the chicks they have ordered. The 4-H member can order any amount of chicks, but, thirty-five is the "suggested" number for a 4-H member's capon project.

The chicks will be caponized between two and three weeks of age.

After the chicks have been caponized, the 4-H member will have the important job of properly feeding and managing their flock of 4-H capons.

Feeding capons involves the use of properly formulated and supplemented poultry feeds. These types of feed will help the chicks grow into capons that will have a dressed weight of between eight and 10 pounds in about five months.

In order to reach these weights each capon will eat at least 70 pounds of poultry feed plus large quantities of clean, fresh water

A sturdy building with screened windows and doors is necessary in order to successfully grow capons. Rats, cats, dogs, skunks and other possible predators must be kept out of and away from the capons. This can be accomplished by designing or remodeling the capon building with these safety features.

A warm, dry building is especially important for the chicks when they are very young. This is the period of time when the young chicks need supplemental heat to keep them warm and also to help them recover from the stress of caponizing.

Once the capons have started to grow, the 4-H'ers main concern will be to keep the poultry house floor dry and free of excess moisture, the feeders full of good, high-quality feed, the water fountains full of water and the poultry house well-ventilated. The 4-H member must also be alert for signs of disease or sickness in the capon flock.

The highlight of the 4-H Capon Project is in early November at the annual 4-H Capon Round-up. The 4-H members exhibit two of their best dressed capons. The capons are judged and ribbons are awarded.

4-H 'Leaders Learn Leadership'

Staff Correspondent

BUTLER — "Leaders Learning Leadership" was the theme for the Southwest 4-H Leader's Symposium, which took place at the Holiday Inn, Butler, on Feb. 24 & 25.

Keynote speaker was John Wade, KDKA-TV, co-host of "Pittsburg 2 Day". A former 4-H member from the state of California, the TV personality of 11 years enlighted his audience with "Is TV a Leader or Followers" program. His daily hour talk show and variety of experiences gave the group several questions to ask the talented co-host.

Various workshops were offered to the nine county region leaders with Harold Ott, Western Pa. Extension Region 4-H program leader; Joy Cantrell, Cindy Kauffman and Joette Wisnieski, Penn State University; Nick R. Borreli, principal in Plum Borough School District; Sheila Burcin, Washington County Extension home economist; Donna Zang, Joyce Crays and Frank Simmons, local county agents, and 4-H leaders, Karen Brooks, Patty Kelly, Naomi Rodgers, Barbara Finke, Jeanne Morris, Joyce Koffler and Barbara McClure presenting the various sessions for the participants.

Outstanding County 4-H Leaders were recognized during the Saturday afternoon banquet. Presenting the awards to those in attendance was Betty Flowers, a Westmoreland County 4-H leader.

4-H Leaders

A husband and wife team, Mr. & Mrs. Carl F. Rudy from Allegheny County, were honored for their 17 years as 4-H leaders and participation on Extension executive board and fair committees

Donna Minich, a five-year leader of the livestock club, was selected Armstrong County's top go-getter. She also directed members in clothing and home related projects. Involvement in livestock sales and the 4-H exchange program also helped her in the winnings.

An eight-year leader of the [illegible] Shirley Dunn, of Butler County, was chosen for her high involvement in organizing a 4-H outstanding member of the Butler Farm Show, various sheep functions and participation on 4-H advisory and executive Extension boards.

Fayette County honored Evelyn Constantine for her 12 years of leadership in home economics. She served 12 years also on the county's executive board and is active in the county fair.

Kathy Kerr, assisting three various clubs of clothing, horses, rabbits, pet care, macraine and horse judging and horse bowl for nine years, was selected Greene County's outstanding leader.

Indiana County proudly named Marge Bezilla their top leader. Serving as a 4-H leader for 11 years she was also honored for her activities above and beyond 4-H level. Attending the National 4-H Convention, involvement in the Leaders Symposium and County 4-H Advisory Council attributed to her selection.

A 20-year 4-H leader of the Silver Bits Horse and Pony Club, Phyllis Ryburn was named the Washington County top leader. She was also cited for her active participation on various horse committees within the county.

Beaver and Westmoreland Counties did not single out one outstanding leader, but chose to acknowledge all their 4-H leaders for their achievements.

Certificates were given to 19 county leaders who served 15, 20, 25 and 35 years. They were honored for their dedication to 4-H in the southwest region.

Participants used free time to visit the various commercial exhibitors who were on hand, displaying their wares.

Fulton Grange 66

Thomas Galbreath, Master of Fulton Grange No. 66, presided at their regular meeting Feb. 27th at the Grange Hall in Oakryn.

A $25 donation was given to the State Grange Junior Grange Camp Fund. Aldus Martin thanked the Grange for use of their volleyball courts last year and said 10 teams have signed up to participate this year and he expects a few more to participate.

Lecturer Sandy Galbreath introduced Nancy Lefever, Postmistress of the Kirkwood Post Office, who gave a talk about philately, the collection of postage stamps, as a hobby. She also told how the U.S. mail is handled and answered questions from the audience.

Kay Weaver, Quarryville R.D. 2, will sing a solo and there will be other entertainment from the Grange membership at the next meeting on March 12th.

Mrs. Wanda Galamore, York, will speak on the deaf program and will do sign language and sign a song at the March 26th meeting.

Farm Women Societies

Lancaster Society 1

Lancaster Society 1 met at the Farm and Home Center on March 3 for a covered dish luncheon. Members of Society 28 and several county officers were guests.

Speaker for the afternoon was Grace Wenger who taught school for 39 years and spent 11 weeks in Chan Yung in the Peoples Republic of China teaching English.

Award ribbons for the 1983 State Needlework Project were given to Rachel Bollinger, Mrs. Clayton Sangrey, Mrs. Leon Ulrich, Mrs. Charles Wyman and Mrs. Willis Becher.

Society 1 will be entertained by Society 7 at the Paradise Presbyterian Church on March 10.

Lancaster Society 4

Lancaster Society 4 met recently at the Ironville United Methodist Church for a program by Thelma Jean Horst from the American Heart Association, who spoke on "Nutrition and Your Heart."

Two members, Hazel Crankshaw and Mary Frantz, were presented with 80 Year pins, and Mrs. Charles Hank, Mountville, was installed as a new member.

The next meeting will be March 24 at the home of Mrs. Richard King, Mountville.

Lancaster Society 5

Lancaster Society 5 held their February meeting at Encks Restaurant in Manheim. A report on the State Convention was given.

Games were played and Betty Weidman was installed as a new member.

The March meeting will be a tour of the blind association.

Lancaster Society 8

Lancaster Society 8 met recently at the home of Helen Shirey. Everyone brought their favorite recipe and a sample to share.

There were 10 members present.

Lancaster Society 28

Lancaster Society 28 met recently at the home of Mrs. Harold Byers for a program from the exchange student from Lampeter-Strasburg High School, who is originally from Kenya.

The next meeting is March 22 at the home of Mrs. Richard Hess.

Berks Society 6

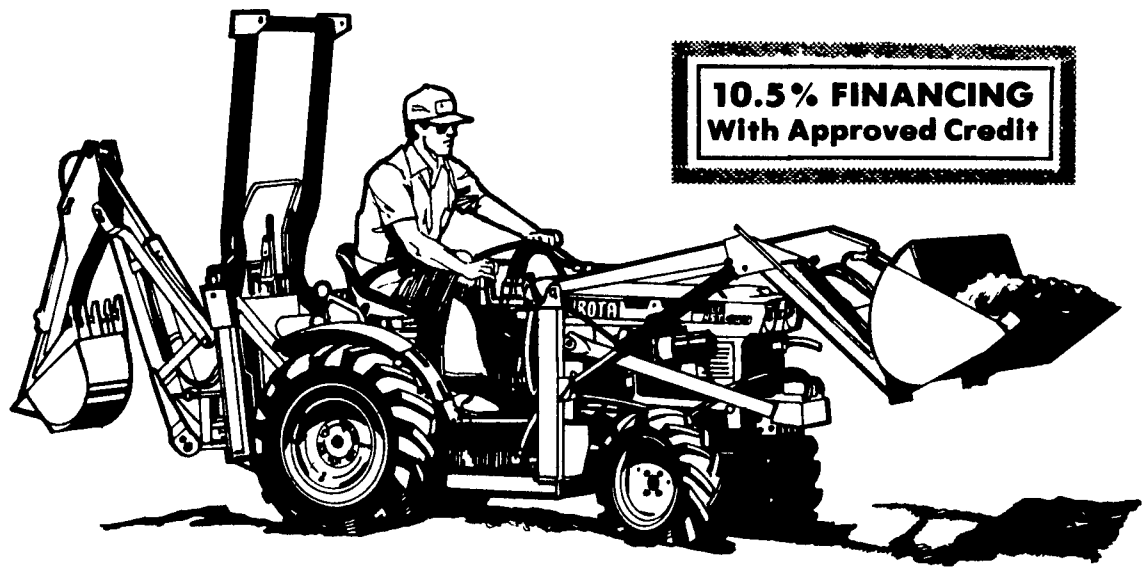
Berks Society 6 held a Valentine party recently at the home of Mrs. Roger Wagner, Oley R1. Each member made a valentine, which was judged by Roger Wagner.

A donation of $25 was given to the American Heart Association and a gift of $100 was given to the Arthur Coleman family who were victims of fire.

Members voted to have the Christmas banquet at the Washington Inn, Bechtelsville.

The next meeting will be March 20 at 8 p.m. in the home of Mrs. Richard Schlegel, Boyertown R3.

ALL YOU SHIFT IS YOUR FOOT.



Press your toes on the pedal and you go forward. Put your heel down and you back up. Kubota's B7100HST is automatic.

And with a sturdy 16 hp diesel engine, it shifts just as easily from homeowner use to commercial applications. Front PTO shaft, 2-speed live rear PTO, mid PTO mount, two- or four-wheel drive, and a dependable hydraulic lift system are all standard.

So if you want a tractor that's economical and easy to operate, the answer's automatic. The Kubota B7100HST.

National Veal Week Set for March 9-16

HARRISBURG — Pennsylvania is an appropriate site to celebrate National Veal Week from March 9 to 16. Bradford County is the largest veal-producing county in the United States. The theme for the promotion is: "Fancy Veal for an Unforgettable Meal."

Pennsylvania veal growers raise approximately 250,000 fancy or nature-fed veal calves each year which supply consumers with delicious, delicately-flavored meat according to Joan Liesau, coordinator of the Pennsylvania Meat Marketing Program.

Veal has very little waste, and is low in fat, with 185 calories per three ounce serving. It's an excellent addition to the health-conscious diet as well as the gourmet fare.

There are six primal (wholesale) cuts of veal: shoulder, hotel rack (ribs) loin, leg, breast and flank. These cuts provide more than 40 different retail cuts of meat. For example, the wholesale shoulder yields: Arm roast, blade roast, boneless shoulder roasts, arm steaks, blade steaks, as well as large and small stew pieces for a lower cost variety. The large stew pieces, like other shoulder cuts, can be used in many recipes which call for more expensive cutlets - cutting the price of meals in half, as in the Veal Picata recipe below.

Another example of wholesale cuts from the leg include cutlets (thick, thin or rolled), boneless rump roast, rump roast and round roast. "Cynthia's Choice" features thin sliced veal cutlets, cubed and pounded to form scallopini.

When selecting veal, look for finely-grained meat velvety textured and white to very-light-pink in color. This is indicative of a milk-fed diet, supplemented with necessary vitamins, minerals and iron to insure the good health of the calf.

A large variety of fancy veal cuts can be complimented by basil, celery seed, chervil, chive, juniper berries, marjoram, mustard, nutmeg or oregano. Because fancy veal is delicate in flavor, it easily picks up flavor from seasonings and sauces added.

Veal goes well with ham, sausage, chicken, mushrooms, pea pods, cheese, green and red sweet peppers, asparagus, broccoli, tomatoes, and onions. Chestnuts, water chestnuts or hazelnuts add an extra pizzazz and texture. Hollandaise or wine sauces add an extra treat.

Following are several recipes which use a variety of veal cuts. Remember - veal is naturally tender and less expensive cuts may be substituted in your meal planning.

For a free 8" x 11" color chart of veal cuts and how to cook them, send a self-addressed, stamped business envelope to: VEAL CHART, Pa. Meat Marketing Program, PA. Department of Agriculture, 2301 N. Cameron Street, Harrisburg, PA. 17110.

Here are some veal recipes for you to try:

VEAL SCALLOPINI

1 boneless veal cutlet (2-3 oz.)
½ cup fresh sliced mushrooms
½ cut thinly sliced onion
2 Tablespoons white wine
4 Tablespoons lemon butter sauce (below)
1 Tablespoon Parmesan cheese

LEMON BUTTER SAUCE

¼ pound butter
1 Tablespoon lemon juice
pinch garlic powder

Heat skillet, add white wine. Place mushrooms and onion on one side of pan, saute veal on other. Use medium flame until veal turns very light. Place in small casserole dish, top with cheese, mushrooms, onion and lemon butter sauce. Broil until cheese is light golden brown. Serves one.

PENNSYLVANIA VEAL PICATA

1 pound fancy veal stew (neck) cubes*
½fresh lemon
⅓ cup chicken broth
2 Tablespoons butter

Cut veal cubes into 1½ inch pieces, removing connective tissue. Save smaller bite-size pieces for "Cynthia's Choice Appetizer." Pound pieces to flatten. Dredge veal in flour which has been seasoned with herbs. Lightly brown over medium-high heat in butter (about one minute each side) Spray veal with lemon juice, add chicken broth to just cover bottom of pan. Remove from heat as soon as broth evaporates. Serve immediately. Serves 3-4.

* Higher priced veal cuts i.e., cutlet, scallopini, may be substituted.

CYNTHIA'S CHOICE FANCY VEAL

(To be served either as a main entree or appetizer, both equally delicious, combining fresh veal and haddock in cream.)

3 ounces veal scallopini or stew pieces
4 ounces fresh or frozen fish (haddock, perch, etc.)
Flour for dredging
2 Tablespoons lemon juice
½ cup cream
2 Tablespoons butter, melted
2 Tablespoons chopped parsley
Salt and pepper to taste
Vegetable oil

ENTREE - Dredge veal and fish in flour. Fry each separately in hot skillet coated with oil. Place fish and veal in casserole coated with butter. Sprinkle lemon juice, parsley, salt and pepper over meat. Cover with cream. Bake in 325° oven for 10 minutes. Serves 2.

APPETIZER - Cut veal in bite-size pieces. Fry each separately in skillet coated with oil. Fill small puff pastries; half croissant with some of the dough removed, etc. with meat. Follow directions above. Serves - 4-6 appetizers.

Berks Society 3

Berks Society 3 met recently at the home of Mary Hill, Boyertown, for a lasagna dinner and a reading of the official constitution and by-laws of Farm Women.

The next meeting will be March 27 at the home of Eleanor Bissinger, Boyertown R5. The program will be on self defense.

Age 60: May Be Time to Think About a New Home

NEWARK, Del. — As you grow older, your desire and ability to care for a large home diminish. Yet the decision to move can be difficult to face.

Some people think moving to a smaller home means "giving up," notes University of Delaware Extension Home economist Debbie Amsden. The truth is, the right move at this time in your life can pay off in many more years of independent living.

When you take a good, hard look at your present home, do you find it's bigger than you need? Is it drafty, expensive to heat, hard to clean? Are you having a harder time managing all those stairs? And if you live in a rural area, do you have trouble getting out to shop, visit friends, and participate in community events?

If the answer to some or all of these questions is yes, it may be time to start looking for a new place. A small, easy-to-clean apartment in the center of town, with helpful features like handrails in the bathtub and no stairs may make it much easier for you to live the active and independent life you enjoy.

Of course, not everyone needs to move. If your present home is paid for, energy costs and property taxes are under control, and you can keep up with the housework and get around, a move at this point might seem unnecessary.

Still, if you think you may have to move in a few years, it's better to do it sooner rather than later, Amsden says. Research suggests that the earlier the decision is made, the easier it is to live with the choice. Once people make their move, they quickly become involved in their new lives.

If you are approaching retirement age, keep your eyes open for your next dream home. It could be a small, one-story house, townhouse, apartment, or a planned retirement community with lots of social activities. Once you find a place that seems comfortable and convenient, you can move right in and start enjoying your carefree new lifestyle.

Estate Planning Workshops Scheduled

NEWARK, Del. — What does estate planning have to do with you? You're not old enough to need a will, and certainly not wealthy enough to require an estate plan. Right?

Imagine for a moment the worst possible scenario. A serious accident takes your spouse's life and leaves you totally, hopelessly incapacitated. Would you want to be kept alive by artificial means? Who would take care of your children? Would the people you care about inherit your belongings, or would your property have to be sold at auction to cover the estate taxes?

The time to settle such issues is now, whiel you're alive and well, so your wishes will be known when you're no longer in a position to express them. And even if you already have a will, if it was signed before Sept. 12, 1981, you may want to have it reviewed to make sure you're not missing out on any benefits made possible by recent changes in the estate laws, says Joanna Reiver, a Wilmington attorney whose practice is limited to tax law and estate planning.

Federal estate taxes can eat up 34 to 55 percent of an estate — the larger the estate, the higher the tax rate. But the federal government gives most people a break through something called "unified credit," which shelters gifts or estates of up to $325,000. This credit is scheduled to increase annually until 1987, when it will shelter $600,000.

Since the federal government can tax life insurance and real estate as well as savings, many moderate-sized estates end up being taxed. The average farmer owns far more than that amount in land, buildings, and machinery, and therefore needs the advice of a competent tax lawyer or accountant to minimize the bite of taxes.

With a properly drawn will, there should be no federal estate tax on property passing to a surviving spouse. But if your will provides a marital deduction share for your spouse and it was signed before Sept. 12, 1981, have a lawyer look it over to make sure you and your spouse's wills qualify for the unlimited marital deduction.

The state, too, takes its share of death taxes. The inheritance tax rate in Delaware ranges from one to 16 percent depending on how much your inherit and how closely related you are to the deceased.

The state does not tax life insurance unless it is paid to the estate. However, Delaware does tax some property passing to a surviving spouse. The state excludes one-half of the first $200,000 held jointly by husband and wife, and also gives a $70,000 exemption for property passing to a surviving spouse. A tax lawyer can help you decide on the most beneficial method of holding title to your property.

Joanna Reiver will be the featured speaker at an estate planning workshop sponsored by the University of Delaware Cooperative Extension Service. The meeting is set of Tues., March 27, at the Clayton Fire Hall in Clayton, at 7:30 p.m.

On Wednesday, April 4, at 7:30 p.m., Georgetown attorney David Baker, who also specializes in estate planning, will repeat the program at the Carlisle Fire Hall in Milford.

On April 10, Baker will again repeat the program at Delaware Technical & Community College in Georgetown, also at 7:30 p.m.

Annual dinner slated

FLEMINGTON, N.J. — The Annual Hunterdon County Soil Conservation District Dinner and Awards Night will be held at 6 p.m Friday, March 23, at the Quakertown Firehouse.

There will be a special presentation by Bob Law, president of the New Jersey Raptor Association. It is a non-profit organization devoted to the study of and protection of birds of prey, and the education of the public regarding their importance in our environment.

The program will discuss the bird's adaptions that help them to be efficient predators, how they fit into our environment, their benefit to farmers, and land use practices that aid in their survival. Law will have a slide presentation and live birds for the program.

Another important part of the evening is the awards program. This year, three different awards will be presented: Conservation Farmer of the Year, and Environmental Award and Outstanding Conservation Wildlife Cooperator.

Steady milk volume, new business ventures cited by Dairylea

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Dairylea Cooperative announced today that among its 3,000 farmer-members, the sign-up to receive the $10 federal payment for cutting milk production was "light".

"We estimate that, allowing for those members who have indicated an increase in production, our milk supply for 1984 will be at least as great as 1983," said Clyde Rutherford of Otego, NY, a Dairylea director.

Rutherford said that the co-op, which last year had sales of $405 million, was "pleased that production is being maintained because we have recently taken on a substantial volume of new Class I (fluid) sales."

He also announced to local co-op members that the 160-memeber HP Farmer Cooperative headquartered at Holland Patent, New York, has officially affiliated with Dairylea, effective April 1. Dairylea will provide market order counsel, laboratory work and legislative representation for the new Affiliate and will assemble and market its milk.

According to Holland-Patent's president, dairy farmer Bob Perry, the affiliation will benefit both organizations.

"We can achieve savings in both marketing costs and in the assembly of milk in the country" he said. "We are pleased to affiliate with Dairylea because they have made moves in the past two years that have contributed to strengthening their organization and its ability to market milk effectively."

Perry said that the next two years "are going to be very tough ones for dairy farmers and their organizations and we're going to need all the experience and marketing know-how we can get. Holland-Patent and Dairylea can benefit from what we can do for each other and together."

Dairylea President Clyde Rutherford of Otego, N.Y., told the co-op's February Board meeting that negotiations had been completed between Oneida — Madison Cooperative and Dairylea. Oneida — Madison, a cooperative headquartered at Sherrill, N.Y., will shortly begin its sixth year as an affiliate of Dairylea. "With the addition of Holland-Patent to our affiliate structure, plus our own members, Dairylea now represents nearly 5,000 dairymen," Rutherford said.

The February Board meeting also heard general manager Bob Hall report that Dairylea manufacturing plants at Vernon and Oneida were operating "pretty much at full capacity, as planned." In total, the plants can handle more than two million pounds of milk a day. Vernon produces non-fat milk powder, whey powder, skim and whole milk concentrate and cream. Oneida produces butter, non-fat powder, and whey powder.

The plants have for many years played an important part in processing surplus milk from New York, New England and Pennsylvania during the peak production period in the spring. However, Hall reported to the board that "while we will be able to handle our members' milk this year, as always, we will have no room for outside milk during the spring flush."

Hall told the board that Dairylea is now a member and participating owner in three other cooperative ventures: Atlantic Processing, Inc. of Allentown, Pa., a marketing federation; Upstate Milk Cooperative, Leroy, N.Y., a marketing cooperative, and O-AT-KA Cooperative of Batavia, N.Y., a manufacturing co-op. "All of these ventures spread our risk and increase our opportunity to make money... and all of them are growing and are profitable," he said.

John Fridirici, Director of Treasury Services for Dairylea, told the Board that in December, Dairylea's average outstanding debt for that month was down $10 million from 24 months ago. He said the co-ops's debt was now "at a very realistic level for a business with annual sales of more than $400 million." He pointed out that the lower debt has greatly reduced interest costs, "part of our business strategy for these economic times."

Willis day, Vice President of Membership, reported an upturn in applications for Dairylea membership and a number of requests from other cooperatives to discuss possible affiliation.

In summary, President Rutherford told the Board that "we have made the right moves, we have good momentum, it's up to all members to keep it going."

Bucks offers tractor course

DOYLESTOWN — "According to the Fair Labor Standards of 1966, no minor under age of 16 may be employed at any time in an agricultural occupation declared hazardous by the Secretary of Labor, except on the home farm by his own parents."

This includes many tractor owners who plan to hire youth in 1984. Farm operators, landscape contractors, nurserymen or any other agricultural employer who plans to hire youth to operate tractors in 1984 (between 14-15 yrs. of age) must have their employees attend a tractor safety certification program to receive instruction on tractor safety. This is the only way a youth 14-15 years of age can be employed to operate a tractor without violation of the law.

The Bucks County Cooperative Extension Service will hold a Tractor Safety Certification Program held beginning March 20 at Delaware Valley College.

Instructor George Gross will conduct the 10-hour certification course in cooperation with the Extension Service. All meetings will be held from 7-9 p.m. on consecutive Tuesdays, beginning March 20.

Call the Bucks County Cooperative Extension Service office to pre-register for the certification program, 343-2800, Ext. 385. Cost is $3.00.

Flying Farmers meet in York

The Pennsylvania Chapter of the International Flying Farmers is holding its state convention in York this weekend.

According to local flying farmers, Wilbur and Nancy Marsteller, of New Park, 150 people are attending.

The Pennsylvania Flying Farmers chapter is one of 41 chapters in the United States, Canada and Mexico, which are all chapters of the International Flying Farmers (IFF) organization. The IFF, with a membership of 9,000, was established 39 years ago.

Local hostess, Nancy Marsteller, is a former state and international Flying Farmers Queen. During her reign, she traveled over 40,000 miles to state conventions to promote Flying Farmers, crown state queens, and help honor those members who received their Landit Awards, which is a program to encourage female members who do not have a flying license to learn how to land a plane, an ability which is essential if a problem in the air should ever occur. The interest in flying is shared equally by the Marsteller's two children, Darren and Laura, both of whom are members of the youth organization which has allowed them to meet people from all over the United States and Canada.

FmHA loan servicing continues

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The U.S. Department of Agriculture's Farmers Home Administration has notified its field offices to continue normal farm loan servicing under procedures that were distributed to local offices in December.

FmHA Administrator Charles W. Shuman issued the instructions as a result of a court order entered in Coleman versus Block, A federal court suit in Bismarck, N.D. U.S. District Court Judge Bruce Van Sickle issued the permanent injunction Feb. 17 prohibiting the Farmers Home Administration from foreclosing or taking other adverse action without prior written notice to the borrowers of their rights and options under the circumstances.

However, the judicial order will have little effect on Farmers Home operations as new procedures already had been adopted under a temporary injunction of the court.

"The procedures spell out the options available to Farmers Home Administration farm borrowers who may be having trouble repaying their loans," Shuman said. "We also will explain to those borrowers the requirements they must meet to qualify for loan servicing options, which could include consolidation of loans, rescheduling, reamortizing loans or deferral of payments.

"We will continue to work with farmers on a fair and businesslike basis, and we will continue to use all available options open to us to help farmers whose operations are feasible," he said.

Farmers Home Administration farm borrowers must continue to live up to their agreements with the agency, a credit arm of USDA, Shuman said. "Nothing in the North Dakota court order relieves borrowers of their loan repayment responsibilities."

Mitterand to visit

DECATUR, Il. — Secretary of Agriculture John R. Block said he will host French President Francois Mitterrand on March 27 at Block's grain and livestock farm in Knoxville, Il.

"Agriculture is very important to the economies of both the United States and France," Block said. "I have had the pleasure to personally view some of the family methods used by producers in France. It is an opportunity to now be able to show President Mitterrand some examples of production techniques utilized by American farmers."

Mitterrand, visiting the United States at the invitation of President Reagan, will arrive in Washington, D.C. on March 21. He also is scheduled to visit New York, Atlanta and San Francisco.

"It may have been idle last year, but it'll be XL-61 this time around."

PIK took out a lot of corn acres around here last year. So it'll be nice to see XL-61 growing here again.

I've always been impressed with the quick start, strong stalks and healthy plants I get with XL-61. I'm even more impressed with the consistently high yields. And, while a lot of my customers plant XL-61 for its top-quality grain, just as many plant it for silage.

Now you know why I'm planting XL-61 this time around. And why most of my customers ordered it again.

If you're planting more corn this year, I hope you ordered enough XL-61. If you didn't, see your DEKALB-PFIZER dealer. Harvesting those extra bushels sure beats mowing weeds.

Who's planting more XL-61 this time around?

I am.

Farm Talk

by

Jerry Webb

Delaware Extension

County Fairs and other rural gatherings seem to thrive on the many agricultural games thought up over the last century. Corn husking, hay throwing, and horseshoe pitching, once important agricultural activites, have been relegated to the status of special contests. Other more colorful agricultural competitions have been added recently including watermelon seed spitting, cow chip throwing and the latest entry Bessie Bingo.

If the name hasn't given it away, imagine this. A giant grid not unlike a bingo card, a gathering of wagering enthusiasts and a cow. The object to turn Bessie loose on the grid and see where she makes a mess. Not that fortunes are won and lost in this sport but it has proven to be a popular activity in Sherburn, Mn., where it originated. The game is the brainchild of the local Jaycee's who needed an unusual fund raiser. From there it has spread all over the country.

According to Dale Schumann, local Jaycee in charge of Bessie Bingo, "It creates lots of interest in town and generates substantial funds with a minimun of work." Here's how it works: Schumann and friends fence off a nice grassy area and mark off 100 four-foot squares the same way you'd mark off a football field. The squares are then numbered on a chart and are sold with appropriate publicity to the players at $10 a square. A large crowd usually gathers to watch the fun.

At the appropriate moment a local Bessie is ushered in, provided with feed and water and left to do her thing. A play-by-play announcer provides all sorts of interesting information and keeps observers posted as to Bessie's progress. When she finally makes her mess, a winner is declared. If she hits two or more squares, the winnings are simply divided. At ten bucks a ticket, a bingo sellout raises a thousand dollars with half going to the winner.

So add another agricultural game to the long list and get ready for the first annual Bessie Bingo at this year's Delaware State Fair or some other appropriate agricultural gathering.

Here's something else that's new in agricultural circles. Belt buckle collecting. The current issue of Farm Show magazine says it's a growing hobby that now boasts three magazines, a newsletter, a book and hundreds of loyal collectors. There is also a formal group, The National Association of Belt Buckle Collectors. If you want to join write to P.O. Box 470, Witchata, Kansas 67201. The association produces a magazine called The Voice. Other magazines are Buckle Buddies published at Route 1, Henderson, Nebraska 68371 and Buckle News, Route 5, Waco, Texas 76705.

The book entitled simply Buckle Collecting is published by Wally Miller, 1200 South Division, Creston, Iowa 50801. It's 132 pages of belt buckle photos and information — more than 1,000 farm and agricultural related buckles are included. The book sells for $18.95 plus $2 for shipping.

That same issue of Farm Show also features a story about Delaware's own Charlie Hrupsa a retired farmer who makes and sells his own brooms in his Felton, Delaware, shop. Charlie is always a favorite at the Delaware Agricultural Museum's special events and at other craft activities throughout the state. According to the article, Charlie grows a half acre of broom corn for his craft. He can make a broom in two hours and he sells it for $5.

Part-time farming continues to rise

UNIVERSITY PARK — Part-time farming has become a way of life. An increasing number of farm family members in Pennsylvania are seeking nonfarm income instead of sacrificing their land, says Carolyn Sachs, rural sociologist with the College of Agriculture at Penn State.

Census figures confirm the expansion of part-time farming in the Commonwealth, showing that 60 percent of all farm operators work off the farm. Moreover, 48 percent of all farm operators list their chief occupations as other than farming.

Sachs claims the desire to stay on the land is strong among farmers. So with nonfarm income, many families manage to keep their farms. This means that part-time farming has created a slowdown in the long-term decline among farm operators in Pennsylvania.

Farm families often combine farm and non-farm income at different times in the family cycle, it was noted. Today the low return on farm production and high debt levels often force farmers to hold off-farm jobs throughout their lifetime.

"Part-time farmers should not be thought of as marginal producers," Sachs affirmed, adding that "part-time farming is increasingly common across all sizes of agricultural operations."

She said a U.S. Department of Agriculture report from 1981 showed that a farm grossing $40,000 in 1978 would hardly provide a net income as high as the average family income that year of $17,640.

The transition to part-time farming has had a variety of impacts on rural life, it was noted. Labor and time must be divided between farm work and off-farm labor. Work patterns that are less labor-intensive must be adopted. And when men work off the farm, women frequently do more farm work.

But farm women, also, are increasingly working off the farm to supplement family income, Sachs commented. Thus women have less time to devote to farm tasks. Part-time farming is often carried out after a full day's work or on weekends, or both.

CASE 448

Maple syrup production steps outlined

HONESDALE — The month of March is a busy month for Wayne County maple syrup producers. Thousands of gallons of sweet, water-like sap from maple trees are transformed into gallons of sweet, amber-colored maple syrup.

Since 1860, maple syrup production has declined each year. Reasons for the decline include the seasonal requirements of time and labor involved in maple syrup making. In recent years, Pennsylvania has produced over 60,000 gallons of maple syrup each year. Pennsylvania is one of the top five states for total maple syrup and maple products produced each year.

The decline in production has not been due to a scarcity of maple trees to top. Less than five percent of the available maple trees are being used for maple syrup production.

Anyone who has access to maple trees or a source of maple sap can make maple syrup. Making maple syrup can be a fun-filled family project with family members sharing the finished maple syrup over a meal of pancakes, waffles or French toast.

Whether you tap five maple trees in your backyard or five hundred trees, there are a few essential items of equipment to use for successful mapel syrup production. Maple syrup can be produced on a small scale with a minimum of equipment. This equipment will increase the efficiency of the syrup making process and also the quality of the syrup. Some of the equipment suggested for a "backyard" or small-scale maple producer would include a carpenter's brace with a 7/16 inch bit, plastic or metal spiles for distributing sap to pails or plastic tubing, a shallow pan or evaporator plus a heat source to "boil-down" the sap, a thermometer to help determine when to remove the concentrated syrup from the heat source, some type of cloth, heavy paper or wool filter to clean the hot maple syrup, and suitable containers for packaging and storing the finished maple syrup.

Maple trees are usually tapped in late February to early March before weather conditions favor a sap flow or "run". Only trees that are ten inches or more in diameter should be tapped. Use one tap for ten to fifteen inch trees, two taps for sixteen to twenty inch trees, three taps for twenty-one to twenty-five inch trees and no more than four taps for larger maple trees.

Tapholes should be drilled three inches deep into sound wood at a height of from two to five feet above the ground. The tapholes should be drilled at a slight upward angle to help sap flow into the pails or plastic tubing. If the trees have been tapped before, try to locate the new taphole six inches to one side and four inches higher or lower than the previous taphole.

Once the tapholes have been drilled, the metal or plastic spile can be placed in the taphole and tapped lightly with a hammer to be sure the spile fits snugly. A pail or the plastic tubing is then attached to the spile and the sap should begin to drip into the pail or the plastic tubing line.

Tapping causes only slight damage to healthy trees, and normal growth heals the injuries. Trees which have been tapped continuously for over one hundred years are still p[illegible] sap and growing vigorously.

Sap flow from maple trees will not occur every day during the maple syrup season. Sap flow occurs on those days when a rapid warming trend in early to mid-morning follows a freezing night. A single taphole can produce from one quart to two gallons or more of sap at each "run". Each taphole has the potential to produce up to twelve gallons of sap during the season or roughly about one quart of finished maple syrup.

Sap should be collected and boiled down as soon as possible to get high-quality maple syrup.

The amount of sap required to produce one gallon of maple syrup varies, depending on its sugar concentration. Maple sap averages about two percent sugar. At this concentration, about forty-three gallons of maple sap would be needed to produce one gallon of maple syrup. If the maple sap contains a higher sugar concentration, less sap will be requied to make a gallon of maple syrup, and vice versa.

The process of producing maple syrup is essentially one of evaporating water from the sap. Heat is used to concentrate the sugar and is also responsible for the characteristic color and flavor of maple syrup.

Rapid boiling of sap will result in higher quality maple syrup. As the sap boils, it may be necessary to occasionally skim the surface to remove foam. Finished syrup boils at seven and one half degrees Fahrenheit above the boiling point of water. The boiling point will vary with elevation and atmospheric pressure. Check the local boiling point to determine the proper temperature of finished syrup and maple products. As the temperature of the sap approaches 219.5 degrees Fahrenheit (at sea level), boiling should be carefully controlled to prevent burning and overheating.

Once the proper temperature has been reached, the proper density will also have been attained since boiling point and liquid density are related. The maple syrup is now described as "finished off" and ready for filtering and packaging. Hot maple syrup should be poured through a filter to improve the appearance and remove suspended particles such as sugar sand. After filtering and while it is still hot, the maple syrup should be packaged and containers sealed tightly. A packaging temperature of at least 180 deg. Fahrenheit will assure sterilization of the containers used and also safe storge of the syrup.

Many different maple products can be made from maple syrup. Some of these are: crumb sugar, maple butter or maple cream, maple sugar and many more. Information and directions on how to make these maple products can be obtained by contacting the Wayne County Extension Office at 253-5970, ext. 114.

Maple syrup production here in Wayne County has been a tradition for many years with many producers. These producers enjoy the work and challenge of producing some of the best maple syrup and maple products in Pennsylvania.

Potato stocks down

HARRISBURG — Stocks of potatoes stored in Pennsylvania on February 1 totaled 1,700,000 hundredweight (cwt.), 40 percent less than a year ago, according to the Crop and Livestock Reporting Service. February 1 potato stocks represented 40 percent of production, compared with 49 percent a year ago.

Stocks are defined as the quantity remaining in storage for all purposes and uses, including shrinkage and waste and other losses that occur after the date of each report. Stocks may also include potatoes produced in other states and potatoes already sold. Sales of fall potatoes for all purposes generally account for about 90 percent of the total fall production. Shrinkage, loss and home use account for the remaining ten percent.

February 1, 1984 potato stocks are estimated at 135 million cwt. for the 15 major fall producing states. This is down ten percent from last February and down two percent from two years ago. The February stocks accounted for 48 percent of production in these states, compared with 50 percent a year ago. Of total stocks in the 11 objective yield states, 75 percent were russets, 22 percent whites, and three percent reds.

At $100 per ton for hay that s $18 00 per year per acre more for MorRed

Improved winterhardiness

The tougher a variety the better chance the crop has to produce throughout its expected rotation

Vigorous growth and quick recovery

The higher the disease resistance the better the chance for the crop to fully express its potential

Seeding versatility

MorRed Red Clover is ideal for No-till pasture and meadow seedings in old grass stands Alone for hay and pasture MorRed can also be seeded in standing small grain or on an early prepared seed bed alone MorRed can be mixed seeded with grasses and small grains as part of a rotation or seeded in combination with other legumes—especially white clover along with grasses for hay and pasture Farmers find that when used as part of a rotation red clover is helpful in building the nitrogen level for the grain fraction of the rotation

Plant OLYMPIC.

Olympic Alfalfa's high resistance to disease and overall hardiness has made Olympic a preferred variety among growers seeking high alfalfa yields.

Penn State plans ag weekend

UNIVERSITY PARK — The College of Agriculture and the Ag Student Council are sponsoring a Commonwealth Campus Weekend March 16-18 at the University Park Campus for Ag students at all Penn State campuses.

The weekend begins with an unusual horse-drawn wagon tour of central campus on Friday at 3 p.m. Members of the Pennsylvania Draft Horse Association from Centre County are putting their teams and show wagons on parade to support the annual event.

During the weekend Commonwealth campus students can select one of four in-depth tours of agricultural facilities conducted by students and departmental clubs. Commonwealth campus students interested in animal sciences will spend Saturday at the Beef and Sheep Center, the swine Center and at the dairy and horse barns.

Those interested in plant science will tour Penn State greenhouses, the Horticulture Farm and the Rock Springs Agronomy Center, while those interested in agricultural business and social sciences will have tours and workshops related to business.

Wildlife, forestry and environmental resource management students will visit the Forestry Research Laboratory, greenhouses, deer pens, the Barrens State Game Lands, the Living Filter, and Stone Valley.

Commonwealth campus students will also have a chance to meet with agricultural advisors and faculty, attend a welcoming convocation and attend dinners and parties to meet University Park students in agriculture.

ADD A NEW FREQUENCY EXPERT TO YOUR TEAM AT A NEW LOW PRICE

ADD A NEW EFFICIENCY EXPERT TO YOUR TEAM AT A NEW LOW PRICE

Your first thought may be, "What did they leave off the tractor to get the price down?" Because of special allowances from John Deere, we can honestly tell you, "only the dollars we took off the price tag of 2150 through 2950 models." * Yes, we want your business—but not enough to try to sell you some stripped-down "special" without features to handle the work you have to do We won't do business that way, nether will John Deere

To make our new, lower-priced tractor offer even more attractive, John Deere's making an additional price-reducing offer. Take a cash rebate or interest-free financing to January 1, 1985! * *

Come in check the specs on this lower-priced John Deere and others in stock Check the added savings from John Deere financing Get our trade-in quote Arrange for a demo We'll compete for your business with anybody—and deliver a work ready John Deere tractor as our end of the bargain

* This offer may be reduced in value or withdrawn at any time

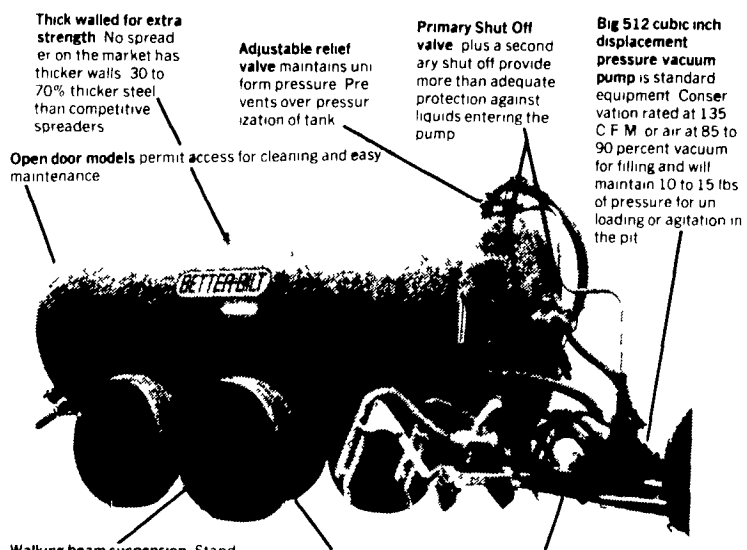
Outstanding Features



Thick walled for extra strength No spreader on the market has thicker walls 30 to 70% thicker steel than competitive spreaders
Adjustable relief valve maintains uniform pressure Prevents over pressurization of tank
Primary Shut Off valve plus a secondary shut off provide more than adequate protection against liquids entering the pump
Big 512 cubic inch displacement pressure vacuum pump is standard equipment Conservation rated at 135 C F M or air at 85 to 90 percent vacuum for filling and will maintain 10 to 15 lbs of pressure for unloading or agitation in the pit
Open door models permit access for cleaning and easy maintenance
BETTER-BILT
Walking beam suspension Standard on 2 600 3 150 3 600 and 4 600 gallon models (Optional on 1 500 & 2 100 gallon models) Front & rear wheels on each beam follow contour of the ground provides a smooth level ride
Flotation tires reduce soil compaction let you spread on soft ground early in season
Massive frames resist the wrenching twisting jolting shocks of hard field usage year after year

Sizes - 800 gal. thru 4600 gal.
Both vacuum & augermatic spreaders for truck mount or trailer type

A Good Idea That Works

PASTURE MAINTENANCE — Stimulates grass growth Scatters droppings helps control parasites tears out dead growth aerates for better moisture penetration works in fertilizer Flexes to cover every inch of the ground
PASTURE RENOVATION at Low Cost – (Fertilize and lime as required) Scarify to prepare shallow seedbed without destroying existing turf Use to cover seed after sowing Inexpensive no dangerous chemicals or costly equipment needed

FUERST F-L-E-X-I-B-L-E TINE HARROW®
ADJUSTABLE PENETRATION FOR GREATER VERSATILITY -- HERCULES ILLUSTRATED

MAXIMUM PENETRATION – Tines down pointed slightly back
LIGHT PENETRATION – Tines down pointed further back
SMOOTHING FLOATING – Tines up pull in either direction
TWO JOBS IN ONE PASS – Front section maximum penetration rear section – light penetration or floating HERCULES Models only

HERCULES — Faster and Safer at any Speed!

Unique tine design and exclusive spreader bars allow much greater speeds save labor time and money Others recommend operation at 3 to 4 m p h (at higher speeds they skip jump and skim the surface loosing effectiveness) See chart for added acreage covered by Hercules

Acres covered per hour at various speeds

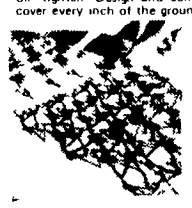
Width of Unit	3 m.p.h.	3½ m.p.h.	4 m.p.h.	*5 m.p.h.	6 m.p.h.	*7 m.p.h.	*8 m.p.h.
8 ft.	2.4	2.8	3.2	4	4.8	5.6	6.4
10 ft.	3	3.5	4	5	6	7	8
12 ft.	3.6	4.2	4.8	6	7.2	8.4	9.6
16 ft.	4.8	5	6.4	8	9.6	11.2	12.8
20 ft.	6	7	8	10	12	14	16
24 ft.	7.2	8.4	9.6	12	14.4	16.8	19.2

*Only the Fuerst Hercules design allows effective coverage and operation at these higher speeds

TILLAGE — Use back of field cultivator (photo) disc spring tooth plow or alone – prepares a fine seedbed breaks up crust on hard packed soil Use for first cultivation on corn beans etc Covers small grain back of broadcaster

Easy to use, handle, store

Specially designed 7/16 (10.5 mm) steel tines – virtually indestructible No parts to grease oil tighten Design and construction assures maximum penetration while flexing to cover every inch of the ground



All models sectionalized for ease of handling Sections roll up for compact storage transport All FUERST Harrows easily assemble disassemble without tools If ever needed parts readily available

Connecting front and rear sections of Hercules Harrow

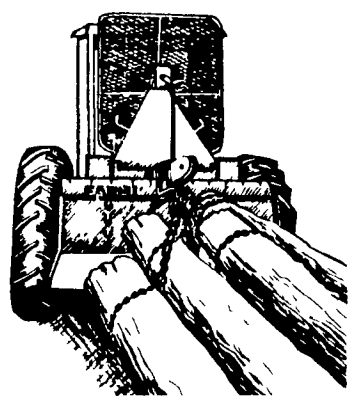
DRAG IN THE PROFITS!



Make your tractor a productive forest machine with a Farmi Logging Winch!

Your tractor and the Farmi winch is a low cost solution for winching in and skidding out your firewood, pulpwood and logs.

FARMI MODEL	LINE PULL	TRACTOR SIZE
JL250	5500 lbs.	18-30 HP
JL306	6600 lbs.	25-50 HP
JL456 -JL50	10000 lbs.	50-140 HP
JL60	15000 lbs.	80 HP & Up

The winches fit any 3-point hitch. Several logs can be winched in at one time.

The cable is locked when the logs have been winched to the tractor. The 3-point hitch is raised to lift the logs off the ground when the logs are transported to the landing.

Farmi winches are sold and serviced by:

New Porta Pump tackles your tough manure-handling jobs.

Tough pit jobs are made easier with Van Dale's new Porta Pump — top performance with convenient portability. The Porta Pump agitates, chops, loads and even primes itself.

This pump was designed for manure holding pits, hog houses, calf units, or any slurry manure with limited amounts of bedding material. A great transfer pump with economy price.

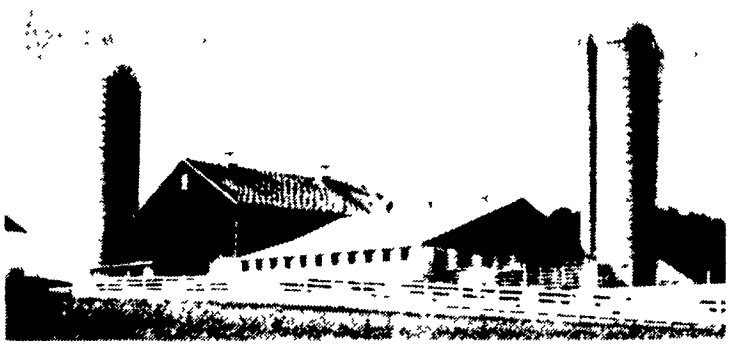
FICKES SILOS...

Dependable-Reliable

Systems That Assure Continuous Service Day After Day

FICKES SILAGEMASTER

Silo construction is not only an engineering science, it is also an art. Fickes Silos exemplify these principles, with their fine stave design and strength ... durability... and manufacturer's care in building.



SWING BACK HINGED DOOR

The hardware used in this door's construction is heavy duty steel with a double hinge system to allow the door to swing back against the side of the silo. A double lock system holds the door against the frame for a sure seal.

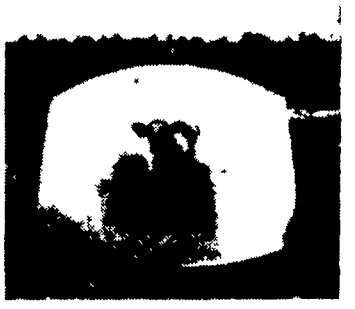
POLY DOME CALF NURSERY

"The Igloo"



The Poly Dome nursery does not have a drastic temperature change like an open hutch.
The temperature is varied naturally by utilizing the greenhouse affect.
By absorbing the sunlight into the bed pack in the day and radiating it back at night, we keep the calf more comfortable which also reduces stress.

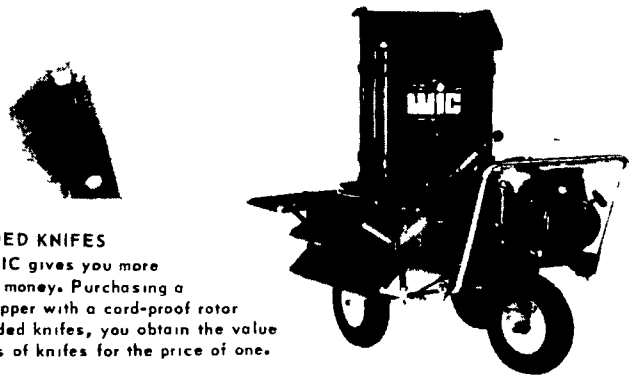
THE BETTER BEDDER



3 BLADED KNIFES
Again WIC gives you more for your money. Purchasing a WIC chopper with a cord-proof rotor of 3 bladed knifes, you obtain the value of 3 sets of knifes for the price of one.

• GONE FOR GOOD, THE EXHAUSTING JOB OF CHANGING THE KNIVES, AS THE 144 BOLTS AND NUTS HAVE BEEN REPLACED BY 8 RODS INSERTED THROUGH THE KNIVES WHICH ARE COLLECTIVELY TIGHTENED, FORMING A ONE-PIECE ROTOR.

• THE CONCEPTION OF THIS NEW ROTOR GREATLY DIMINISHES THE RISK OF SNAGGING BEING FREE OF BOLTS AND NUTS.

Purdy selected to judge 1984 Angus Futurity

SMITHVILLE, Mo. — Tom Burke, chairman of the 1984 All-American Angus Breeders' Futurity, Smithville, Mo., and Joe Bill Meng, manager, Bowling Green, Ky., have announced that the executive committee has selected Herman Purdy of Huntingdon Farms, Alexandria, to judge the 37th Annual Show which is scheduled for July 30 and 31 at the Kentucky Fair and Exposition Center in Louisville, Ky.

Record nominations have already been received, and over $40,000 in premiums and awards will be offered in this year's show, making it the largest premium ever offered in the history of the Angus breed in any show.

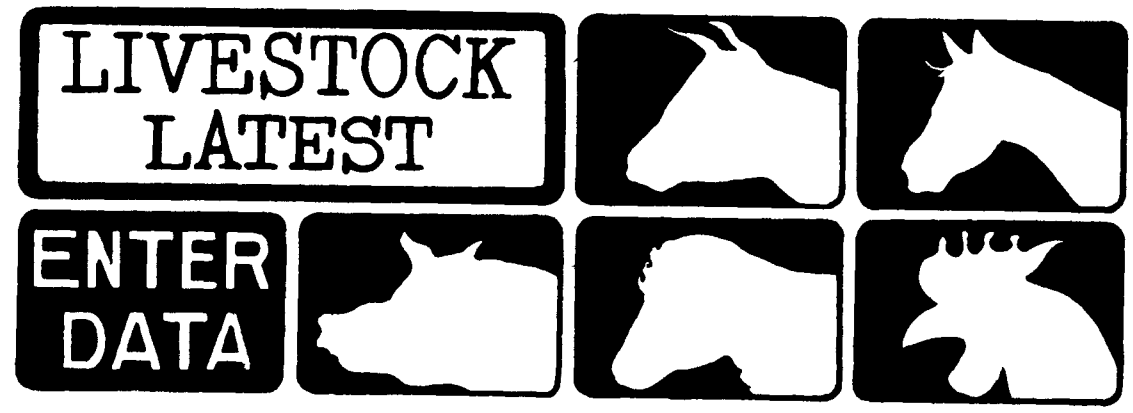
Judge Purdy is one of the most respected purebred livestock breeders in the world, and his selection to judge the 1984 Futurity marks the third time in the history of the show that he has served in this capacity. Prior assignments were in 1951 and 1973.

Purdy, born on a livestock farm in Missouri, had a long and distinguished career during his tenure of service at Penn State University and over the past four decades has judged nearly every major livestock show in the world.

Herman Purdy

Herman Purdy presently owns and manages Huntingdon Farms along with John Dawes near Alexandria, and their breeding program has produced countless national champions.

For entry forms, write to: Joe Bill Meng, Manager, ALL-AMERICAN ANGUS BREEDERS' FUTURITY, Rt. 3, Box 187, Bowling Green, Kentucky 42101, 502/529-3421.



Limousin releases industry's best sire summary

DENVER, Co. — The 1984 Linousin Sire Summary is out, and Dr. Keith Bertrand and Dr. Larry Benyshek, both of the University of Georgia, say the new edition can be described as "a 'dam' sight better than last year's summary."

In fact, the Limousin summary is a "dam" sight better than any of the U.S. breed sire evaluations that have been published so far, because it is the first and only one that includes information on dams in the sire analysis procedures.

Up until now, when values for sire evaluations were computed, it was assumed that the sire's offspring resulted from random matings, and the dam's genetic contribution was ignored as more or less a constant. However, in many cases, the progeny were not the products of a random mating system, but of a controlled breeding program, in which better sires were mated to better cows, or heifers were mated to easy calving bulls.

Either of these circumstances would throw the calculations off, and the bull's score in the sire summary would reflect more genetic credit than he actually deserved, because at least part of the calves' superiority came from the dam.

However, the 1984 Limousin Sire Summary marks a breakthrough for performance records in the cattle industry. For the first time, the summary incorporates information on dams in the evaluation process; and the computer makes an adjustment for the genetic material that was transmitted by the cow. As a result, the expected progeny differences (EPDs) in the new Limousin sire summary present the most accurate and complete measure of genetic differences between sires that is available today.

In addition to evaluating a bull's offspring when figuring EPDs, sire summaries also use pedigree information. In the past, only information from the sire side of the pedigree was used, but the new Limousin summary also uses relationships from the dam side. Using both sides of the pedigree increases the accuracy of prediction, which is especially important when evaluating young bulls with few progeny. Studying data from both the sire and dam sides also helps to account for genetic trends in the Limousin breed.

A third improvement in the 1984 Limousin sire evaluation is in the area of maternal traits. Before, only the sire's daughters' first calf weaning weights were used to predict his potential for transmitting milking ability to his daughters. The new summary includes records on all of the daughters' calves. The maternal EPD scores are more accurate because they have been adjusted for the number of daughters' progeny and the repeatability of weaning weight.

Benyshek and Bertrand, the scientists responsible for the changes in the 1984 Limousin Sire Summary, say the new methods "have enhanced the accuracy of the genetic evaluations tremendously." They say the summary is based on "sound genetic principles developed through the contributions of many researchers."

Because of the new procedures, the Limousin Sire Summary is not only the most accurate and most complete evaluation ever published, but also the largest, with more than 2,700 entires.

The '84 Limousin Sire Summary is available upon requests made to the North American Limousin Foundation, 100 Livestock Exchange Bldg., Denver, CO. 80216.

Limousin announces trait leaders in Sire Summary

DENVER, Co. — The North American Limousin Foundation (NALF) has released the names of the individual bulls leading its 1984 Sire Summary is each of four genetic traits: birth weight, weaning weight, yearling weight and maternal value.

Of the 2,728 bulls listed in the 1984 summary, the sire leading in birth weight is WS Nitro 157L, owned by the New Breeds Industries Inc., Manhattan, Kan. Performance data shows that Nitro's calves average 4.9 pounds lighter at birth than the average of all the bulls in the summary. Second in the birth weight category is Hibernain Nero, last year's leader in the trait. Hibernian Nero is owned by Palmetto Creek Farms, Pine Mountain, Ga.

Explorer BUIT 1L, owned by Jo-Mar Ranch, Harvey, N.D., and American Breeders Service, De Forest, Wis., leads the 205-day weight category for the second year in a row. The expected progeny difference (EPD) for this bull's calves is 14.8 pounds heavier at weaning than the summary average. Prairielane's Eros 6504H, owned by Allan Ogren, De Smet, S.D., comes in second in weaning weight this year with an EPD of 14.3 pounds.

Goldenview Krugerrand 250K, owned by McConnell Limousin Farms, Farwell, Mich., is the 1984 Limousin trait leader in adjusted 365-day weight. According to the evaluation, Krugerrand-sired calves weigh 29.4 pounds more than the sire summary average. The second spot in yearling weight is held by Black Mercedes LIM 66K, owned by American Breeders Service, De Forest, Wis.

The final trait, maternal value, is led by Dakota Chance 77, a bull owned by Pompadour Hills Ranch, Highmore, S.D. Maternal value measures a bull's transmitting ability for milk production and is found by taking the weaning weights of the bull's daughters' calves. The data shows that Dakota Chance 77's daughters wean calves that are 12.4 pounds heavier at weaning than the summary average. Circle Hercules, owned by Gregg Thompson, Broken Arrow, Okla., has the second highest maternal value, an EPD of 9.1 pounds.

The 1984 Limousin Sire Summary also includes an honor roll listing of bulls that excel in at least three of the four traits and are average or better in the other one. This year, 70 bulls qualified for the honor roll, compared to 19 last year.

The '84 Limousin Sire Summary is the most complete and accurate sire evaluation that has ever been published. It is the first one in the beef industry to use the new genetic relationship matrix on all traits and the BLUP (Best Linear Unbiased Predition) method for calculating maternal values.

The Limousin Sire Summary may be obtained free of charge by contacting the North American Limousin Foundation, 100 Livestock Exchange Bldg., Denver, Co. 80216.

AK-SAR-BEN to host Natl. Polled Shorthorn event

OMAHA, Nb. — The 1984 National Polled Shorthorn Congress will be held March 30-31 at Ak-Sar-Ben Field, Omaha, Ne. This annual show and sale is sponsored by the American Polled Shorthorn Society, and both the show and sale will feature 64 lots of strictly polled seedstock.

The sale will see top quality, high performance Polled Shorthorn bulls and females from top herds in the United States and Canada sell to buyers from across the continent. As in the past, numerous show champions, both past and upcoming, will be auctioned to the highest bidders.

Scheduled events during the congress include a show of sale cattle beginning at 1 p.m., March 30. Dr. Jerry Lipsey, University of Missouri, Columbia, Mo., will judge the show and evaluate the offering. The sale will then be held March 31, beginning at 10:30 a.m.

Additional agenda items include the annual meeting of the American Polled Shorthorn Society and a fund raising activity for the American Junior Shorthorn Association.

Livestock disease control topic of annual meeting

SOUTH ST. PAUL, Mn. — Bert Hawkins, administrator of APHIS-USDA, will highlight an observance of 100 years of animal health programs at the annual meeting of Livestock Conservation Institute, April 11 and 12, at the Marriott Hotel in Des Moines, IA. Hawkins, a cattleman who heads the livestock diseases agency of USDA which is observing its centennial this year, will discuss the future of livestock disease control and eradiction programs.

The annual meeting will be preceded by an identification workshop on April 10 beginning at 3 p.m. Representatives of various segments of the industry will discuss their views on implementation of a uniform identification system for all slaughter hogs, which is receiving renewed support within the swine industry. The session will be a joint meeting of the identification committees of LCI and the United States Animal Health Association.

LCI committee sessions will be April 11 and a general session addressing various animal health topics will be Thursday, April 12, Neal Black, president of LCI, said. A membership meeting will follow the luncheon on April 12.

The committee meetings will include discussions on current research and developments concerning brucellosis, pseudorabies, trichinosis, identification, swine dysentery, feeder cattle health, chemicals/additives/residues, emergency diseases, parasites, livestock handling, mycobacteriosis and swine abscesses.

Among presentations during the general session Thursday morning will be a discussion of needs for basic agricultural research by Dr. Terry Kinney, administrator of the Agricultural Research Service. Dr. Frank Mulhern, former administrator of USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, will express his views about brucellosis eradiction - is time running out?

Limousin juniors schedule heifer show

DENVER, Co. — Just picture baseball, hot dogs, apple pie and Limousin, and you'll have a pretty good picture of what the 1984 Limousin National Junior Heifer Show is going to be like.

Scheduled for Aug. 3-8 in Rapid City, S.D., the Limousin event will offer a variety of activities to keep junior members busy.

In addition to the heifer show on Tuesday, Aug. 7, the summer show billed as "Rushmore '84" will include a free, all-day bus tour to Mount Rushmore, the Devil's Tower and the Homestake Mining Company. Also on the schedule are softball and volleyball games, quiz bowl tournaments, a national public speaking contest, fitting and showing contests and a judging workshop. 4-H and FFA members are invited to participate in the judging workshop and contest, as well as Limousin junior members and adults.

The annual junior member meeting and officer election also will be held during the heifer show, but this year's meeting will have a new twist. Each junior who shows a heifer in Rapid City will have his/her name put into a drawing for semen from 10 exclusive bulls that are not available to the public. Juniors must be present at the meeting in order to win.

Entries for Rushmore '84 are due June 1, and youth wishing to participate in the heifer show must become junior members by June 1. Transfers for the show must be in the North American Limousin Foundation (NALF) office by May 15.

The Limousin National Junior Heifer Show is being held in conjunction with the Central States Fair in Rapid City. An open Limousin show will be held on Wednesday, Aug 8.

Angus scholarships offered

HOUSTON, Tx. — College scholarships totaling $4,900 will be awarded to deserving young boys and girls in 1984 by the American Angus Auxiliary, reports Mrs. Roland Burrows, Houston, Texas, Scholarship Chairwoman of the national Angus women's organization.

Scholarships will be awarded to eight high school graduating seniors who are active in Angus beef projects and school, community, and church activities. Five girl and three boy winners will be selected from the state applications. First place scholarship in each group will be $1,000, with $725 for second and $425 for third. There will be a $250 scholarship for the fourth place girl and a $150 scholarship for the fifth place girl.

Much of the Auxiliary scholarship money is generated from the sale of a donated heifer each year at the American Angus Futuritv. The heifer this year is being donated by Gary and Fred Sumner of ZR Ranch, Marlow, Oklahoma.

The scholarship entry deadline is June 25. The winners will be announced following the judging of the applications during the American Angus Futurity in Louisville, Kentucky. Applications may be made through state or regional Angus Auxiliaries. The names of state chairmen, applications and other information about the program can be obtained from Mrs. Roland Burrows, 9516 Briar Forest, Houston, Texas 77063.

Md. Guernsey Breeders to meet

JEFFERSON, Md. — Arnold Knight from Karksean, Wisc. will be the guest speaker at the 63rd Annual Meeting of the Maryland Cooperative Guernsey Breeders Association, Inc. to be held Saturday, March 17 at the Jefferson Community Center, 5 miles southwest of Frederick, off Route 340W, in Jefferson, Md.

Knight is the secretary of the Wisconsin Guernsey Breeders' Association. He will be talking about end-product pricing, high protein-producing cows, and the formation of Tri-State Milk Cooperative of West Salem, Wisc. Tri-State Milk Cooperative, an organization of over 500 members from Wisconsin, Minnesota and Iowa, has been in the forefront in the development and expansion of high-solids milk markets in Wisconsin.

Registration will begin at 9:30 a.m. and the business meeting will start promptly at 10 a.m. At noon a family style meal of turkey and ham will be served at a cost of $7.00 for adults and free for Junior members, courtesy of the state association.

A short business meeting is planned for the morning session. John B. Schnebly, state association president, will bring members up-to-date on Guernsey events. Also several awards for both adult and junior breeders will be presented during the meeting.

Send or phone reservations to Diane Garst Flickinger at 2701 Old Liberty Road, New Windsor, Md. 21776 (301-635-6166) by Tuesday, March 13.

Broiler test data given

GEORGETOWN, Del. — As a service to the broiler industry, poultry scientists at the University of Delaware Agricultural Experiment Station periodically conduct performance evaluations of recent broiler crosses. In 1983 five commercial broiler crosses were evaluated for a number of economic traits. The tests were conducted at the university's Georgetown substation in cooperation with the U.S. Department of Agriculture Poultry Research Laboratory in Georgetown, and the University of Maryland. A bulletin on the results, "1983 Delmarva Broiler Progeny Test," is now available.

Traits evaluated in the test include egg hatchability, grow-out performance, and processing yield and quality. Broiler progeny used in the trials were selected on the basis of a local industry survey and involved the following crosses: Arbor Acres x Arbor Acres, Peterson x Arbor Acres, Ross x Arbor Acres, Ross x Ross and Hubbard x Hubbard.

Researchers found that broiler cross had a significant effect on most parameters evaluated. General conclusions from the three trials which were replicated over a one-year period indicate the hatchability was 7.2 percent less with matings involvin the Ross sire. However, Ross paternal progeny had 84 grams more weight at 52 days of age, fewer breast blisters, superior conformation and improved eviscerated carcass, total breast and breast meat yields.

The H x H cross had inferior feed conversion and more leg disorders, particularly in male progeny. Both R x AA and AA x AA progeny had higher carcass and abdominal fat yields than P x AA and R x R birds. Leg, wing and back yield as a percentage of total parts was highest among AA x AA and P X AA progeny, while R x R and R x AA yielded the greatest proportion of breasts.

Other than broiler cross effects, sex and processing age significantly influenced most market traits, according to the evaluation team.

Copies of the bulletin are available by writing to extension poultry specialist George Chaloupka, University of Delaware Substation, R.D. 2, Box 48, Georgetown, DE 19947.

No-till meeting on March 27

COCHRANVILLE — "Chester County Farmers can test no-till corn and soybean planting for themselves again this year", John Stoltzfus of Stoltzfus Farm Service, Cochranville, reports. "An information meeting is being held Thursday, March 27, at 7:20 p.m. at the Farm Service shop."

"Farmers will be able again to use rental equipment to test no-till corn and soybean planting against their conventional tillage practices," Keith Zanzinger, County Agricultural Agent, explained. "This will give them a chance to see for themselves what is involved in no-till planting before investing in equipment."

The program was started last year with the encouragement of the Chester County Extension Service and the Conservation District. Nearly 300 acres of no-till corn and soybeans were planted by farmers using the rental planter. A telephone survey by Conservation District staff indicated that 90 percent of the users surveyed, were satisfied with the results.

Pownall Jones, Toughkenamon, Conservation District Director, has used no-till seeding of alfalfa in corn residue. He reports an excellent stand. He has been advocating no-till planting for several years. He has planted both corn and soybeans no-till. He has been well satisfied with his yields.

At a recent Crops Day, sponsored by the Extension Service, Jones reported on his 1983 experience. "I feel certain that my no-till corn out-yielded corn grown in nearby fields using conventional tillage. The corn was planted nearly the same day, weather conditions were the same, but my no-till had a good fifteen to twenty bushel higher yield."

Jones has all of his no-till planting done by custom operator Lewis Wilkinson, Landenberg. District Directors are encouraging custom operators of no-till equipment to promote their services. It is hoped that the seed, fertilizer and chemical suppliers will assist in bringing prospective new users and equipment or custom operators together. The availability of rental equipment or custom planting services permits the farmer to sample this technique without a huge commitment of money.

Participants at the March 27 meeting will include Steve Fisher, FMC Corporation; Richard Breckbill, Agway; J. Omar Stoltzfus, Stoltzfus Crop Spraying. Four farmers will discuss their experiences with no-till planting.

An efficient oval disc cutting system, coordinated with adjustable conditioning combs enable the Kuhn Mower Conditioner to reduce moisture uniformly in stems and leaves of hay and grass silage.

Kuhn reports new MC model

VERNON, N.Y. — An efficient, new mower-conditioner — that can speed drying time of hay and grass silage up to 50%— has been introduced to its line by Kuhn.

The FC 250 Mower Conditioner requires only 60 h.p. at power take-off for smooth operation and can mow and condition 5 to 6 acres of grass or legumes per hour. By reducing the threat of weather damage, high palatability of the forage is maintained.

Featuring an efficient cutting system of five oval discs, coordinated with adjustable conditioning comb, the Kuhn Mower Conditioner reduces moisture uniformly in stems and leaves. As grass goes through the conditioning comb, natural wax on the forage is stripped to provide faster drying of the forage. The conditioner is adjustable to 20 positions to suit your heaviest or most delicate crop in any weather.

Compact and maneuverable, the FC 250 has a working width of eight feet and operates smoothly at full speed without clogging in legumes or heavy grass. The machine can be used in various combinations of mowing, conditioning, fluffing and windrowing.

Kuhn features major warehousing for parts and service in both the northeast and southwest and also provides airlift facilities for fast parts service where required.

Further information on the FC 250, or other mower conditioner models — with cutting widths from 5 ft., 3 inches to 10 feet — may be obtained by contacting Kuhn Farm Machinery Inc., P. O. Box 224, Vernon, N.Y. 13476.

SE Farm Credit holds meeting

BY JACK HUBLEY

OXFORD — Election of directors and members of the 1985 nominating committee were key activities during the annual Joint Stockholders' Meeting of the Southeast Production Credit Association (PCA), and Southeast Federal Land Bank Association (FLB) held at the Oxford Fire Hall on Monday evening.

With the PCA serving farmers with short-term loans, and the FLB providing long term financing, the two organizations make up the Farm Credit System, the largest cooperative lending institution in the U.S.

All borrowers become stockholders of Farm Credit with voting privileges during the annual selection of board members. The PCA and FLB are each governed by a five to seven member board with directors nominated from within the membership.

A second meeting was held Tuesday evening at Christopher Dock Mennonite High School in Kulpsville, for those stockholders located within the five-county Southeast District who were unable to attend the Oxford event. Election results from both meetings were combined to determine new board members, as well as next year's nominating committee.

Newly-elected PCA board members include William P. Moore of Chatham, and Oxford resident Wilmer L. Hostetter. Elected to the 1985 PCA nominating committee were Elvin M. Rohrer Jr., Cochranville; Daniel Alderfer, Harleysville; Curtis F. Nice, Telford; Clinton J. Blackwell Jr., Toughkenamon; and Gerald L. Kulp of Pottstown.

Elected FLB members were Richard W. Edwards of Oxford, and Isaac C. Geissinger of Quakertown. New 1985 FLB nominating committee members are Robert L. Freed St., Harleysville; Theodore S. Wilson, Richborough; N. Thomas Mowrer, Spring City; Nelson W. Gough, West Grove; and Wilmer W. Rush of Perkasie

PCA-FLB Joint Board Chairman, Wallace Derstein, introduced the meeting and turned the evening over to PCA Vice President and board member, Wilmer Hostetter.

Keynote speakers for the meeting included Southeast Farm Credit's General Manager, Kenneth Risser, who gave an overview of the future of farm lending, and commented on the association's strength based on its diversified agricultural portfolio.

Other speakers included Penn State freshman, Bill MacCauley, the 1983 Farm Credit Scholarship recipient, and the PAFC Co-op Couple, Tom and Joyce Mowrer.

Entertainment was provided by author and newspaper columnist, Pat Leimbach, whose animated monologue on the day-to-day trials of the farm wife was punctuated by nearly continuous laughter from the 250 guests in attendance. A charter member of American Agri-Women, Pat has been the featured speaker at banquets and conventions from coast to coast. When not busy at the typewriter or on the lecture circuit, she teams with husband Paul in the operation of their potato farm near Cleveland, Oh.

York Farm Credit plans meetings

YORK — The annual stockholders meeting of the Federal Land Bank Association olf York and the Production Credit Association of York will be held at the Holiday Inn, Chambersburg; the Sheraton Inn, York; and the Embers Quality Inn, Carlisle; on Tuesday and Wednesday according to Robert E. Vinson, General Manager of the Associations.

A highlight of the meeting this year will be a report on the progress made by the associations during the past year. The election of three directors and the Nominating Committees are also on the program and a report of the Boards of Directors on important actions taken during the year.

Directors of the Federal Land Bank Association of York are J. Maynard Weary, President, Cumberland County; Leory R. Bupp, Vice President, York County; J. Wilbur Burkholder, Franklin County; Ralph H. McGregor, York County; and Horace H. Waybright, Adams County. Directors of the Production Credit Association of York are Rolla E. Lehman, II, President, York County; Marlin E. Miller, Vice President, Cumberland County; Ronald C. Allison, Franklin County; Norman G. Blocher, Adams County; and George H. Wolf, York County.

The associations make short, intermediate, and long-range loans to farmers in York, Adams, Cumberland, Franklin, Fulton, and Perry counties. The associations are entirely owned by the borrower-members they serve.

Ag week TV special planned

LANCASTER — "Not So Ordinary People", the National Agriculture Week television special, will be shown on some 135 television stations across the country during National Agriculture Week, March 16-22. Most stations will air the program on March 20, National Agriculture Day.

For the third year in a row, elanco Products Company presents this special broadcast to bring the story of agriculture to the American public. Co-sponsors include The American Bankers Association, Ford Motor Corporation, Stauffer Chemical Company, and Ford Tractor Operations.

This year, "Not So Ordinary People" focuses on three not-so-ordinary individuals who provide human insights into the contributions of farmers and agriculture to our economy and society. Viewers will meet Doris Royal, a farm wife who suddenly finds herself in the role of organizer and lobbyist. She leads a grassroots campaign to change the inheritance tax laws, and wins! Viewers will also meet Sam Washburn, a farmer and business man who travels the world as an agricultural consultant, and sits on President Reagon's Advisory Committee on Trade Negotiations. Finally, the story of the Robert Wilhelm family reminds us of the opportunity to succeed that is uniquely embodied in America and in agriculture. Through their stories, we discover that their concerns are concerns we all share: the ability of individuals to have a significant impact on the laws of our land; an abundant, wholesome and affordable food supply; and the opportunity to provide for ourselves and our families through hard work and initiative.

Doris Royal's story is a prime example of what one person can accomplish when the need is great. Inflation in the 1970's had pushed the value of the average farm, and all family-owned businesses, for that matter, to record levels. Under the existing inheritance tax laws, many widows were forced to sell their only means of livelihood, the family business, in order to pay the taxes. Doris took the lead position in a movement to change this law, and won a victory affecting many Americans today.

Sam Washburn is a role model for people in agriculture in the 80's. A successful businessman, Sam utilizes modern management techniques and sees the future of agriculture in high-tech production methods. Past president of the National Cattleman's Association, he travels the world to assist developing countries. He relies on farm organizations in order to be heard in a complex governmental world. Yet he, like the others in this program, is proud to be called a farmer, and expresses his viewpoint on this point in the program.

The Robert Wilhelm story reinforces our tradition of the value of the work ethic. Immigrants from Europe after WW II, Wilhelm and his family began with nothing but a dream. Hard work, a little luck, and acceptance by others gave the Wilhelm family the opportunity to provide for their future. And they were successful.

The first two specials, in 1982 and 1983, were enthusiastically received by farm and city folks alike. Last year, "Who Will Farm The Land?" discussed the problems and barriers facing young people who want to make farming their life. In 1982, "Prosperity in the Balance" took an overview of the economic concerns and impact of agriculture in a growing and changing world.

"We are pleased to present the National Agriculture Week television special for the third year in a row," says Vaughn Bryson, President, Elanco Products Company. "Agriculture is a vital part of our economy, and we believe it is important that the public understands the concerns of those who produce our food and fiber."

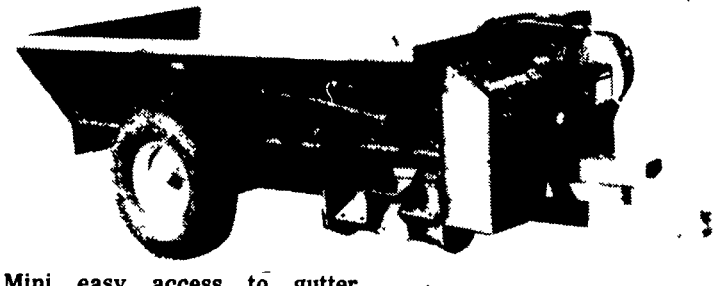
Spreader line expanded

MYERSTOWN — Hedlund/Martin announces the newest addition to its successful Scavenger spreader line—the Scavenger Mini. Designed expressly for the needs of smaller farming operations, the new model packs all the advantages of Scavenger technology into a competitively-priced 182 bushel capacity unit.

The Scavenger Mini quickly and easily spreads most types of manure-liquids, semi-solids, pen or pack. And it features an innovative, movable square auger, specially-designed to cut through tough or frozen loads. Martin-designed Variflo discharge, hydraulic gate and high RPM expeller reel combination, provides optimum application rate.

Chain-drive transmission requires less horsepower. Low profile design gives Scavenger



Mini easy access to gutter cleaners.

Scavenger Mini rounds out the line of four other versatile Scavenger models, all farmer-engineered for greater ease of maintenance and durability. For more information see your local Hedlund/Martin dealer or contact Hedlund/Martin, Inc., 841 Kutztown Rd., Myerstown, PA. 17067.

Vary corn hybrids to fight disease

BLOOMINGTON, Il. — To keep profit-robbing corn diseases at bay, it still makes sense to plant a selection of hybrids with varying strong points, says Mike Turner, Funk Seeds International manager of research administration and support services.

"Putting all your eggs in one basket is a risky approach to corn hybrid selection," Turner says. "Dry weather last season reduced outbreaks of many diseases, but this is a new year. So we have the potential for costly outbreaks of stalk rot, smuts, bacterial and fungal diseases and others."

Many diseases thrive on abundant moisture. "Obviously, corn growers can't control the environment, which has the most impact on disease outbreaks. They can, however, plant a selection of hybrids as insurance against a disease affecting their entire crop.

"Often the top-yielding hybrids don't have the top disease resistance characteristics," Turner points out. "So it becomes a matter of weighing a hybrid's yielding ability against its bred-in defenses, and choosing several to distribute across the farm. There should be a mix of 'race horse' hybrids and 'iron horse' varieties with strong genetic protection."

Turner points out that last year's PIK program, which substantially reduced the number of corn acres, did not reduce the threat of disease outbreaks this year. "Insects and other carriers of disease found ample refuge in the reduced crop acres, as well as in roadsides, fencelines and in PIK acres. None of the disease agents are in danger of disappearing."

In the southern Corn Belt, one disease may have the potential for an increase, some researchers believe [illegible]e dwarf mosaic virus overwinters in Johnsongrass, which grew out of control la[illegible] on many acres held out of production in the PIK program. "This may bring on more mosaic in 1984," says Turner.

Along with selecting a variety of hybrids to combat disease, Turner recommends watching for disease symptoms early in the season. Northern and southern corn leaf blights, for example, often go unnoticed before pollination. But if temperature and moisture conditions are right, they can slash yields. By getting a handle on the disease problems, growers can select more resistant hybrids in the future, Turner concludes.

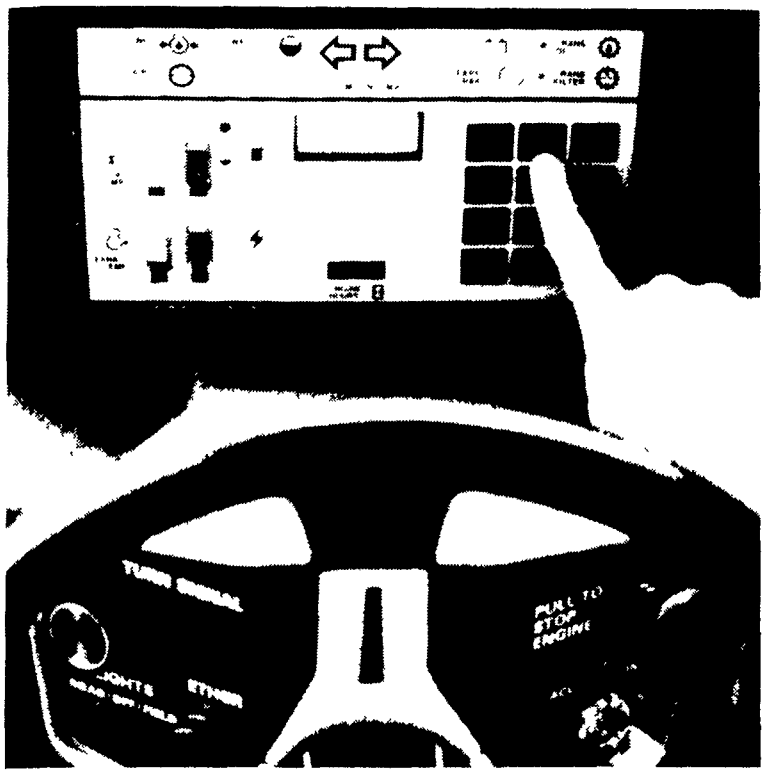
Electronics featured by Case



Digital instrumentation cluster is a standard feature on new Case 94 Series over 100 horsepower two- and four-wheel-drive tractors.

RACINE, WI. - Sophisticated electronics on the new J I Case 94 Series agricultural tractors provide monitoring of critical functions and accurate field performance data.

The new electronic digital instrumentation cluster — the only one of its kind now available in the industry as a standard feature — is featured on Case 94 Series over-100 hp two- and four-wheel-drive agricultural tractors.

The digital instrumentation cluster allows an operator to precisely measure tractor performance, including engine rpm, PTO speed, ground speed, area worked per hour and total area worked. With an optional true ground speed sensor, the percentage of wheel slippage can be accurately and constantly measured. Using this information, farmers can control the application of field chemicals or plant population more precisely. Monitoring percentage of wheel slippage helps an operator better determine distribution of tractor ballast for increased field efficiency.

Thirteen different indicators visually and audibly monitor operating functions such as engine oil pressure and temperature, transmission oil pressure and temperature, exhaust gas temperature, coolant temperature and level, alternator voltage and fuel level. An inexpensive option provides for automatic engine shutdown when malfunctions of vital systems approach the critical stage.

Case engineers consider the ability to determine ground speed the single most important function of the new 94 Series electronics.

"By knowing true ground speed, an operator can more precisely select operating gears for improved field efficiency," says George Mueller, J.I Case project engineer — electronics. "This knowledge also allows the farmer to more accurately determine the amount of chemicals that should be applied to a given area regardless of wheel slippage, engine rpm, soil conditions or tire selection."

Adams banquet on March 29

YORK SPRINGS — PFA president Keith Eckel will address the Adams County Farmers' Association at its annual spring meeting and banquet on Thursday, March 29, at the York Springs Fire Hall.

Reservations are due by March 22 to meeting chairman Ronald Funt, Box 352, Arendtsville. A 6 PM social hour will precede the banquet at 7 PM.

At the February meeting of the association directors accepted the resignation of secretary, Mary Mills.

Women's Committee Chairperson Joanne Clowney reports the association is seeking a youth that will finish grade 10-12 this year. The association will sponsor a trip for the youth to a Leadership Conference at Bucknell University June 24-28. Interested youth should contact 334-5406 before May 1.

Farmers treated to tour of China

BY KIMBERLY HERR

LEBANON — Lebanon County farmers relaxed after a bountiful meal Tuesday and prepared for a leisurely tour of China.

They learned how the Chinese grow vegetables, what foods they eat, how they travel and how they market their goods. They did all this without ever leaving the Prescott Firehall.

Those in attendance were treated to a tour of China, courtesy of a slide presentation by Ernest Bergman, professor of plant nutrition at Penn State, during the Lebanon Valley National Bank's Fifth Annual Luncheon Seminar.

Bergman explained that Penn State has an ongoing research program with the South China Ag College. He told his audience, "A farmer makes money today in South China."

He explained that farms are run by teams, which consist of 25 to 30 families. Each team is responsible for a different aspect of the agricultural process. The richest teams, according to Bergman are those dealing in silkworms, sugarcane or fish.

"We are spoiled and we don't know how well off we are," Bergman told his audience.

One of the problems in Chinese agriculture is the lack of nutrients in some of the soil. Working with people from Penn State, the Chinese, according to Bergman, have been able to correct some of the problems.

"Our Penn State soil test is one of the best in the world," Bergman said. "We proved over there (in China) that it works."

Bergman went on to explain some of the Chinese customs that seem humorous to those who are unfamiliar with them, and many of those in attendance broke into appreciative laughter often during his presentation.

On a more serious note, Tuesday's agenda got underway with Dr. Kay Wheeler from the USDA Avian Influenza Task Force. She showed a slide presentation, illustrating what physical effects the influenza has on the birds.

According to Dr. Wheeler, they are still investigating how the disease got started, but believe that flies played an important role in the spread of the disease.

She also stressed that the avian disease was not harmful to humans.

H. Louis Moore, professor of agriculture economics at Penn State, presented a talk on the "Pork and Beef Projections for 1984," and Charles Parrott, from the Trust Group Lebanon Valley National Bank, spoke on "Do Farmers Need Estate Planning?"

Robert Dever from the Interstate Milk Cooperative spoke on what farmers need to do to survive during the present state of agriculture. He recommended that

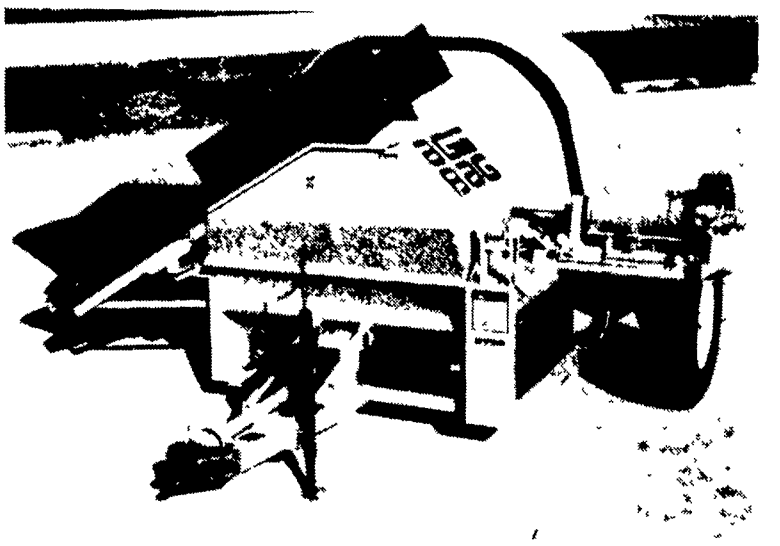
Compact forage bagger cited



Ag-Bag Corporation announces the addition of a smaller, compact Forage Bagger. The new machine is capable of compacting high moisture grains and haylage into an 8ft. x 150 ft. plastic Ag-Bag.

The two-wheeled gearbox machine features totally enclosed drive chains with oil bath and a retractable side unloading conveyor for ease of transport. Power source for the new Bagger is the PTO drive from any tractor of 60 horsepower or more.

The Jr. Bagger will be an addition to the line of Forage Baggers produced by the Ag-Bar Corporation. The larger, industrial size machines are available in three power options, diesel, power take off, and hydraulic.

The Tiller That's Really a Walk-Behind Tractor

BCS tillers do a lot more than till. Because the tiller unit can be replaced by a lot of other implements. Like the snow-blower. Or a lawn mower. Or a sickle-bar cutter. And it only takes a few minutes to make the change.

But you really have to see it to appreciate it. Come in and check out this mechanical masterpiece.

Ask to see the BCS in action. BCS

Sire Power fills sales post

TUNKHANNOCK — Robert East, Jr., Stuarts Draft, Va., is named to the position of District Sales Manager for Sire Power, Inc. He will be serving the areas of Southern Virginia and North Carolina.

East is a June, 1982 graduate of Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University (VPI) with a Bachelor of Science Degree in Agricultural Economics. He was a member of the Agricultural Economics Club, and served as a Teaching Assistant in the Agricultural Economics and Finance Department. He was also the recipient of the Governor's Agricultural Finance Fellowship Award, and the W.A. Spillman, Jr. Farm Management Award.

Prior to this appointment, East worked with the Southern State Cooperative Luray Service, Luray, Va. in a supervisory capacity, and had responsibility for direct sales contacts and store operations from July 1982 through September 1983. Bob has experience in managing farm activities and labor, and feeding of livestock by working on his father's farm in Virginia. He also worked at the VPI Dairy Cattle Research Center while attending school.

Bale slicer announced

COLDWATER, Oh. — Available as an option on the New Idea Model 484 Baler, the new bale knife cuts freshly-made big bales in half after they have been tied within the bale chamber. Each half comes out of the baler tied and has sufficient "footing" to remain standing upright. Bales can be completely sliced in two as they are made: or, the operator can control depth of the knife so it scores the bale but does not cut completely through, leaving an uncut core about 10 inches in diameter in the center. If handled carefully, the "scored" bale can be transported to the storage area intact, then broken in half for easy handling.

Tour of China

all of the milk cooperatives pull together for support and strength, rather than pulling against each other for separate concerns.

He also expressed the need for a national agriculture policy that would cover all the aspects of farming.

In conclusion, he explained to his audience that it was necessary to get the supply and demand back in line.

President of the Lebanon Valley National Bank also offered some words of advice, urging farmers to plan and to be certain they can afford a purchase before they buy it. He also recommended that farmers take a personal interest in their bookkeeping and not rely too heavily on accountants.

Manure
Friend and Foe

It is approaching that time of year when it will soon be time to "clean out" the box stalls and pens, and empty manure storage units. As we perform these tasks it is important that we consider manure both as a valuable resource and as a potential pollutant.

We also need to consider the effect of heavy manure handling equipment on soil compaction, and the toxic nature of some of the gases that linger in manure pits.

If it becomes necessary to enter enclosed manure pits, be sure they are well ventilated to remove hazardous gases. Some of the gases are very fast acting; they can numb your senses very quickly, resulting in paralysis and perhaps death. Some are explosive, so be careful with sparks, flames, etc.

When hauling manure, attempt to select days when fields are dry enough to avoid excessive compaction. When possible, avoid spreading manure on frozen ground to avoid runoff. With runoff, you not only lose valuable plant nutrients, you also contribute to pollution problems. To retain as many nutrients, you also contribute to pollution problems. To retain as many nutrients as possible, incorporate manure as soon as possible after applications; your neighbors will also love you for doing this, and its always more pleasant to be able to farm with their blessings rather than with their disapproval.

Use It Wisely

Apply manure at the recommended rates. By doing so, we can reduce the need for purchased fertilizer and avoid some of the yield-depressing effects of over application. Over application is a growing concern in areas of heavy livestock concentration. In addition to creating nutrient imbalances and toxic conditions in the soil, which depress crop growth, excess leaching from over-application also contributes to the contamination of our underground water supplies - and we need good, clean water for our families and herds.

How do you know how much manure to apply? One way is to have the manure tested. Manure test kits are available through your local Extension Office. Will you get test results back before you are ready to apply manure? Chances are, you won't. But don't let that deter you from testing. Test results now can be a valuable guide for determining future application rates; at least you'll be much more knowledgeable about how to use it than if you haven't tested.

For best results, manure samples should probably be collected as you are hauling it, after it has been agitated; you'll get a more representative sample in this manner. If you have open pits, if you switch to different bedding, or if your feed ration changes considerably from season to season, you may want to test manure at different seasons of the year, as it is being hauled. This will help you monitor the effect of rations, bedding and precipitation on the nutrient content of manure. Then, use the appropriate test results for similar situations as they exist next year.

Be sure to use soil test results in conjunction with the manure analysis results, and consider the needs of the crop to be grown as you determine application rates - just as you do when applying fertilizer. Then, use fertilizer to balance ou the nutrients which manure does not provide.

When applying manure to corn fields, you may want to apply enough to meet the nitrogen needs. The use of a starter fertilizer is still a good idea in many cases. After a few years, you may discover those P and K levels in the soil are becoming excessive. That may be the time to switch to alfalfa; it's a heavy feeder on these nutrients, especially K. By rotating crops like this, you'll help prevent these nutrients from reaching toxic levels. If manure is to be used for alfalfa, the best way to apply it is to plow it down before making a new seeding. If you have plenty of corn ground, some small grain crops, or some grass fields, apply most of your manure there; it'll do you more good there than it will top dressing alfalfa. Top dressing alfalfa with manure can encourage weeds and shorten the life of the stand.

Nutrient Losses

How many nutrients are lost in storage, and after application? The figures below can give you an estimate, but values will vary considerably depending on farm conditiosn.

Type of Storage System	Percent of Nutrients Retained Through Collection and Storage N	P	K
Dry Stack	60-80	80-95	80-95
Semi-Solid	60-95	80-95	80-95
Earthen Pit	60-80	80-95	80-95
Daily Haul	70-85	85-95	85-95
Tank	70-85	85-95	85-95

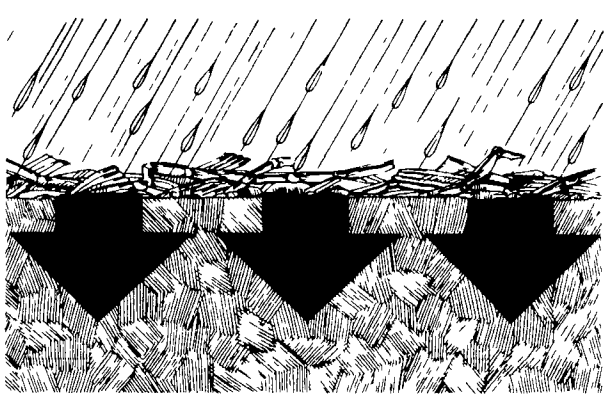
Three reasons why Bicep gives better control than most tank mixes.

Low volatility

Sure, most tank mixes do a pretty good job on weeds and grasses in corn. But what if you could get even better control with just a single product? With Bicep,® you can.

Bicep is different. It's the double-duty herbicide that gets both weeds and grasses all by itself. In fact, Bicep actually outperforms most tank mixes. One reason why is that Bicep is low in volatility.

Volatile herbicides escape into the air soon after application. They become ineffective. But not Bicep. Put it down and it stays put for season-long control—even in cool, wet weather.



Bicep goes into the soil, not into the air

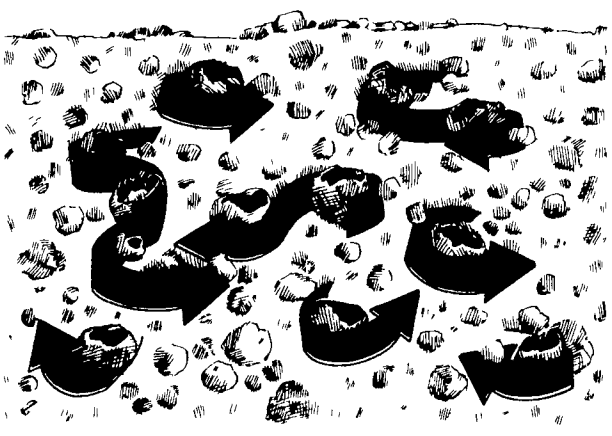
Low volatility is just the beginning of what makes Bicep better. Keep it in mind if you're up against tough weeds like cocklebur, pigweed, ragweed or black nightshade. Or late germinating grasses like foxtail, panicum or crabgrass.

Solubility

Bicep is more soluble than most tank-mix combinations.

Solubility is the ability of a herbicide to dissolve in water and become available for weed and grass uptake. The extra solubility of Bicep really helps. Because of it, Bicep is easily carried by water into the weed and grass germinating zone of the soil. And once it's there, Bicep is better dispersed. So it does a better job.

Greater solubility also makes Bicep readily available in the soil to be absorbed by the roots and shoots of weed seedlings that compete with corn. And it's part of the reason Bicep is so effective in reduced tillage fields. A light rainfall is all it takes to wash Bicep off surface trash and into the soil where it will go right to work.



Bicep stays available and active in the soil solution

Yet, for all its solubility, Bicep doesn't leach out significantly. It will give you the control you need right through harvest, even in a rainy growing season.

Excellent adsorption

Adsorption is the adhesive quality of a herbicide—how tightly or loosely it clings to soil particles. A herbicide that is too adsorptive becomes tied up by the soil—it becomes inactive. A herbicide that is not adsorptive enough leaches out excessively.

But with Bicep, adsorption is excellent, which helps explain why Bicep has staying power. Bicep stays active in the germinating zone right through harvest. Yet there are no carryover problems with Bicep, so you can rotate to soybeans.

Bicep stays active in the germinating zone of weeds and grasses

Low volatility Greater solubility. Excellent adsorption. These are just some of the properties that help make Bicep better than most tank mixes. Your dealer can tell you about other Bicep advantages. Talk to him soon.

The above losses are further increased in the field, and the losses will vary depending on application and incorporation practices. Nitrogen in manure is present in liquid and solid forms. Generally, the ration is about 50:50 - if you've done a good job saving the liquids. The liquid phase is readily available to plants in the year of application. It is also quite vulnerable to volatization and to leaching if it hadn't yet been taken up by the crop. This volatile phase is quickly lost by agitation and by exposure to sun and air after application. That's why it is so important to incorporate manure quickly and to minimize agitation and spraying.

On the other hand, the solid (organic) form is slowly released. Only about half of it is available in the year of application; the remainder is available in future years.

The liquid phase also contains a major portion of the K. However, unlike N, it is not volatile, but it can leach. Most of the P is in the solid phase, and it is rather stable.

Target ag policy to family farm

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The National Grange has urged the House Agriculture Committee to recognize the changing nature of farm production when writing the 1985 Farm Bill. Edward Andersen, leader of the nation's oldest farm organization, testified recently that farm programs of the past helped thrust American agriculture into world prominence, but the programs needs to be re-examined in light of changes that have occurred in agriculture during the past 50 years.

Andersen noted that previous farm bills have been written on a commodity-by-commodity basis "without proper focus on the overall effect such programs were having on the structure of agriculture." The Grange leader wants a farm bill that does what previous farm bills attempted to do without success which is aid the size farm that is family owner/operated. In order to help the family sized farm, Andersen said the government must avoid distributing farm program benefits to farms that don't need help. "Because our farm programs reward production volume, the biggest farms get the biggest payments regardless of need," he said.

Andersen reminded the Committee not to confuse farm size with farm efficiency. In the past, farmers were urged to get bigger to capture scales of efficiency, but Andersen pointed out there are limits to efficiency. "We have heard entirely too much talk about the 'inefficient' farmers being forced out of production, when, in fact, efficiency has very little to do with it," he said. The real issue is how farms are financed. Andersen suggested that the Committee consider farm programs that offer income supplements to farmers who need assistance.

Andersen also urged the Committee to begin work, in conjunction with the tax-writing committees, to overhaul the tax code in order to better serve family agriculture. He cited a recent report to Congress that acknowledged that more funds to the treasury are lost through farm-related tax shelters than what the treasury earns by taxing farm profits.

"Farming has become a total tax loser because of sheltering," Andersen remarked. He noted that for every dollar a farmer pays in legitimate income tax, some nonfarm investor is using a farm tax shelter to hide more than a dollar of income earned in some other business. "That's not the way it was supposed to turn out," he said. "Just as we have failed to target our farm program benefits to family agriculture, we have failed to target our tax policies to those whom we intended to benefit," Andersen concluded.

Tioga plans crops day

WELLSBORO — The Tioga County Cooperative Extension Service is sponsoring a Crops and Soils Day on Tuesday, March 20, at the Youth Center on the Tioga County Fairgrounds, Whitneyville, from 10 a.m. until 3 p.m.

This year's program will include seed dealers, fertilizer & lime dealers, chemical companies, machinery dealers and others interested in setting up a display. They will have a chance to talk to the farmers.

A free lunch will be served to everyone and the cost covered by the rental of the booth space.

Dealers interested in setting up a display should contact the Extension Service as soon as possible at the Courthouse Annex in Wellsboro, or by phoning 717-724-1906, Ext. 266.

The Systems Approach of Hershey Equipment lets you put it all together

Todays profit minded poultry, swine, and grain producers must think in terms of an automatic system.
"System thinking" can help you plan away problems before you begin, or it can help you automate away problems you now have.
Hershey Equipment Co. is geared to provide all components of the system including equipment, plumbing, electrical and building. This will assure that the pieces will fit together to form a profitable system.

The Dairy Business

By Newton Bair

By Newton Bair

Did you ever wonder how a writer comes up with an idea for a column every week or perhaps every day? I'll tell you how this one does it. It isn't easy. I usually begin by reviewing the news and events of the past weeks that farmers are talking about. Also, the things that I think they should be thinking about. Somewhere in all that there is usually an inspiration worth writing about. So much for ideas.

Now comes the tough part. After the title is on the screen, there is usually a long period of meditation, staring blankly at the first couple of words. Then I decide that there is something else that needs doing, so this chore can wait until I'm in a better mood for the job. A typical put-off-skey, a dilly dallier, a professional procrastinator. Later on though, after wasting a couple of hours in useful work like editing the comic strips or reviewing the latest TV soap opera, the brain gets unglue' and we're back in business.

Well, this time I got to thinking about some topics of conversation which are floating around among my friends. It got rather depressing, because there seems to be a lot of pessimism in the air these days. Over production, low prices, shortages of feed, the cold weather this winter, the heat last summer, the insolence of politicians, high interest rates, the unbalanced budget etc., etc., etc., ad nauseum. Everbody seems to be worrying about the Alphabet, Virus AI, BVD, TB, SCC, DHIA, ENA, TPI, PDT, PDM, PDF, and CI. There are probably a lot more kinds of alphabet soup, and if you don't find them palatable, don't feel bad, You are not alone. I'm not sure that I understand them either.

So, just for this one time, I thought it would be good for the digestion to do some positive thinking. After all, there must be plenty of pleasant things going on in the farm scene. Like, for instance, having extra time to spend with the family during the long winter evenings, and spending a profitable and enjoyable day with your neighbors attending dairy meetings. Some of you might even take a winter vacation. How about a week in Hawaii or New Orleans or Disney World? Or even a weekend visiting Aunt Christie and Uncle Bob can do you worlds of good.

Did you visit and use a Library lately? There are several excellent ones in nearly every town, and they are free. If you haven't done it, take an afternoon off and browse around in your community library. Just looking at the endless array of good books should inspire you to want to dig into that vast fund of information. There is no excuse for anybody pleading ignorance on their favorite subject these days. Reading is one of our greatest priveleges, and there is no end to the variety of subjects, both educational and entertaining. I'm specially fortunate because Priscilla is a volunteer librarian and keeps our household well supplied with reading matter. We each read at least oen and sometimes two books a week. It sure beats keeping your eyes glued to the tube!

Of course, we could go on and expound on the cliche's like Take time to smell the Daisies, and give that cute calf an extra pat on the head, or take a course on How to operate a Computer. They are all very sensible, in their proper season, and are symbolic of the positive attitude we are trying to accentuate. What it all boils down to is, don't get so blamed bogged down and depressed over the thorns and stumble-blocks of life. Let your imagination run a little wild this time of year, and do something a little different. It'll clear out a lot of cobwebs and make life a lot more fun and even make you more of a hero to your spouse and kids.

Just thinking these off-beat thoughts has given me a lift, and I can't even remember what it was that started me thinking about them in the first place. I can't wait to get back to the last chapter of Edwin Way Teals', "Journey into Summer". It is like taking a leisurly tour of the USA, and gets me all fired up for Spring. So much for the winter blues.

"Twist-Lock" cups: newest innovation from the new leader

The new SWISH Twist Lock cup is available also for brood grow

...another reason SWISH saves you more labor, more birds, and more money

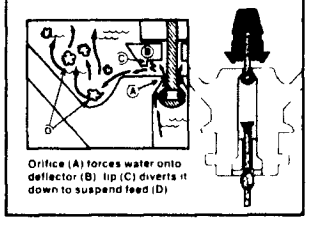
The newest twist in cage watering makes cup cleaning and maintenance a real snap. It's SWISH's Twist-Lock cups for cage layers and brood-grow watering systems.

Saves labor. No more contortions with hand tools inside a cage – one simple twist of the wrist unlocks and removes the unitized cup and valve. It's that easy to maintain when necessary.

But with SWISH, it's hardly ever necessary. That's because our cup is self-cleaning. Our patented valve keeps the cup clean by flushing any feed particles out so birds can consume them with the water.

Installation is a snap too with SWISH's new cups. They simply snap into the desired location and the hose attaches to the water line outlet. These are some of the ways SWISH's new cup saves you labor – easy installation, low maintenance and labor savings between flocks because our cup constantly cleans itself.

PATENTED VALVE IS KEY TO OUR PERFORMANCE



Orifice (A) forces water onto deflector (B). Tip (C) diverts it down to suspend feed (D).

Helps save more birds. Because our cup is self-cleaning, algae and bacteria growth is not a problem as with cups that don't flush out feed particles. Clean cups mean less chance of disease and less mortality. And our big cup means good access to water for a good level of bird health.

SWISH saves you money. That's the bottom line with a system that cuts labor and keeps birds alive and productive.

Get all the facts about our new cup and other SWISH innovations. See your SWISH distributor or contact us.

Farm toy show planned

STRASBURG — A toy show, specializing in farm toys, is planned to be held on Saturday, March 24 at Historic Strasburg Inn. The show will open to the public at 9:30 a.m. and will remain open until 3 p.m.

Farm toy collecting has become one of the fastest growing hobbies in the past few years.

The show will draw people from quite a large area. Collectors and dealers will be setting up for the show from New Hampshire, Virginia, New York, Michigan, Maryland, South Carolina, Indiana, and Pennsylvania.

Farm toy collecting includes toys which were made in the 1920's up to current special collector models. Collectors come from many walks of life and all ages. Collectors may be farm kids, equipment dealers, retired farmers, model collectors, or farm helpers.

Wayne dairy day on Thursday

HONESDALE — Fred Hughes, Penn State Extension farm management specialist, will be the featured speaker at the 1984 Wayne County Dairy Day on Thursday from 9:30 a.m. to 3:15 p.m. at the Wayne County Veteran's Memorial Armory.

Hughes, project leader in farm management Extension, and coordinator of agricultural Extension programs, has been a member of the Penn State faculty since December, 1954.

Hughes will give two presentations at Dairy Day on Profitable Dairy Farming in the 80's and Economics of Dairy Cattle Feeding. Other features of Dairy Day will be a talk by Margret Non, Wayne County Dairy Princess, slide presentations on calf and heifer raising, commercial exhibits and lunch provided by the exhibitors.

All dairy farm families are invited and reservations can be made by calling the Agricultural Extension Office at 253-5970, ext. 114.

ONE SIZE DOESN'T FIT ALL.

Kubota has the field covered with dozens of diesel tractors, from 10 to 76 PTO horsepower.

And while they may vary in size, some things are the same on every model. The Kubota diesel engine, for example.

So take a look. There's a diesel-powered Kubota in your size.

Farm Credit gives grant

NEWARK, Del. — Joshua J. Willey, III, of Milford, a University of Delaware junior majoring in plant science, has received a $500 Delaware Farm Credit scholarship for the 1983-1984 academic year. Willey transferred to the College of Agricultural Sciences last fall from the university's parallel program at Delaware Technical and Community College in Georgetown.

The Milford native says he is working toward a career in the wholesale nursery industry and would eventually like to produce houseplants and bedding plants. His interest in horticulture dates back to experiences as a teacher's assistant and greenhouse manager in high school. He and his father (a machine operator at the DuPont technical laboratory in SEaford) run a part-time tree service. Having now met his basic course requirements, Willey says he is looking forward to taking classes in plant propagation and greenhouse management at the university next fall.

Holly Gay Roland of Viola, last year's junior Farm Credit winner, received a renewal of her scholarship. She is now a senior and is also majoring in plant science.

Joshua J. Willey III

Since 1981 the Delaware Farm Credit Associations have awarded a scholarship annually to a junior majoring in some aspect of agriculture at the university. Recipients must be full-time students and their parents or guardians must reside in Delaware. Awards are based on merit and may be renewed for the student's senior year, upon request.

Hopkins gets Del. award

LEWES, Del. — William N. Hopkins of Green Acres Farm, Lewes, is this year's winner of the George M. Worrilow award from the University of Delaware Agricultural Alumni Association. Presented annually, the award recognizes outstanding service to agriculture by a university graduate.

Hopkins grew up on a farm near Lewes and after attending high school there, earned his bachelor's degree in agricultural education from the University of Delaware. He graduated in 1942 and taught vocational agriculture for two years at A. I. du Pont High School near Wilmington before going into dairy farming.

Long recognized as an outstanding farmer, in 1956 he was a Delaware corn yield winner and in 1960 received the USDA Award of Merit. He has been active in many community and farm organizations including the Sussex County Farm Bureau (which he helped organize), the Coolspring and Henlopen Grange, Delaware Guernsey Cattle Club, Delaware Holstein Cattle Club, Delaware Safety Committee, Lewes Rotary Club (one year as president), and Henlopen Ruritan Club. He served on the Lewes school board for 17 years, three of them as president, and also has been a member of the Board of Education of Sussex County Vocational and Technical College. He has been a member of the Sussex County ASCS, and in 1960 served as president of the State ASCS Committee. Since 1972 he has been a director of the Inter-State Milk Producers Cooperative and currently is a member of the executive committee.

Hopkins is married to the former Dorothy Elizabeth Cann. They have 10 children, eight of them graduates of the University of Delaware.

Hopkins is a well-known and respected member of Delaware's agricultural community.

Pork Producers hold legislative seminar

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Almost 200 of the nation's pork producers gathered in Washington, D.C. recently for the annual Legislative Seminar sponsored by the National Pork Producers Council. The message they heard from several members of Congress and a panel of Washington representatives from other farm commodity groups was remarkably similar: "You've got to be actively involved in Washington every day in order to protect your industry's best interests."

Agriculture Secretary John Block, taking part in a portion of the Seminar commemorating the successful effort to keep African Swine Fever from spreading to the U.S. mainland and the U.S. hog population, had high praise for the efforts of the NPPC and its members in alerting authorities early to the potential consequences of the problem. As Secretary Block put it in his prepared remarks, "There was nothing easy about what was done! There was nothing easy about the part you (NPPC) played in doing it. You did not wait for a government report; you brought back your own."

"When I took on this job as Secretary of Agriculture, I began to see the effects of how the National Pork Producers Council was preparing for the task. You had already built support in Congress, and then you secured commitments in the Administration to tackle this very difficult job. It was a pleasure to step into my role with such able partners," the Secretary said.

NPPC President Wayne Walter, who presented Secretary Block and several other officials with Certificates of Appreciation, said the three year program that resulted in eradication of African Swine Fever from the Dominican Republic and Haiti averted a disaster that could have cost the U.S. pork industry as much as five billion dollars had this most serious of swine diseases reached the hog population on the U.S. mainland.

In other portions of the Legislative Seminar a lineup of top speakers, including U.S. Senators Robert Dole (R) of Kansas, and Walter Huddleston (D) of Kentucky, U.S. Representatives Roger Jepsen (R) and Tom Harkin (D), both of Iowa, urged pork producers to get involved in formulation of the 1985 Farm Bill.

During a pork-rib luncheon at the U.S. Department of Agriculture, co-hosted by NPPC and Secretary Block, NPPC President Walter told about 500 invited guests they would be seeing a lot more of the nation's pork producers in the months ahead as proposed new farm legislation is being determined.

Agriculture Secretary Block's wife, Sue, took the occasion to announce arrangements for several youngsters from Washington, D.C.'s inner city to visit the farm of the Frank Case family at Suffolk, Va. in the near future. Case is president of the Virginia Pork Producers organization. He and his wife and three youngsters took part in the ceremony at the Agriculture Department, along with several of the children from Washington, D.C.'s inner city.

Start with soil test to judge fertilizer needs

DeKALB, Il. — Fertilizer costs can comprise up to 25 to 30 percent of today's corn crop input costs, totaling as much as $60 to $80 per acre. Efficient use and management of this important input is essential to productive and profitable corn production.

Basic strategy to obtain the most return from each fertilizer dollar includes a good soil testing program, combined with tissue testing and plant analysis. Also, growers should set yield goals and evaluate some of the new fertilizer application technologies.

Sound fertilizer decisions require current reliable soil test information for each field. Know what is available from the soil. Next, set yield goals for your soil types and growing conditions. From this basic information the grower can determine approximately the amount of nutrients which must be applied to reach the yield goal. Soil tests should be performed at least every three years to provide accurate information on nutrient availability and lime requirements. For no-till farmers, recent research indicates that sampling the upper three inches of soil and the three-to-eight inch layer separately provides better information for fertility recommendations and pH considerations.

Next, growers may want to consider some of the more efficient options available for fertilizer application. Splitting nitrogen applications is not a new concept, just one of increasing economic interest. Good efficiency has been shown by applying 50 to 75 percent of the total nitrogen requirements pre-plant or during planting, followed by side dressing the remaining 25 to 50 percent. A saving of up to 30 lbs. of actual N per acre can be realized without sacrificing yield. Also, by side dressing 25 to 50 percent of the nitrogen and staying with the recommended rate, a corresponding yield increase can be expected over the yield goal.

Another fertilizer application technique called "strip banding" is gaining much attention due to its improved efficiency and the rising cost of fertilizer. This concept involves the application of phosphate and potash in concentrated bands 20 to 30 inches apart. Fluid fertilizers lend themselves well to this technique, but new application equipment is opening this market to dry fertilizer as well. The basic principle behind the "strip" concept is that the concentrated band of fertilizer allows for better nutrient availability and is less "tied up" in the soil profile. University and independent research has shown yield increases as great as 7 to 10 bushels per acre with the strip application compared to broadcast.

Finally the efficient minded corn producer should make certain the crop is optimizing nutrient uptake. This is best determined by tissue testing and plant analysis. Field tissue tests at silking will indicate if adequate levels of essential nutrients are in the plant. If results indicate uptake problems, more detailed plant analysis by a university or commercial lab is advised to help pinpoint the problem.

Ag banquet set in Tioga

Ag chemical seminar planned

CARLISLE — A seminar on current issues in agrichemicals will be held at the Embers Restaurant in Carlisle on Friday, March 23. PennAg Industries Association is sponsoring this meeting, which will begin at 8 a.m. and end at approximately 11:30 a.m. Breaktast will be included.

The featured speaker will be Richard F. Blewitt, Vice President for Corporate Affairs of the Velsicol Chemical Corporation. The subject of discussion will be media relations and the Ag chemical industry. Blewitt, author of "Primed and Committed", a guide for working with the media, has had considerable experience in dealing with the media. He was recently featured on CBS's "60 Minutes" program.

The semiar will also provide participants with an update on the EDB situation, the Chesapeake Bay Study, Pennsylvania House Bill 1236 (the "right to know" bill) and other current issues.

Anyone interested in attending should send their name, address, and company affiliation with a check for $7.00 to PennAg Industries Association, P.O. Box 329, Ephrata, Pa. 17522.

Swine ventilation stressed

NEWARK, Del. — Adequate ventilation is an important factor in managing swine confinement facilities. Inadequate winter ventilation can lead to herd health problems. Poor summer ventilation can aggravate odor problems and heat stress in hogs.

University of Delaware extension agricultural engineer Jim Scarborough has prepared a fact sheet to help swine producers improve air circulation inside confinement units through use of an exhaust ventilation system. The publication covers airflow requirements as they relate to different types of hog house construction, number of fans needed per number and size of hogs in a herd, hot and cold weather requirements, and design, placement and management of air inlets.

Copies of the four-page fact sheet, "Exhaust System Ventilation Requirements for Swine Housing," are available from county extension offices in Newark (451-2506), Dover (736-1448) or Georgetown (856-5250).

New Extrazine

Four steps ahead of atrazine for weed control in corn.

1. Ahead in grass control.

New Extrazine™ herbicide gives you superior grass control over atrazine, especially on problem grasses like giant and yellow foxtails, fall panicum, crabgrass, annual bluegrass and barnyardgrass. It also delivers excellent control of tough broadleaves, including annual morningglory, cocklebur, velvetleaf, pigweed and lambsquarters. Extrazine stops 57 weeds in all. Extrazine offers long residual control, but unlike atrazine, Extrazine reduces carryover potential to open up cropping options.

2. Ahead in a tank mix.

Extrazine tank mixed with a grass herbicide gives superior, broader spectrum weed control compared to ordinary atrazine/grass herbicide combinations. Extrazine kills both grasses and broadleaves through root uptake, and the grass herbicide works through the shoots. This root-and-shoot action means more consistent performance in varying weed, weather and soil conditions. Thus an Extrazine/grass herbicide combination provides the same excellent broadleaf control of an atrazine tank mix, but offers superior grass control.

3. Ahead in conservation tillage.

Extrazine gives excellent and consistent weed control in heavy crop residue. In no-till, Extrazine will burn down weeds up to 3 inches high and can end the need for costly contact herbicides. This burndown is even more effective when Extrazine is applied with a liquid fertilizer. And Extrazine root action boosts residual control of germinating weeds that "shoot action" grass herbicides frequently fail to control.

4. Ahead with SPA.

We're so convinced of Extrazine's superior performance that we're standing behind it with a Satisfied Performance Agreement. See your Shell Representative or participating dealer for details. This year, get more than atrazine can deliver. Move up to the corn herbicide that's four steps ahead of atrazine. Ask for new Extrazine, the atrazine alternative. Use as directed.

Are producer-owned meat packing plants needed?

NEWARK, Del. — Meatpacking — the slaughter and processing of livestock — is an increasingly unsettled industry. Yet it's the critical link between livestock production and meat consumption. "Delaware livestock producers, especially of pork and beef, need to seriously consider the future of meatpacking in this area and explore alternatives, including producer-owned meatpacking plants," says University of Delaware extension economist Gerald F. Vaughn.

Meatpacking operations have changed radically in recent years, the economist says. The trend today is toward fewer and larger packers. Acquisition, merger, bankruptcy, wage concessions, plant closings, plant reopenings and other readjustments have confused the structure of the meatpacking industry.

The full impact of these changes isn't yet clear. Livestock producers fear that large packers will depress livestock prices. Consumers are concerned that large companies, by controlling the market, will drive up wholesale and retail meat prices. And small competing packers worry about being forced out of business.

Delaware's main livestock enterprises, other than poultry and dairy, are hogs and beef cattle. Expanding pork and/or beef production would help diversify the state's agricultural base and supplement farmer income, Vaughn says. But the lack of local slaughter houses and market outlets could prevent this expansion.

For years hogs were a sideline among Delaware farmers, who used the animals to glean fields of fed them low cost home-produced and waste feeds. Production facilities were meager and followed a single litter system. Many farmers still raise a few pigs for home use and extra income, but over the past decade a specialized confinement, continuous pork production system has become well established in the state.

"The long term value of these newer intensive management systems in Delaware is still uncertain," Vaughn says. However, commercializing production has forced farmers to adopt new technology in breeding, nutrition, housing and disease control. "The result has been a much more efficient and competitive hog industry. Yet small-volume producers with full equity, especially if they have a diversified farm business, may withstand current economic stresses better than large-volume farmers who are deeply in debt."

Nationally, hog production is rapidly becoming even more specialized, the economist says. "Full-supply contracts between hog producers and meat processors would seem a logical extension of the integrated production-marketing system so successful with broilers."

In light of this trend, long-run price advantages for hogs, feed and transportation, and size of enterprise may favor increased pork production in the Corn Belt. How will this affect local pork producers?

Despite some drop in Delaware hog production in the early 1980s, Vaughn sees the potential for at least modest expansion, including participation in a regional or national electronic market system. The outlook would be even better, he says, should local corn yields rise dramatically as the result of more extensive irrigation. If this occurs, surplus corn not needed for broilers would likely be best used as swine feed.

Delaware's beef industry consists primarily of small cow-calf or cow-yearling operations. Finishing, a more specialized enterprise, is concentrated mainly on one feedlot run by a large vegetable processor. Beef cattle inventories and marketings in the state fluctuate sharply from year to year.

Vaughn believes current economic conditions favor at least modest expansion of local beef operations. Cattle rising in particular, he says, lends itself to part-time farming by more affluent people who want to own land and live in the country. The climate in Sussex County is mild enough to grow winter forage which can be grazed between September and March or April. And there may be a good market for dairy beef.

With good management, some farmers might be able to supplement their income by raising beef in idle dairy facilities, feeding grain and vegetable crop residues, the economist says. "Profits depend largely on using low cost feeds. But unless managed carefully, cattle operations aren't very competitive in the use of labor and capital."

Loss of area meatpacking plants is the biggest problem for Delaware pork and beef producers. "The Northeast is a pork and beef deficit market," Vaughn says. "Processors receive daily shipments of animals for slaughter from the eastern edge of the Corn Belt and southern states. These animals compete with eastern produced livestock, both in price and consistent quantity and quality."

Northeastern slaughter houses dependent on supplies of live animals from distant production areas have trouble competing with packing plants located in those areas, where live animal prices, as well as labor and operating costs, are lower. As transportation and labor costs rise, the trend in meatpacking has been toward complete breakdown of carcasses into wholesale or consumer cuts and packages (boxed pork or beef) at the place of slaughter.

As midwestern shipments of boxed meat to the East Coast increase, there's always the chance that more nearby slaughtering facilities may go out of business, Vaughn says. If this should happen, many Delaware farmers would probably stop producing hogs or beef. Sheep producers did this when their nearby market outlets closewd.

To keep this from happening, the economist suggests mid-Atlantic livestock producers discuss the situation with processors, farm cooperatives, feed manufacturers, distributors and other related businesses having a vested interest in a strong, competitive local livestock industry.

"Producers of farm commodities often band together to preserve an area market outlet," Vaughn says. "Producer-owned meatpacking facilities, either as cooperatives or privately-held corporations, might be worth considering for Delaware."

In regions with limited livestock production, smaller meatpackers may profitably serve local or specialized markets that large packers can't, he says. Such small plants typically engage in commercial slaughtering; custom slaughtering, processing and freezing; wholesaling meat to local hotels, restaurants, schools, nursing homes and other institutional buyers; and retailing meat to consumers. These plants may actually have an advantage over larger firms in being able to offer special customer services.

Carefully examine the pros and cons of meat-packing operations

NEWARK, Del. — In some cases livestock producers in Delaware and other mid-Atlantic states may benefit by establishing producer-owned packing plants, either as cooperatives or privately-held corporations, says University of Delaware extension economist Gerald Vaughn.

"Such operations can have several possible advantages," says the economist. "A producer-owned plant can enjoy a dependable livestock supply. At the same time, its owners reduce the risk of not having a market for the animals they raise. They're also assured a fair price with prompt payment, though realistically they shouldn't expect more than the market price."

Before deciding to get into the meatpacking business, however, Vaughn urges livestock producers to take a close look at the factors involved.

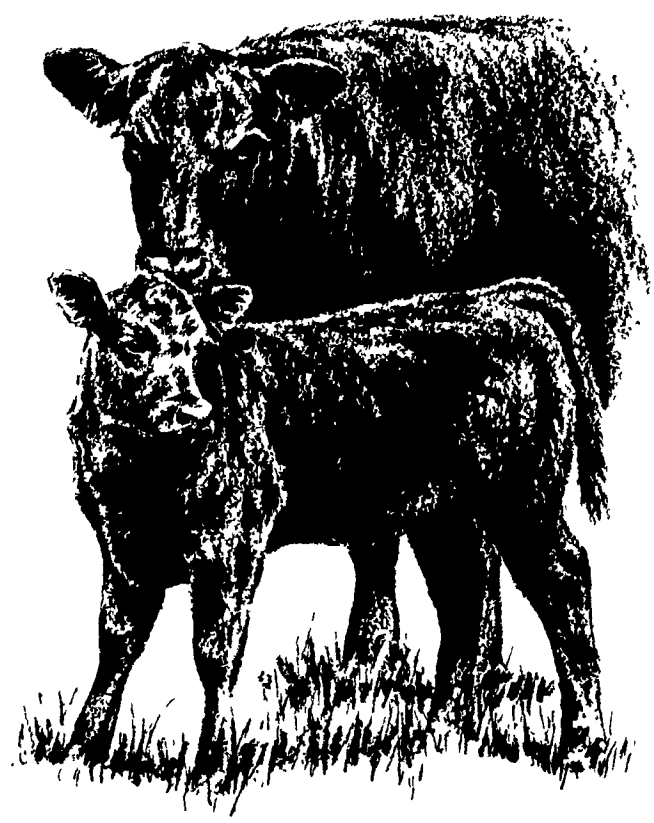
Investigate marketing opportunities available to such a plant. Is this the appropriate solution to an area's marketing problem? Look at current and future marketing conditions. Analyze likely costs and benefits from a producer-owned plant. Consult with existing packers and others knowledgeable about the industry.

If the outlook is favorable, be prepared to commit livestock, money and time to the enterprise. This means agreeing to grow the type of meat the plant's customers want. It also means delivering livestock for slaughter when promised.

"Clement Ward, an extension livestock marketing specialist at Oklahoma State University, has done considerable research on producer-owned meatpacking operations," Vaughn says. "He points out that producers must also be willing to commit themselves financially. This means putting up the equity capital to buy or build a plant. Capital contributions may be proportional to the volume of each member's expected marketings at the plant. Larger growers would pay more in total, though investment per head of livestock would be the same for small or large growers."

There's also a time commitment to consider when looking at a producer-owned operation. Most of the organization's leadership must come from producers. This means attending annual meetings, serving on committees and the board of directors, and working well with management.

Be prepared to pay for high quality management. Good management is the most important key to success, Vaughn says. It's expensive, but usually worth the price. Management and the board of directors have specific responsibilities. Each must carry these out with help from the other, but without interference.



Consider various possible forms of ownership - for example, a cooperative vs. a privately-held corporation. Compare advantages in financing, taxes, and securing members and capital.

Decide on the function of the plant (slaughter only vs. slaughter plus various types of further processing). Other considerations are size of plant, livestock species to be handled, and number of producers investing. This helps determine the amount of capital needed and the obligation of each producer.

Don't expect instant success or large profits. Producer-owned packing plants cannot quarantee higher prices or profits. There may be problems to solve involving environmental concerns (wastewater, sewage treatment, air pollution), labor relations or government regulations.

"By considering these factors from the start, a producer-owned meatpacking venture stands a better chance of succeeding," Vaughn says.

Winning a calf launched this youthful Jersey breeder

BY ROBIN PHILLIPS
Staff Correspondent

NEWBURG — From raising and showing pigs to excelling with champion Jersey cows, Marilyn Deaven, R1 Newburg, has changed the route of her farming life.

This 21-year-old past 4-Her and FFA member is currently renting a farm and milking her 38 purebred Jersey cows. For Marilyn, it has been a successful transition and progression for her cows are becoming widely known in the showring.

"I didn't even want to look at a cow," Marilyn states, remembering back to when she was showing her pigs. Throughout 4-H and FFA she carried her hogs as her projects. Explaining her father had a Holstein dairy at the time, Marilyn said, "we showed dairy and pigs all the time."

The change came early in the FFA career. Marilyn's father, Mark, had a friend in the judging business. This friend wanted to support the local FFA chapter and donated a Jersey calf to be given away in an essay contest. Of course, as Marilyn tells us, she was expected to enter the contest. Her winning the small calf put the right showman with the right breed and the blue and purple ribbons began to appear.

"I was champion fitter the first year," Marilyn says. Her Jerseys also took her to the Grand Championships of the York Interstate Fair, the Gratz County Fair, The Pennsylvania State Junior Show, and the 1984 Farm Show in the open and youth divisions. She has also earned numerous reserve championships, first place premiums, and fitting and showing honors.

"Dad helps me," Marilyn says of her father's constant aid in the barn and support at the shows. She also credits her brothers for helping when needed, too. Nineteen-year-old, Mark Jr., who works on a neighboring dairy, assists in any emergencies, and 17-year-old Marlin works in the barn after school. Showing at 11 shows a year, Marilyn says she could not get everything done without their help. Her father and brother just smile and add, "she cracks the whip," but admit that her ideas are usually the best ones.

It is hard to catch this young lady without a smile and when you mention "Faithful Advancer Colleen" the smile gets bigger and bigger. "Colleen" has been her most successful bovine on the tanbark. In 1980 at the Farm Show, "Colleen" and Marily took the Reserve Championship in the youth show. In 1982, the pair returned for the Grand. Even a twisted stomach suffered after the 1982 Farm Show did not alter this cow's winning ways. "She took the winter of '82 as a vacation," Mark Deaven says of "Colleen".

The fall of 1983 marked her comeback. Calving the day after she won the Reserve Championship at the Fulton County Fair, "Colleen" went on the York and Gratz for the Grands. At the Pennsylvania All-American she took the Reserve Grand honors against stiff competition and the Grand in the youth show.

"She can stay in the barn a while," Marilyn replies to any offers to purchase "Colleen". "I'm not going to sell her," she adds. "Colleen" is currently projected over 12,500 pounds of milk and testing 6.1% butterfat. She was recently classified "Excellent - 90."

The sire of "Colleen" is Golden Faithful, one of the best type bulls of the breed These bloodlines teamed up with those of Shadewell Ethan Allen, another well-known bull of the breed, have produced a winning daughter out of "Colleen" for the Deavens Mar-De Allen Cathy, is following in her dam's footsteps. First place four-year-old at the 1984 Farm Show went to this homebred entry of the Deaven's "Colleen's" due in September again and Marilyn is hoping for another heifer

After winning that first Jersey calf and winning with that first calf, Marilyn knows what to look for when selecting her winners Marilyn selected "Colleen" as a calf from a fellow Jersey breeder. Today, she breeds mostly for type, from bulls high on the list She is currently using a lot of Boss Man and trys to correct feet and legs in her herd. "If they're not tall, forget it," her father says of show animals.

This enthusiastic dairy person is about to make another change in her life In June Marilyn plans to marry. Her fiance, Scott Zinn, Newville, works for a dairy farmer now.

"He plans to get into red and whites," Marilyn says of her future spouse's plans. They plan to rent a neighboring farm and continue with Marilyn's dedication and winning ways. Marilyn met Scott at a fair while showing her Jerseys. When asked if he approves of her Jerseys and wants to expand with them, she replies, "just give me a few years, I'm working on it."

Look for Marilyn and her Jerseys at the upcoming fairs and state shows this year You can recognize them by the quick smile of Marilyn and the glossy appearance of her charges. You will also see the rest of the Deaven family caring for the cows and helping in the showring. "We're still trying," we're nothing spectacular, but we'll be there," Marilyn concludes.

Getting started in 4-H is a little bit easier for Mary Deaven with help of older sister Marilyn.

Twin Valley FFA honors top members with awards

BY DICK ANGLESTEIN

ELVERSON — A trio of " FFA stars" at Twin Valley headed the list of chapter members who were honored for their achievements and accomplishments at the 19th annual parent member awards banquet on Friday, March 2, at the high school.

Star honors went to:

Star Chapter Greenhand – Kevin Stoltzfus, son of Gerald and Darlene Stoltzfus, R2 Elverson. He was the second-place winner in the Berks County FFA creed speaking contest.

Star Chapter Agribusinessman – Joe Nonnemacher, son of Henry and Judith Nonnemacher, R1 Mohnton. Chapter treasurer, he also was the recipient of the Foundation award in nursery production.

Star Chapter Farmer – Kevin Griest, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard E. Griest Jr., R1 Honeybrook. Among his achievements were Foundation medals in the areas of ag mechanics, forest management and extemporaneous public speaking.

More than 150 parents, members and supporters of the Twin Valley Chapter attended the banquet held in the high school cafeteria.

Among other Foundation award winners for proficiency in specific areas were:

Dwight Houck, ag electrification and home improvement; Butch Himes, ag processing; Glenn Stoltzfus, crop and dairy production and outdoor recreation; Lori Ortiz, diversified livestock; Tammy Lush, fish and wildlife management; Connie Reed and Ann Kline, floriculture; Beth Morgan, fruit and vegetable production, soil and water management.

Also, Pam Waltman, horse production; Chris Coblentz, placement in ag production; Rod Stoltzfus, placement in ag production and safety; Mike Devine, poultry production; Gail Raser, sheep production; Al Cox, swine production; Mary McMullen, turf and landscape; and Bill Kirk, public speaking.

Certificates of appreciation were presented to Marie Cutman, administrative assistant to the Twin Valley School District superintendent; Jeff Simmons, operator of the school audio-visual and duplication center; David Mast, who provided the ground and planted and harvested the chapter's corn test plot; Harvey Eshleman, bus contractor and local farmer; and William F. Marberger, superintendent of the school district.

Honorary Chapter Farmer Degrees were conferred upon parents of Keystone Farmers, including Mr. and Mrs. Fred McMullen, Mr. and Mrs. John Werner, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Shaw, Mr. and Mrs. William Aulenbach. Honorary degrees also went to Oliver Mast, who helped with the corn test plot; Debbie Mountz, who donated a quilt as a raffle prize; William X Ash, former business manager and acting superintendent; and Renee Frederick, chaperone.

Featured speaker at the banquet was Carolyn Witmer, president of the Pennsylvania FFA Association.

Keystone Degree winners who were honored included Lisa Yoder, Brenda Werner, Mary McMullen, Bill Kirk, Kevin Griest and Duane Aulenbach.

The chapter's American Farmer Degree recipient, Tom Kirk, was also honored with a plaque.

Kevin Griest and Bill Kirk presented plaques to their parents for their special support and to honor having two sons receiving the Keystone Degreee.

Also honored were Pumpkin Contest award winners, retiring chapter officers, county, area and state contest winners.

Twenty-eight first-year winners received their Greenhand pins and chapter farmer pins went to sixteen members.

A special BOAC certificate was presented by the chapter to the Hay Creek Historical Association for the development work at Joanna Furnace.

American Farmer Tom Kirk holds plaque presented to him at Twin Valley FFA banquet.

Speaking winners reported

ELVERSON — The Twin Valley FFA chapter recently participated in the Berks County public speaking contest, which included the four categories of general public speaking, creed speaking, conservation speaking, and extemporaneous speaking.

In general speaking, contestants give a 6 to 8-minute prepared speech and then answer questions about the content of their speech. The judges for this contest were Mrs. Virgina Mountz and Carl Blank. Twin Valley members placing in this contest were Glenn Stoltzfus, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey W. Stoltzfus, Morgantown, fourth; Rod Stoltzfus, son of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Stoltzfus, Elverson, seventh; Mary McMullen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred McMullen, Elverson, eighth; Gail Raser, daughter of Gary Raser, Elverson, eleventh; and Chris Coblentz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Homer Coblentz, Honey Brook, 14th.

The creed speaking contest is open only to first year members in 9th or 10th grade. Members from Twin Valley participating were Kevin Stoltzfus, son of Mr. and mrs. Gerald Stoltzfus, Elverson, 2nd; Denise Shantz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Art Shantz, Morgantown, 3rd; Lurleen Beiler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Beiler, Morgantown, 6th; Pam Waltman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Waltman, Morgantown, 13th; and Sam Petersheim, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Petersheim, Elverson, 13th. The judges for this contest were Ronald Martin and Jeff Stoltzfus.

In extemporaneous speaking, contestants come unprepared with no speech topic, just reference materials. They pull topics and numbers and are given a half-hour to prepare a speech on that topic, and then must answer questions. Kevin Griest, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Griest Jr., Honey Brook, placed third. The judges in this contest were Karen Taylor-Freeman and Jack Schenely.

In conservations speaking, contestants are asked to speak on matters involving nature and conservations methods. The judges for this contest were Duane Pysher and Maryann Rimby. Twin Valley members participating in this contest were Beth Morgan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Morgan, Birdsboro, third; Lori Ortiz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Winn, Eleverson, fourth.

Chester continues Bay review

WEST CHESTER — "Identify the problems. Then, provide solutions to the problems", Pownall Jones, Toughkenamon, Director of the Chester County Conservation District, suggested to his fellow directors at their monthly meeting last week in West Chester.

The Directors were responding to pollution problems in Chesapeake Bay, allegedly caused by agriculture. A five-year, multi-million dollar, tax-producer funded study points the finger at agriculture for causing a decrease in Bay fish harvests. The study says that nutrients from fertilizer, manure and pesticides from crop production have been major contributors to Bay pollution.

Jenny Russell, Lewisville, Vice Chairman, is arranging a public information meeting for the Chester County portion of the Bay watershed. "Initial plans for the meeting include an overview of Bay problems and suggested solutions. Various government proposals, restrictions and programs will be summerized", she said. "Landowners in the Bay watershed will be exposed to the organized effort being assembled to restore the Bay to production. The area includes the Elks, North East and Octararo watersheds. The meeting will be held March 19, in the Russellville Grange Hall starting at 7 p.m.", Russell said.

Russell is a member of the a research sub-committee of a special committee to represent Pennsylvania agricultural interests in the Bay program. She indicated that she will be working with Marjorie Kraus, Research Director and Mark Stutman of Algal Virus Research Labs, Landenberg, to collect and present basic information on agriculture's potential pollution contribution to the Bay.

The Soil Conservation Service, U.S.D.A., a cooperating agency with the District, was instructed to concentrate its efforts in the targeted area. Any landowner, interested in soil and water conservation on his land, should contact the District office for a Request for Assistance form. (235 W. Market St., West Chester, Pa. 19380 — or ph: 696-5126)

The District will be assisting farm equipment dealers in a program of no-till equipment rental. Marshall Haws, Executive Conservationist, said that Stoltzfus Farm Service will be holding an informational meeting on March 27 at their shop. Area farmers will have the opportunity to hear specialists discuss planting techniques and pesticide applications. A panel of farmers will related their experiences with no-till planting last year. Those interested will be able to reserve the use of a four-row, White No-till planter for spring planting.

"We will be mailing contact letters to District Cooperators as part of our winter follow-up program," Elbert Wells, District Conservationist, S C S , U S D A , explained to the Directors. Cooperators will be contacted by phone to discuss the conservation plans for their property.

In other action, Directors voted up to $75 contribution to the Esta Funk fund at the National Association of Conservation District Directors Memorial. They voted to provide materials for Soil Stewardship week (May 27-June 3) available to all ministers who request them.

Directors accepted the following landowners as Cooperators with the District. They are eligible for the services of the S.C.S., U.S.D.A. Technicians. Ephraim E. Hershey, Upper Oxford Twp.; Harold E. Martin, East Fallowfield Twp.; Timothy K. Kauffman, West Fallowfield Twp.; John L. Stoltzfus, Highland Twp.; Robert A. Hewitt, East Conventry Twp.; and Jeffrey Graham, Uwchlan Twp.

New carrot hybrid

MADISON, Wis. — A new carrot hybrid, called A Plus, providing both better flavor and more nutrition, is ready for home gardeners and commercial production this spring.

In taste panel evaluations, A Plus was preferred over eight commercial hybrids with which it was compared, said horticulturist Clinton E. Peterson of the U.S. Department of Agriculture at the University of Wisconsin's Madison campus.

USDA's Agricultural Research Service scientists found that the new carrot has about 76 percent more carotene than the variety most widely grown in California.

Philipp W. Simon, Agricultural Research Service plant geneticist at Madison, conducted the taste panel and laboratory analyses.

FFA'ers get book medals

LEBANON — On February 15-17, the State FFA Project Book Contest was held at University Park. The best project books from Pennsylvania were entered. Students keep records of their supervised occupational experiences in the books. The judges score the books on accuracy, completeness, neatness, and labor income.

Cedar Crest members won several awards Winners from Cedar Crest were David Groff, 1st Gold in Dairy Beef Finishing; Ed Zuck, 1st Gold in Swine Breeding; Jeff Zuck, 11th Gold in S.O.E. on-farm over 500 hours; Gale Hitz, 1st Silver in Swine Fattening; and Tonya Johnson, 4th Silver in Dairy Calf

Farm Bureau favors market oriented ag

WASHINGTON, D.C. — A future farm policy that clears the way for profits in the marketplace and not unending reliance on government farm programs has been called for by the American Farm Bureau Federation.

Testifying on a 1985 farm bill, Dean Kleckner, a farmer from Rudd, Iowa who is president of the Iowa Farm Bureau Federation, told the House Agriculture Committee that the path to market led through modifications of farm legislation that would tie loan rates to market prices.

"Most important," he said, "is Farm Bureau's strong support for future farm programs that will contribute to a reduction in the level of federal spending and thereby get interest rates down, exchange rates in line, and exports back on the move."

Kleckner, who is a member of AFBF's Board of Directors, reminded the committee that domestic farm markets are growing "little — if at all", and that growth of U.S. agriculture depends on expanded export trade. To that end, he said, U.S. farmers must have a program that will allow them to compete favorably in world markets. And he said periodic adjustments in U.S. loan rates are the "best way to get the attention of foreign competitors, who often undercut U.S. prices that are propped up by high domestic loans."

In stressing that loan rates should be set at "market-clearing levels," Kleckner explained it would best be accomplished by setting loan rates according to the recent three-to-five year average domestic price.

"This recommendation recognizes the general success of the price support loan programs for both cotton and soybeans, and suggests that this concept be extended to include wheat, feed grains and rice," he said.

Kleckner said that "modifying the present law to emphasize market-oriented loan rates and stocks policies is the key" to the longer-run policy objective of a market-oriented agriculture. Farm Bureau, he said, favors eliminating the farmer-owned grain reserve because it has "become a major obstacle for returning wheat and feed grains to the market system," instead of being an orderly marketing tool, as intended.

"Had the federal farmer-owned reserve not been such a handy tool for propping up market prices in an attempt to reduce taxpayer outlays for deficiency payments," said Kleckner, "we would never had accumulated the awesome wheat and feed grains stocks that gave need for a PIK program."

Soybean research approved

DOVER, Del. — The Delaware Soybean Board has approved funding for 17 research projects in the state totalling $64,600 during 1984.

Among the projects approved was the continuation of a task force study looking into a wide variety of factors contributing to soybean yields on Delaware farms. A total of 25 farms in the state are participating in the study as researchers analyze varieties, cultural practices, planting and harvest dates, water usage, soil types and other variables.

The Board also approved funding to evaluate the effect of various cultural practices in managing the Dectes Stem Borer on soybeans grown in Delaware. That insect is becoming an increasingly widespread threat to yields in the state.

The Delaware Soybean Board consists on nine producer members elected by Delaware's soybean growers and the Delaware Secretary of Agriculture. Funding for the programs of education, research, product and market development come from a one cent per bushel check-off of soybeans raised in Delaware.

The funds are used only for projects that offer beneficial results to Delaware's soybean growers and industry.

Swing-Frame Mower Conditioners

12' and 14' Cutting Widths

Now you can get into high capacity haymaking with new swing-frame center pivot mower conditioners from Gehl. Our new 2230 has a full 12' cutting width while the 2262 offers a 14' cut AND high speed double sickle cutting action for faster cutting and increased capacity.

Both of these new mower conditioners feature totally hydraulic drive with high torque and smooth operation -- no mechanical main drivelines for reduced maintenance and parts.

These new swing-frame units pivot at the center of the frame for positive, easy positioning of the header. You can cut from the left side or right side of the tractor, or tow directly behind for roading. The result to you is reduced cutting time and fuel costs with nearly infinite manueuverability.

Both the 2230 and 2262 feature a 20" auger to feed the crop into the 57" wide conditioning rolls for thorough crop conditioning.

Now you can get into high capacity haymaking at self-propelled speeds and convenience, without the cost of a self-propelled. The NEW 2230 and 2262 swing-frame mower conditioners from Gehl.

Brockett's Ag Advice

By John E. Brockett
Farm Management Agent
Lewistown Extension Office

Most farmers could reduce costs in relation to returns. Do you believe that? Could you? How? Those are the three logical questions that follow a seemingly wild statement such as the one with which I started. Do I believe it? After over 25 years of working with farm records, my answer is an unqualified yes. When I see some of the ranges in costs among similar farms, I am positive that farmers are often cost inefficient. Can I prove that? For the most part, I can prove it if you would listen.

Let me just take one factor - the percentage of cash income it takes to pay operating expenses not including interest. Here I am comparing a farmer's operating expenses not including interest. Here I am comparing a farmer's operating costs no matter when he started in business. Interest is removed as a factor for this comparison. Last year the most efficient operators used 45% of their cash income to pay operating expenses. Average was about 60% and some farmers were using over 80% of cash income to pay operating expenses. Those who were the most concerned about reducing operating expenses were those who were already below 50%. Is that why they were already there?

Could you reduce your cost of production? The answer is probably yes. There are circumstances beyond your control. However these should be viewed as a challenge not an excuse. Let's look at some how to's:

Soil Test - then use a balanced fertility program. The most amazing thing to me is that every farmer in Pennsylvania does not use soil testing as a routine tool. Some use the worn out excuse "it is not very accurate". Others cite a time factor. Others talk about a lot of other reasons. It all adds up to the fact that farmers who do not use soil testing are really not interested in operating a farm. They are just farming for exercise, fun, or habit.

Are you limited on fertilizer dollars? Use your soil tests to make the best use of them. Set priorities on each field. Example: Priority 1 - new seedings, corn or other high return crop; already high in nutrient value; good pH; easy working: Priority 2 - first or second year alfalfa stands, corn after sod; good nutrient value: Priority 3 - good alfalfa - grass stand, corn after corn; fair nutrient value: Etc. Each priority would get balanced treatment such as: Priority 1 - 80 to 100 percent of recommendation including lime; Priority 2 - 70 to 80 percent of recommendation with possible cheating on some P and K for corn if necessary to fulfill lime requirements; Priority 3 - 60 to 70 percent of recommendations for corn with possible further reduction in P and K but not for lime and 60 percent of recommendation for alfalfa.

Are you limited on pesticide dollars? Quick now go back to last year - what were your major pest problems? Could you handle them less expensively with a more timely application. Sweep survey for insects on a regular basis can really reduce insecticide costs in many years. Don't be impetuous though - it does not make sense to spray to control an insect that is already on its way out (thru parasites, natural life cycle, or a minor infestation).

Maintain Equipment - maintenance is always less expensive than repairing. Check oil levels in motors on a regular basis, lubricate moving parts routinely, check belts and chains, replace worn parts before they break. Two dollars worth of oil last summer would have saved us a $349 repair bill. How many of you who had a tractor "blow up" or a forage harvester "break down" could have saved that $2500 to $4500 repair bill with regular maintenance? Now don't say "not me". Remember I have been there too. You are an hour late because (you put in the reason-they are all good including the alarm clock malfunction). The weatherman is predicting a weather change. You have to get that field planted or hay mowed or haylage chopped. It won't hurt to forget to check the oil this once. Zoom off you go. The day becomes hot, the work load heavier than expected, you're on a hillside, suddenly something in that tractor engine is moving without lubrication.

The rest you know - right? Do you want more? Remember the adage: For lack of a nail the horse was lost, for lack of a horse the king was lost, for lack of a leader a battle was lost, end result was a lost kingdom. Maintenance is a must if you want to cut costs. Most major equipment problems can be traced to two things (1) lack of maintenance and (2) rough handling.

Red clover varieties listed

UNIVERSITY PARK Red clover, an important hay crop in Pennsylvania, is now available in seven high yielding varieties, according to Richard W. Cleveland of Penn State.

In a single harvest year, growers can realize an increased cash value of about $100 per acre with most of the improved red clover varieties, Cleveland stated recently.

The superior varieties — listed alphabetically — are Arlington, Florex, Florie, Kenstar, Redland II, Redmor, and Tristan. Testing of crop varieties is a key responsibility among scientists with the Agricultural Experiment Station at Penn State.

The top varieties produce about one ton more hay per acres than Pennscott red clover, the old standard variety still grown widely by farmers. Cleveland and colleagues in agronomy at Penn State tested the new varieties over 10 years at locations in Centre and Lancaster counties. There are usually no significant differences in yield among several superior varieties in any given test.

Improved yields of the superior varieties are at last partly due to better disease resistance than Pennscott, Cleveland observed. For example, the variety Arlington was very resistant to northern anthracnose that sometimes was severe in Centre County trials.

In some trials, red clover yields compared favorably with yields of alfalfa grown at the same locations. Usually shorter lived than alfalfa, red clover is easier to manage and tolerates higher soil acidity than alfalfa.

Occasional severe infestations of northern anthracnose were noted in the Centre County plots. Arlington was highly resistant to the disease, as mentioned earlier, while Pennscott was very susceptible. Anthracnose causes injury to the stems and leaves — often entering the crown and killing the plants.

"Despite some claims, otherwise, we found that red clover varieties seldom live beyond two productive years, counting the year of planting," Cleveland stated. "We tested some varieties repeatedly and found persistence beyond two years to be highly variable."

Top Md. soybean yield tops 68 bu.

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — Essex and Union soybeans, planted in narrow rows, came through a generally hot, dry summer to make top yields for many Eastern Shore farmers in the 1983 official Maryland soybean yield contest.

Top producers in the statewide soybean yield contest were honored Feb. 28 during the seventy-seventh annual meeting of the Maryland Crop Improvement Association. Their achievements compared well with those of the previous year, when growing conditions were more favorable in most locations.

For the fourth time in the last five years, the championship plaque went to a Talbot county farming operation, S & G Farms, operated by J. Raymond Shortall and William Gambrill in the Miles River Neck area northwest of Easton.

Their winning yield of 68.2 bushels per acre was achieved with double-cropped Essex soybeans planted in 15-inch rows. It was 23 bushels per acre better than their recorded yield for the 1982 contest and only slightly below last year's winning state yield of 69.4 set by George C. Towers of Denton on his Talbot county farming operation.

Besides being over-all Maryland soybean champion for 1983, the S & G Farms entry was named state winner in the non-irrigated and no-tillage categories. The farm operators are brothers-in-law.

About 12 miles north, J. Tilghman Bishop of Carmichael (Queen Annes county) also had a good year for soybeans. He planted the Jacques J-13 variety in 19-inch rows to achieve 66.89 bushels per acre. This mark qualified for runnerup honors in the over-all state soybean yield contest.

At the lower end of the Eastern Shore, some Somerset county soybean growers were having a good year, too.

Ted Smith of Princess Anne placed third over-all with a yield of 66.4 bushels per acre. He had planted full-season Union soybeans in 7-inch rows. Incidentally, Smith won the state contest for 1981 with an almost identical yield of 66.5 bushels per acre. That mark was set with full-season Essex soybeans in the non-irrigated category.

Fourth-place honors for the 1983 contest went to James G. Saathoff of Ridgely (Caroline county) with a yield of 64.4 bushels of Essex soybeans per acre. Saathoff was honored as state winner in both the irrigated and irrigated no-till categories. He was also the 1982 state winner for irrigated no-till soybeans.

Back in Talbot county, Paul L. Shortall, Jr., placed fifth in the state soybean contest with a yield of 61.6 bushels per acre. Shortall operates a grain and hog farm about two miles east of Easton. He is a brother and brother-in-law of the S & G Farms operators. Like them, he had planted double-cropped Essex soybeans in 15-inch rows.

Sixth through tenth placings in the official 1983 state soybean yield contest were as follows:

6. William S. Councell of Goldsboro (Caroline county), 61.4 bushels per acre with Essex soybeans, irrigated no-till, double-cropped;

7. Wesley R. Brown of Easton (Talbot county), 59.9 bushels per acre with Asgrow soybeans in 18-inch rows, no-till, double-cropped;

8. Arthur W. Lankford, Jr., of Pocomoke City (Somerset county), 59.8 bushels per acre with Union soybeans in 7-inch rows, double cropped;

9. Gustav A. Schlag of Wittman (Talbot county), 59.5 bushels per acre with full-season Essex soybeans in 38-inch rows, conventional tillage;

10. John V. Hartman of Westover (Somerset county), 57.3 bushels per acre with full-season Essex soybeans in 18-inch rows.

Schlag and Brown had placed second and third, respectively, in the 1982 state soybean yield contest. Lankford was fifth in 1982 and was state winner that year for irrigated soybeans grown under minimum or conventional tillage. He was the irrigated no-till winner for soybean production in the 1981 state contest.

Average yield for the top 10 entries in the 1983 Maryland soybean yield contest was 62.54 bushels per acre. Except for the previous year's all-time record of 64.67, this was the highest "top 10" average in the history of the contest.

By comparison, the top 10 growers in the 1980 official soybean contest has an average yield of 54.0 bushels per acre. In that year, the over-all state yield average for soybeans had fallen to 24 bushels per acre because of a hot, dry summer.

The over-all state average for 1983 was 25 bushels per acre, according to the Maryland-Delaware Crop Reporting Service. This compared with a statewide average of 29 bushels per acre in 1982.

For Delaware, the situation was exactly reversed, thanks to near-normal rainfall during the June 23-Sept. 11 period last summer in lower Delaware. Across the state line in Maryland, upper Caroline county was also experiencing near-normal rainfall at the time - while most of the rest of the state was experiencing drought or near-drought conditions.

Maryland's yield record for soybeans - 69.8 bushels per acre - was set in 1976 by Dale Reagan of Federalsburg (Caroline county) with the irrigated Williams variety.

The official statewide corn and soybean yield contests have been conducted each year since 1952 as part of the crop improvement program of the University of Maryland's Cooperative Extension Service. Yield measurements are supervised by Extension agricultural agents in participating counties.

The rootworm insecticide built tough enough to last all season long.

Now there's BROOT™ from Union Carbide. It's the corn soil insecticide specially formulated to deliver the full-season rootworm control you need for higher corn yields.

Down deep, no other rootworm insecticide looks like BROOT™...

Unlike conventional soil insecticides, new BROOT is formulated into unique roll-compacted granules. Together with finely-ground gypsum, the active ingredient in BROOT, trimethacarb, is blended evenly throughout each and every granule.

Or works like BROOT™...

Because of this unique formulation, each granule of BROOT gradually releases its active ingredient throughout the rootworm season.

So your corn roots stand a better chance of developing normally

Or handles like BROOT™...

This advanced formulation also makes BROOT soil insecticide easier to handle. It flows smoothly and evenly out of the hopper box. And BROOT is not abrasive to your application.

Here's proof.

Results from performance trials throughout the Corn Belt prove that BROOT soil insecticide provides the kind of protection you need for top corn yields.

In testing to date, BROOT has been a consistent performer in terms of root ratings and yield response. That's why BROOT is included in university recommendations for effective rootworm control.

So ask your dealer about new BROOT 15GX. He knows that it's more than just another rootworm insecticide. And once you try BROOT, you'll know it too.

Wider use of AM/PM testing urged

NEWARK, Del. — In his talk at the recent Southeastern Holstein Seminar in Newark, Del., Cornell University dairy geneticist Dr. Robert Everett stimulated a lot of lively discussion when he proposed the wider use of AM/PM testing and the identification of outstanding nonregistered cows in dairy herds for an expanded source of future proven bulls to be used in breed improvement programs.

Everett presented his ideas to a roomful of Holstein breeders and dairy farmers during the annual event, hosted by the University of Delaware. Here are some of his main points.

AM/PM testing is the use of only one milk test per day. For herd records it is acceptable when an official time recorder is included. The idea has been around since 1968 when it was introduced in Pennsylvania, New York, New England and many other states. The system involves less labor, lower travel costs and is as accurate and reliable as the usual DHIA with two tests per day, Everett said.

AM/PM testing is already used in sire evaluations in New York and New England. It is expected to used nationwide once the necessary equations for computer calculations have been developed. Many registered dairy cows are not on unofficial AM/PM in most states.

Many nonregistered cows are the offspring of several generations of registered superior sires, Everett said. If these cows are outstanding producers, they should be used to provide outstanding sons as bulls for future breed improvement.

There are more nonregistered than registered Holstein cows in this country, the geneticist pointed out. This means a large, important segment of the U.S. dairy industry presently is being overlooked for future sire development.

According to University of Delaware extension dairy specialist George Haenlein, Everett's suggestions have considerable merit for further breed improvement. The Holstein Association already is considering type classification of nonregistered cows to make bull proofs more comprehensive and meaningful, Haenlein noted.

Less than half of all dairy cows in the U.S. are on official performance test, and of these only 56 percent are useful for sire proofing since 44 percent of all records lack sire identification.

"In the next few years the U.S. dairy industry needs to come up with some bold new ideas to survive the present economic squeeze," says Haenlein, "although such ideas may at first be as unpopular as the Red and White Holstein was just a few years ago."

The specialist predicts that official AM/PM tests will increase cow numbers for better bull selection, and at the same time lower production costs on dairy farms.

"Nonregistered cows that participate in official DHIA tests and in classifications will increase cow numbers for bull proofs and better selection, and thus increase dairy management efficiency and lower costs," Haenlein says.

"The successful dairy producer in the next few years will be the one who can lower cash costs of operation significantly — through genetics, reproduction, feeding and disease control," he says.

For example, in bull selection the best bulls to choose are those with a high proof and high repeatability. However, these often have a high price tag so they may not be the most economical to use across the board on every cow in a farmer's herd.

Repeatability is a measure of the reliability of a bull proof. A bull with high repeatability can be used heavily across an entire herd since his proof should indicate fairly closely the improvement that can be expected in his future daughters.

In his talk, Everett pointed out that a bull with a low repeatability rating can also be used with confidence, provided the level of his proof is taken into account. Haenlein agrees, noting that a bull with a high proof but low repeatability can be expected to do as well in his daughters as one with a moderately good proof but high repeatability.

Semen price may actually favor the low repeatability bull, the specialist says. For instance, a young bull with only a 30 percent repeatability rating will have 80 percent of his daughters within plus or minus 700 pounds of his proof. A proven bull with 98 percent repeatability will have 80 percent of his daughters vary only 100 pounds, plus or minus. This means 80 percent of the daughters of a low-repeatability bull with a proof of 800 pounds of milk, can be expected to produce between 100 to 1,500 pounds more milk than their dams. On the other hand, the bull with an 800-pound proof but high repeatability is expected to sire daughters producing between 700 to 900 pounds more than their dams.

In other words, says Haenlein, semen of the lower repeatability bull may be cheaper and can be a better buy.

Wye sale offers cows

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — This year's Wye Angus Production Sale by the University of Maryland will feature something new. For the first time in the annual sale's six-year history, the university will offer mature cows in addition to the traditional pick of yearling bulls.

All told, 27 cows four years and older will be auctioned with 36 yearling bulls "to give the industry access to germ plasm considered excess to the university's research needs," according to Dr. Eldin Leighton, an animal geneticist hired by the university's Agricultural Experiment Station to oversee research on the herd.

The sale will offer "a pick of the herd embryo flush," a process of which a successful bidder will choose a top herd cow to provide embryos to transfer, according to Leighton.

The 1984 Wye Angus Production Sale is scheduled for Monday, March 26, at noon at the university's Wye Research and Education Center, near Queenstown.

Sale Reports

A Public Sale of grade Holsteins and farm machinery was held March 1 by Gideon F. And Elizabeth L. Lapp, 2 miles southwest of Paradise on Paradise Lane, Lancaster Co., Pa.

Some prices were: mule $2300, grey mare $1025, pair of mules $3525 & $3850, bale box $110, N.H. 271 baler $1800, Pequea spreader $2050, silage cutter $225, tedder $575, Int. mower $1000, Rem. Model 10 12 gauge gun $210, Win. 308 rifle $410, Model 12 Winchester $390 and Stevens over/under gun $110.
